★ SPORTS ★

In terms of numbers, it's the biggest bash of the year in track and field and the weekend Y-Times meet proved no exception. More than 1,000 young athletes from B.C., Alberta and the Pacific Northwest flooded Centennial Stadium. As is usually the case in meets of this size, there was elation and frustration. The elation belonged to Richmond, which had the biggest contingent and the best athletes and won the championship. The frustration belonged to Pan-American Games sprint champion Stephanie Berto. Trying for a comeback, she was disqualified because she wore the wrong number. Times sports write D'Arcy Kavanagh and photographer Irving Strickland were there and their stories and pictures, along with complete results, apear on pages 14 and 15.

Elsewhere on today's sports pages:

Lou Graham hit a bunker on the 18th hole at Medinah, Ill., Sunday and wound up tied for first place with John Mahaffey after the regulation 72 holes of the U.S. Open golf championship. The two were scheduled to play off over 18 holes today. Page 16.

A death threat was delivered on the weekend to Vida Blue and Reggie Jackson of baseball's Oakland Athletics. It had little effect on their play as the A's swept an American League doubleheader Sunday from Kansas City Royals. Page 15.

World soccer star Pele was mobbed by well-wishers in Boston last week and his club, New York Cosmos of the North American League, laid down the law on the weekend — no security, no Pele. Page 16.

Alarm Delay Cited in Fire

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

A delay in sounding the fire alarm contributed to Saturday's fatal fire at the Royal Olympic Hotel, Victoria deputy fire chief R. J. Coates said today. (See story Page 9.)

Coates said Les Wright, a guest in Room 209 next to where the fire started, phoned the desk clerk to say he smelled smoke but seven or eight minutes passed before any action was taken.

Three people died in the blaze which gutted the interior hallways of the seven-story, 63-year-old building.

An inquest into the death of the three — Elizabeth Mae Towers, 20, of Trail, Lorna Anne Minnis, 57, of Vancouver, and Charles James McDonald, 90, a resident of the hotel — will begin 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Thomson and Irving funeral parlor, 1625 Quadra.

Coates said Wright was awakened at about 1:30 a.m., thought he smelled smoke, and went out into the hallway to a bathroom to get a drink of water. When he returned he couldn't smell the smoke any longer.

However, Coates said, a few minutes later Wright thought he could see smoke coming through the wall and phoned the desk clerk. The clerk said he would investigate.

Wright, a Vancouver social worker on a weekend holiday in Victoria, waited and got dressed. Coates said Wright heard a commotion next door and after seven or eight minutes grew worried and looked out into the hallway.

As he was standing there, a man in Room 210, later identified as Walter Stanley, 45, of Resolute Bay, N.W.T., staggered out of his room dressed only in his shorts. He told Wright he had attempted to put out a fire in his bed with tumblers of water but the fire had got the best of him.

Coates said Wright sounded house alarm and stretched out a standpipe hose but by that time the fire had reached a "flashover stage."

Stanley raced downstairs and told the night auditor, Albert Martell, what had happened.

Martell, 58, of 2140 Cadboro Bay, phoned the fire department and then finding the switchboard jammed and the elevator stuck rushed upstairs by way of a back staircase and started to bang on doors to awaken guests.

However, he was overcome by smoke and was one of eleven people taken to hospital for treatment. He is listed in poor condition in Victoria General Hospital today.

Of the 10 others, four have since been discharged. Three are listed in fair condition — George Chen, 48, of Vancouver, in Royal Jubilee and James Minnis, 62, of Vancouver and Randall Smith, 26, of Langford, in Victoria General. Douglas Mooney, 29, of Duncan, William Kinsey, 51, of the Royal Olympic Hotel, and Helen Petterson, 41, of 1803 Fernwood are reported in good condition.

Coates said careless smoking was the cause of the fire, but Victoria police Inspector Richard Ward said Stanley, in an interview, couldn't recall if he had been smoking or not.

Stanley told police he woke up to find a pillow on his bed in flames. He said he tried to pick it up and carry it to a sink but it fell apart.

Coates said if there had not been the delay in reporting the fire and if the door to the room had been more solidly built, firemen would likely have been able to contain the fire in the room.

BATS OUT

OMAHA, Neb. (Reuter) — The U.S. Army is preparing to spend $38.5 million to build the country's first synthetic bat-manure factory.

The substance, called nitroguanidine, is used as a coolant, lubricant and anti-corrosive in artillery.

The U.S. at present buys its bat manure from Canada. The substance is applied to artillery shells to reduce wear.

Soviets to Cut Whaling Fleet

LONDON (Reuter) — The Soviet Union announced today it will eliminate one of its three Antarctic whaling fleets as a gesture to conservationist pressure.

The statement came at the start of the 27th annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC) where yet another struggle was shaping up over the survival of the world's largest creature.

Soviet delegate I. V. Nikonorov gave cautious approval to an Australian plan for reducing catch levels and safeguarding endangered species.

After announcing the reduction of the Soviet whaling effort, Nikonorov said he believes the Australian plan would work provided the IWC showed "wisdom and understanding" about catch levels.

Japan, which together with the Soviet Union accounts for about 80 per cent of the world's whale hunting, said that acceptance of the new plan is no easy task for the Japanese whaling industry.

But Japanese delegate I. Fujita said he believes some agreement can be reached, provided the new rules take account of Japan's needs and that limits are not set in excess of conservation needs.

The Australian proposal calls for three categories of protection. In the first group are totally protected species, like the giant blue whale which once was hunted almost to extinction.

The second category calls for an aufomatic cutoff in hunting species which fall below danger level. The third is for carefully regulated hunting of stocks deemed to be in no danger of over-depletion.

Under that plan, it seems likely that the fin whale—the largest species now hunted—would fall within the protected category. Most experts are agreed that fin whale stocks are dangerously low.

This would leave only three species on the permitted list: the sperm whale, the sei whale and the smaller minke whales, which until a few years ago was considered too small and too fast to catch.

★ Protest Makes Contact

VANCOUVER (CP) — After a two-month, 1,100-mile patrol of North America's west coast, the Greenpeace anti-whaling expedition has finally encountered a fleet of whaling ships.

An expedition spokesman said Friday that the Greenpeace V, one of two vessels on the expedition, made contact with Soviet whaling ships off the U.S. coast. The exact location was not disclosed.

It was the first time contact had been made since the expedition left Vancouver April 27.

FROSTY START

According to the calendar, summer was due in Newfoundland at 9:57 p.m. NDT Saturday but the weather office issued a frost warning for most of the province.

A spokesman at the weather office here said, "not too many Newfoundlanders will be all that surprised."

The average latest date for frost in the central parts of the island portion of the province is about June 10. But frost has been recorded at Gander International Airport in every month of the year.

The Victoria area has had a mixture of above and below normal temperatures throughout June, with temperatures Sunday and today being on the cool side.

Price Hike Approved For Liquor

An average 3 per cent increase in the price of liquor and wine products and a 45-cent hike in the price of a case of beer has been approved by the provincial cabinet.

The price hike brings the cost of a case of beer to $4, which includes sales tax and a 60-cent deposit on the bottles.

Liquor Administration Branch general manager Vic Woodland said today the new price hikes will go into effect as soon as current liquor store stock is depleted — estimated at about a week for liquor products and as early as Tuesday for beer.

Woodland said the increase is designed to bring liquor and beer prices in line with list prices in other provinces.

He said former prices were "a shade below" similar products sold in other provincial liquor outlets.

Low-alcohol beer will cost $3.80 a case under the new price structure.

Last across-the-board increases in prices took effect in 1971, he said.

The announcement, made public in orders-in-council, precedes what may be in store in terms of liquor taxes when the federal government's budget is announced later today.

Roberts Bank Rushed Dike 'Bloody Disaster'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal and provincial agencies are rushing the building of a sea dike at Roberts Bank in nearby Delta that conservationists and biologists charge will ruin more than 200 acres of the Fraser River estuary's dwindling feeding areas for fish and waterfowl.

"It's a bloody disaster . . . incredible stupidity," claims Bill Otway, executive director of British Columbia Wildlife Federation.

Federal and provincial biologists are just as incensed and in confidential communications, written and verbal, accuse top federal and provincial government officials of ignoring their warnings about the dike's effect on the Roberts Bank tidal marshes.

"It's a terrible mistake . . . its a very sore point with us," one of the government biologists said in an interview.

The federation and other conservation groups have protested the dike project to Ottawa and Victoria without any success so far.

Only one of the top government officials involved has responded to the strong protests in a direct way.

AMIN DELAYS HILLS' DEATH

LONDON (Reuter) — British lecturer Denis Hills will be executed in 11 days unless British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan goes to Uganda, Radio Uganda quoted President Idi Amin as saying today.

Hills, under sentence of death for treason, was to have faced a firing squad today. But the execution was postponed by Amin after he met emissaries from Queen Elizabeth bearing her appeal for clemency for Hills.

NEWS BRIEFS

Phone Rate Hike?

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed increases that would add 15.5 per cent to the cost of a long-distance telephone call during peak hours were announced today by the Trans-Canada telephone system TCTS. The increases would become effective Aug. 1 if approved by the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission.

11½-Year Pact Set

WINNIPEG (CP) — An agreement covering 11½ years and prohibiting strikes and lockouts has been signed between Manitoba Hydro and its workers at two large construction sites in northern Manitoba. The agreement provides a system of settling disputes on the spot and assures wage parity with settlements in the construction trades in Winnipeg.

Ganhdi Awaits Word

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A Supreme Court justice said today he will announce Tuesday whether he will allow Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to remain in office during her appeal of a lower court's conviction of corrupt election practices.

Forest Shutdown Warned

VANCOUVER (CP) — A second union has started taking a strike vote and a third is poised to follow the same course in the deadlocked British Columbia forest industry negotiations.

And, for the first time in its history, union spokesmen indicate the industry faces the prospect of a total shutdown of the wood and pulp and paper sections at the same time — as early as 10 days from now, after pulp and paper contracts expire at midnight, June 30.

About 40 delegates of the Canadian Paper Workers' Union from 17 B.C. locals on Saturday authorized the taking of strike votes among 7,200 members.

Voting is to be completed by the July 1 holiday and shutdowns could begin right after the count, a union spokesman said.

The decision to take the vote was the CPU's response to the forest companies' proposal Friday to grant over 40,000 workers in three unions — CPU, International Woodworkers of America, and Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada — only cost-of-living increases this year.

"The offer was a joke and it was treated as such," said Art Gruntman, CPU's western vice-president after meeting company negotiators.

Reg Ginn, national PPWC president, said that union's wage caucus would meet today to decide when strike votes will be held among the PPWC's 5,500 members.

"The offer is nothing but a charade," Ginn added. "It's impossible to accomplish anything in negotiations when the situation is so ridiculous."

The International Woodworkers of America is already conducting a strike vote, with ballots due Friday, seeking a strong mandate among about 30,000 coast members to reject the COLA-only offer.

The IWA contract expired at midnight June 14.

Jack Munro, IWA western regional president and chief spokesman in negotiations, said the IWA was waiting today to hear if Fred Geddes, the provincial mediator, has been able to arrange a resumption of talks with the companies.

Munro warned a strike could occur because of "the completely unrealistic position" of the industry.

Corridor to Oil Field Now Offered to Egypt

Times News Services

Israel has offered Egypt a land corridor to the Abu Rudeis oil field in the Sinai desert in an attempt to eliminate a key obstacle to an interim Middle East peace agreement.

A government official in Jerusalem said Israel hoped the land corridor would meet Egypt's demands for both sea and land access to the oil field along the Gulf of Suez.

"It has to be wrapped in a lot of cotton but I would tend to confirm that a certain territorial continuity has been offered to Egypt between a main point of withdrawal and the oil field," the official said Sunday.

A small explosive charge meanwhile blew up under a car near the centre of Tel Aviv today and police said Arab terrorists may be expanding their bombing campaign to Israel's largest city.

The charge, a small pipe stuffed with explosives and attached to a small clock, caused slight damage to the car but no injuries, a police spokesman said.

In a related development, Newsweek magazine says Libyan leader Moamer Kadhafi recently concluded a deal with Palestine Liberation Organization leader George Hapash to assassinate Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for $16 million.

The magazine says information it received from Egyptian intelligence agencies indicates Habash accepted Kadhafi's proposition.

Newsweek gives no date for the deal, but indicates it took place after the collapse of U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's last Middle East peace mission in March and was an effort to prevent further progress toward a settlement of the Israeli-Arab conflict.

Judge Frees Laberge

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec Court of Appeal judge today ordered imprisoned labor leader Louis Laberge freed unconditionally pending appeal of his conviction and three-year prison sentence for criminal mischief.

Laberge, president of the 300,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor, was sentenced Friday in connection with $20,000 damage at a L'Assumption, Que., factory.

A jury found him guilty May 30 of inciting workers to damage products on the Hupp, Canada Ltd. assembly lines during a rally at the factory May 29, 1974.

Finance Minister John Turner brings down his budget tonight, and it is expected to be his toughest in 3½ years as finance minister.

He will start reading the budget speech at 5 p.m., Victoria time, and coverage of the budget will be carried on Channel 8 starting at 5:30 and Channels 2 and 6 starting at 7 p.m.

U.K. WAGE BRAKES?

LONDON (Reuter) — Leaders of Britain's powerful trade unions and the governing Labor party united today in a call to workers to put the brakes on wage demands.

The call came in a statement by the liaison committee of the Trades Union Congress and the Labor party after a meeting attended, among others, by Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Jack Jones, leader of the country's biggest union, the Transport and General Workers.

Jones has said that the country must have a price freeze to ensure co-operation from workers in cutting wage demands. In return, he has suggested a flat-rate wage increase instead of separate bargaining by unions.

The committee statement said: "A price target would need to be backed up by subsidies where necessary with an equally sharp deceleration in the level of wage increases."

It added: "An agreed counter-inflation program will maintain employment and living standards taking the next 12 months as a whole and provide the foundation for renewed economic growth and a move forward for living standards in the future."

Featherbedding Article Stops the Presses

LONDON (Reuter) — Printers halted the presses of the mass-circulation News of the World Saturday night in a protest against an article by Lord George-Brown suggesting the paper is overstaffed.

The article made the point in a lengthy argument that Britain is appproaching economic disaster because of excessive wage demands and lack of productivity.

Lord George-Brown, former foreign secretary and controlersial figure in a previous Labor government, said Britain is only weeks away from disaster and only the most drastic action can stave it off.

"What do I mean by disaster?" he wrote. "It is when our money is no longer accepted."

Lord George-Brown said one of the problems is overmanning in industry. He cited as an example The News of the World itself, whose 5.7 million circulation is the largest in Britain.

The article said: "There is, I judge, no reader of this paper nor any of those setting the type for others to read who doesn't know how many underemployed or non-employed are being carried on the payroll."

Officials of the printers' union, the National Graphical Association, demanded space to print a reply.

When space was declined they stopped the presses. The management refused to give way and production resumed after seven hours in which about two million copies of the paper were lost.

Mother Cecilia Loses

B.C. Court of Appeal today dismissed an appeal by Mother Cecilia and four other plantiffs aganst a B.C. Supreme Court judgement, given by Mr. Justice Harry McKay last January.

Today's decision brings the case, which has been in litigation by one or more plaintiffs since 1972, to a close. Cecil Branson, representing the Society of the Love of Jesus, said after the court's decision.

At stake was control of the society, located at St. Mary's Priory, 567 Goldstream. The society operates a hospital for the chronically ill and a senior citizens' home and has assets estimated at more than $2 million.

The supreme court action, heard last fall, had plaintiffs Mother Cecilia and Sisters Mary Agnes Eaton, Mary Josephine Donovan, Mary Lucy Forde and Mary Julia Kelly arguing they were the only legitimate members of the society and so entitled to exclsive use of the property.

The society disputed that position and argued the plaintiffs were no longer society members.

Branson told the appeal court today that the appelants of Mr. Justice McKay's decision failed to file transcripts of evidence from the five-week trial within 60 days of filing appeal as required by court rules.

This delay, he said, caused prejudice to the society in the administration of its affairs.

Hugh McMillan, representing Mother Cecilia and the other appelants, said his clients haven't got the money to file all the transcripts and suggested this be limited to certain areas of the trial. He asked for an extension time.

The appeal court noted that Branson took the position in writing to McMillan that compliance with court rules would be insisted on and that McMillan only ordered "something" after he became aware of a motion being made to quash the appeal.

McMillan had not taken proper steps to reduce the transcripts and that the 11 gounds of appeal appeared to raise all of the issues which were before the trial judge.

This is, the appeal court ruled, a proper case to apply court rules and there were not sufficient grounds for an extension of time.

Branson's motion, therefore, was allowed and the appeal dismissed.

Lisbon March Slated

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Communist party told its militants to stay away from a big Socialist party rally tonight in an apparent bid to put the blame on the Socialists if any trouble develops.

The Communist party's information and propaganda section said members should not participate in the Socialist march to the presidential palace "in any form."

At the same time, the Portuguese Council of Bishops condemned anti-church violence and the "hate, intolerance and violence" to which it said Roman Catholics are subject in Portugal.

The statement commented on the incident a week ago in which leftists stoned nearly 1,000 Catholics who were demonstrating in support of efforts by the patriarchate to recover the church radio station seized by Communist-led employees.

The council restated its support for Antonio Cardinal Ribeira, patriarch of Lisbon, and said the attack represented "a threat to the fundamental liberties of the people and the Catholic church."

JOB VACANCIES SHOW INCREASE

OTTAWA (CP) — The average number of job vacancies rose by 4,300 or 7.1 per cent in the three months ending May 31 over the previous three-month period, Statistics Canada reported today.

Vacancy rates remained unchanged in Ontario and British Columbia while Quebec's rate was down.

The agency said the number of vacancies for full-time, part-time and casual jobs increased to 64,800 from 60,500.

In the latest three month period, vacancies for full-time jobs increased four per cent to 57,000 while the number of longer-term vacancies—jobs unfilled for more then four weeks—decreased seven per cent.

The comparative vacancy rates by region and province showed increases from the three months ending Feb. 28, in the Atlantic and Prairie provinces.

Another N-Test Slated Saturday

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — Another megaton-range nuclear device — the second in less than a week — will be detonated Tuesday at the Nevada test site by scientists facing a possible treaty with Russia banning such tests in the future.

Scientists said the weapon, code-named "Camembert," has a yield of 200 kilotons to 1 megaton (one megaton is equivalent to a million tons of dynamite). Although it will be buried more than 4,000 feet beneath the surface of a desert plateau, persons as far away as Las Vegas, Nev., 120 miles distant, will probably feel a small tremor.

The energy research and development administration said persons in the upper levels of high-rise buildings in Las Vegas would be most likely to be shaken by the blast, set to go off at 6 a.m.

Residents of the 70-year-old Adobe Exchange Club in Beatty, Nev., located about 35 miles from ground zero, will be evacuated, as they were during the last test, officials said.

The last test, which occurred last Thursday, registered 5.6 on the Richter scale at the Cal Tech seismology laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., but there was no damage.

'Berries Sold at Loss'

Saanich Peninsula strawberry growers have been forced to sell at a loss because of foreign berry imports.

"If there's to be any change, it'll be a further drop in our prices," Stan Klubi, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, said today.

Klubi said imports are being sold at a wholesale price of about 35 cents a pound whereas local prices are sold at about 40 to 45 cents a pound.

"We're already selling at a loss and there is little we can do other than to continue cutting prices to stay in the market," said Klubi.

Pint-sized containers sold for 50 cents at the roadside last year and 45 cents if people picked their own. Klubi said he hopes these prices will remain the same this year.

He said another problem plaguing growers has been the scarcity of rain. Growers are worried about the quality of the crop.

The size of the strawberries depends on the rain, he said. The more rain, the larger the berry.

"The real test comes in the next week and a half . . . if the rain doesn't continue, then we'll be in real trouble."

Besides the rain factor, if the weather suddenly becomes hot, the berries will ripen too quickly and be small.

"We estimate the strawberry yield will be about 150 tons this year, which is about average . . . but anything could happen between now and the beginning of the harvest season next week," Klubi said.

the weather

A weather system over the southern coastal regions of B.C. is expected to continue drifting southeastward reaching Washington state tonight. Periods of rain associated with this disturbance are occurring at many localities on the south coast while a few showers are reported north of this system. This weather will gradually decrease today with conditions continuing to improve on Tuesday. Over the interior regions unsettled conditions will prevail today and Tuesday with a few showers isolated thundershowers expected late in the day on both days.

Confession Of a 'Running Dog'

NA SAI VILLAGE, Laos (AP) — The village police chief was nervous behind the microphone Sunday as a tropical sun blazed down on 700 people who came to hear his confession.

"The imperialist Americans taught me how to be rich, how to get money from the villagers, how to go to the nightclub," he muttered under the gaze of rifle-toting pro-Communist Pathet Lao soldiers.

"I am wrong. I am the running dog of the imperialsit Americans and a reactionary."

The police chief, in his 40s, was not shot. In the end he walked away, although uncertain about the future.

This drama is going on all over Laos, an Indochinese kingdom rapidly tilting to the control of the leftist Pathet Lao. Theoretically the Pathet Lao is just one element in a coalition government—the Provisional Government of National Union—formed of rightist, leftist and neutralist elements.

HYDRO HIKE SEEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — According to David Cass-Beggs, chairman of British Columbia Hydro, both domestic and industrial users of electricity can expect rate increases following the recent 30-per-cent contract settlement with linemen.

The only question left is when the rates will go up, he said.

While rates do not necessarily have to increase with every contract settlement, the outlook is for increased rates tied to the rise in the cost of living, he said, adding that may not come until next year.

Cass-Beggs also said that eventually all increased costs will have to be reflected in increased rates to public.

Earlier this week, Bob Williams, Resources Minister, and a director of Hydro, said he didn't think the contract settlement would affect costs to consumers.

Slide Kills Seven

KAGOSHIMA, Japan (Reuter) — Seven members of two families died in a landslide caused by rain at Tarumizu in the southern Japanese district of Kagoshima, police said.

Victim's Word Alone Good

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang said on the weekend he will propose an amendment to the Criminal Code allowing the courts to convict a rapist on the word of his victim.

He told delegates at the first national conference of Rape Crisis Centres this and other amendments to the Criminal Code will be presented to Paliament before it recesses for the summer and will be law, he hopes, before the end of the year.

As the law stands, if there is no corroberative evidence, the judge must tell the jury it is unsafe to convict an accused rapist.

"The present law says if in effect the word of the rape victim has less value than the word of the accused. In a sense the victim is on trial," Lang told delegates.

Another problem with this law, he said, if a judge incorrectly instructs the jury, the accused may call for a new trial, and the rape victim is put through another ordeal.

In a question period after Lang's speech, several women in the audience praised the amendment, but criticized other rape-related amendments the justice minister proposed in May.

Their main complaint was the laws still treat rape as a sexual assualt, thus a thing of shame, while the women felt it should be treated as a personal assault.

Lang said such a radical change in the law would take time. "We have to discuss these things with the provinces, because after all, they are the ones who must administer the laws."

Methadone Users Dip

The number of methadone users in British Columbia has been reduced because of new controls on the use of the drug, Human Resources Minister Norm Levi said Friday.

Speaking during debate on his spending estimates, the minister said letters went out to doctors and those involved in methadone clinics outlining the dangers of methadone use.

Tit-for-Tat Slayings

BELFAST (UPI) — A weekend flare-up of fighting between Protestants and Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland left five persons dead of gunshot wounds, three of them teenage youths.

A sixth person was killed in the Irish Republic, apparently as a result of a feud between opposing factions of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Police said the Ulster killings were part of a recent spate of tit-for-tat assassinations carried out by militants from both the majority Protestant and minority Roman Catholic communities.

The death toll for sectarian violence in the province now stands at 104 since Jan. 1, despite a four-and-one-half-month-old ceasefire by the Catholic-supported IRA.

IRA leaders want to drive the British out of Northern Ireland and make it a part of the Irish Republic — something the province's Protestants oppose — and have been blamed for a large part of the more than 1,300 killings here in the past six years.

Police said two 16-year-old Protestants shot to death Sunday night on a north Belfast street were killed in retaliation for the deaths of the weekend's three other victims —all Roman Catholics.

One, a 19-year-old, died Friday night when three men broke into his west Belfast home and shot him as he watched television. A second was gunned down as he walked home from work on the same day. He died Sunday.

The third Roman Catholic was shot several times in the head and his body dumped in a billy area north of the city early Sunday.

An extremist group called the Protestant action force claimed responsibility for all three killings.

Police in Eire said Christopher Phelan, 48, may have been stabbed to death near Sallins, 20 miles west of Dublin, after stumbling across bombers trying to derail a train full of IRA supporters.

His body was found stabbed and beaten near where a bomb went off, badly damaging the main Cork-Dublin rail link. The device exploded moments after a train passed by with hundreds of supporters of the IRA on their way to a rally.

BORN TOO SOON... THEY JUST DREAM

The housewives enjoy the idea of becoming invovled in Lady Catterley type situations, but are frightened to turn their fantasy into reality because of the danger to family life.

The book, Voices From the Middle Class, by journalist Jane Deverson and psychologist Katharine Lindsay, bases its findings on a survey of couples living in two London suburbs.

"One housewife dreamed of a truck driver, while one elegant lady found stimulation in the presence of workmen who had moved in to do up the house next door," the book says.

The survey found that some housewives felt they had missed out on the permissive society and others complained their husbands were cold and bored.

Men also took refuge in imagined sexual exploits rather than breaking up a family by an affair, the book says.

Another Protest Over Garrison

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian government this week will be despatching another strong diplomatic note to the United States government concerning new developments in the Garrison water diversion project.

Dan McKenzie, Progressive Conservative MP for Winnipeg South Centre, said Monday he was informed by officials in the secretary of state for external affairs department that the new note is in preparation.

"They advised me that the note was in preparation and would be sent to Washington this week," he told FP Publications.

Opposition and government members have been protesting in the house that the Garrison project must be stopped before it pollutes Manitoba waters.

Canadian government Environment Minister Jean Sauve at a meeting in New York earlier this month said that strong public pressure is needed in the U.S. to stop construction of the controversial project now proceeding in North Dakota.

"The whole scheme is madness," Sauve said after addressing the Earthcare Conference on the Environment.

"We have protested it very vociferously . . . all the way up the line to the state department."

But External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen has been more restrainted.

He has expressed confidence, not shared by the opposition, that the U.S. would honour its pledge that no construction would be undertaken that would endanger Canadian waters.

New information that MacKenzie brought to the attention of the House has suggested that the U.S. government was not made aware of all the facts in connection with this project.

More funds are to be voted to the project by June 25 in Washington and the government and opposition members in Canada want to make clear to Washington the strong protests that have been aroused in this country before the U.S. provides the funds and gives final clearance to the scheme to proceed.

MacEachen is in Japan this week attending a Canadian-Japan ministerial conference. Mackenzie said Monday it is his understanding the note from Canada will go forward without waiting for MacEachen to return from Japan.

Female Chauvinist Jingoes

So Gihan Sadat and Leah Rabin, helpmates of the leaders of Egypt and Israel, maintain that if women ruled the world there would be no more wars?

"Can you imagine battalions of women fighting among themselves?" said Mrs. Rabin last week at the world conference of International Women's Year.

Mrs. Sadat said wars would end only when women were in key positions of power.

Even ignoring the recent examples of Indira Gandhi and Golda Meir leading their countrymen into battle against Pakistan and the Arabs, there's enough evidence to the contrary to shout female chauvinist jingo at the two distinguished wives and mothers.

Theirs is the old moral superiority arguments of the suffragettes, trotted out in new clothes. Since women first started agitating for the vote, feminists have argued that once women could take part in elections, occupy political office and positions of authority, then ipso facto, the world would naturally be a better place. Women were morally superior to the crass and violent males who ran things exclusively then, because women occupied a refined moral strata.

Forget about the warlike statements of some militant spokespersons of the modern women's movement. Even the politer days of the struggle for female suffrage offer sufficient examples of female bellicosity to make even a Roman centurion tremble a little.

Who can forget saloon-smasher Carrie Nation who terrorized peaceable drinkers on the Kansas plains with her little hatchet in the 1890s (and who also campaigned against tobacco, foreign food, corsets, short skirts and paintings of nudes)?

Emmaline Pankhurst, the preeminent English suffragette, added arson and bomb-throwing to the feminists' arsenal, and when the First World War rolled around she became an ardent recruitment propagandist.

In Canada and other parts of the British empire, women were some of the war's most vociferous cheerleaders. German womanhood acted no differently. Nor did the granting of the vote to women and the passage of 20 years make much difference in the Second World War.

Farther back in time, Queen Elizabeth I and Catherine the Great were certainly no pacifists. Molly Pitcher is a revered American revolutionary war heroine who manned (personed?) her husband's cannon after he was prostrated by heat and our own Laura Secord is remembered for her contribution to defeating the Americans in the War of 1812.

No wars with women rulers? Not just yet ladies.

A Little Hokum in Ottawa

Canadians could be excused if they were suspicious that they are being hoodwinked by their federal government in advance of this evening's budget. We have been warned that this must be a time of sacrifice in terms of wage increases because the times demand it. At the same time, our neighbors south of the border are being fed tax rebate cheques, not sacrifice.

This is strange in view of the fact that both nations face the same economic problems: inflation and recession. According to the laws of economics, the solution should be the same for both countries. However, economics is an inexact science for many reasons, the chief of which is that it is a game ruled by politicians. And the political realities in Canada and the United States are as different as night and day.

To put it baldly, President Ford has to find a way to get re-elected next year, while Prime Minister Trudeau does not have to face the voters until 1979. Therefore U.S. citizens can expect favors from their government while Canadians can anticipate a call for sacrifice. Voters always get good news in a pre-election period and bad news for two or three years afterwards. Canada is still in a bad news period.

And Trudeau has indicated that Canadians can expect bad news from the budget if they are thinking in terms of getting large salary increases this year. The rationale for this call for restraint is the well-publicized worry that Canada will price itself out of world markets if wages continue to rise so quickly. This is true but it always has been true and always will be true.

However, this economic reality is never alluded to by the government of the day immediately prior to an election. The only consolation from all this is that after we make our sacrifices this year we can look forward to income tax rebates in late 1977 or early 1978.

In the meantime we will be subjected to a few sacrifices and a little dash of hokum.

Transport Mess Is in Ottawa

OTTAWA — Convention demands that a journalist not just shoot from the hip but instead collect all available facts on a given subject, then set these down in a logical order, and lastly arrive at a judgment that is balanced, objective and fair. Every now and then it's better just to stand up and shout "Rubbish."

Rubbish. Or, if you prefer, pretentious nonsense, warm air, a non-idea wrapped in verbal mush. Any and all of these are the only way to adequately describe Transport Minister Jean Marchand's long-awaited transportation policy.

National Policy

Stick to the rules of journalism and you might actually be impressed by the cadence of chapter titles in his policy document—"Policy Framework"; "determinants of Policy within the Framework"; "Proposed Policy Principles" "Implications of the Framework and Principles" — and not notice that at the end of all of them is a set of conclusions that could be squeezed on to the back of an envelope.

Or you risk, in the frantic struggle to be fair, taking seriously a policy declaration that promises as a "basic difference" between new and old that transportation now will be used as "an instrument of national policy" and not just a means to move people and goods. Since Samuel Champlain, and certainly since the Rideau Canal was built in mid-19th century to rush troops to the border in case the Americans were coming, transportation has been synonymous with politics and remains so today, in the $60-million-a-year subsidies for ferries to P.E.I. and Newfoundland, the famous or infamous if you live in the west Crows' Nest Pass freight rates and the extravagant Mirabelle airport for Montreal.

The problem isn't that Marchand began with a mountain and has produced a mouse. It is rather that he began with a mouse and now is trying to build a mountain.

Transportation, said Marchand a year ago, "is in a mess." To correct this assumed shambles he proposes to do away with the National Transportation Act and create, through "active government leadership" a new system that will be "accessible, equitable and efficient."

Noble words that are pointed at the wrong target. The fact, obvious once uttered, is that our transportation system isn't in a mess. All things considered, it's in fair shape. You can drive almost anywhere in speed and in safety. Our railways are incomparably better than those in the U.S. Air Canada has its image problems these days but its actual performance is one of the best among international carriers.

We do have problems, some of them serious: Labor disputes have blockaded Quebec ports and halted grain shipments through Vancouver; there are inequities in western freight rates; public transit systems are grossly under-funded.

These problems will yield to immediate, common-sense solutions. Marchand's papers contain one, and public transit systems are not even mentioned.

The mess instead is in Marchand's own department. Too many senior officials are impractical academics. Energy is wasted by bureaucratic wars between the department and the regulatory agency, the Canadian Transport Commission.

Buried beneath the verbal salesmanship in Marchand's document is a single, specific conclusion. Many of the powers handed over to the transport commission in 1967 should be handed back again to the department of transport. This is a sensible step though it amounts to not a great deal more than organizational elegance since a skilled politician—Don Jamieson did it when he was transport minister—can work his way around any terms of reference.

Fares Will Rise

To dismiss Marchand's documents in their entirety would be glib. One section points out, quite correctly, that given the level of subsidies to planes, trains and private automobiles we'd be better off to give people free bus tickets to travel from one city to another. Marchand also is quite right to forecast that passenger fares in built-up areas will have to rise so that money becomes available to improve the system elsewhere.

The transportation industry's need for capital will roughly double, to about $2.5 billion a year.

Naughty Children

This is International Women's Year when the theory is to honor women in all levels of public endeavor. I can therfore no longer hold my peace while people like Nikola Pavelic and his dissidents continue to scream doom and gloom about the affairs of the symphony. While in Victoria I have been curious about the constant barrage of abuse heaped on the president of the symphony and her board. Like Audrey Johnson, I feel it is indeed time for the membership to take a long, dispassionate view at what really has been taking place. I for one wish to compliment her for having the courage to say so, and the president for refusing to allow the orchestra and the society to be destroyed by a public debate. Here are two women who deserve a little honor. If Mr. Pavelic is a gentleman, he will not deny them this.

It seems that a good many of the members do not really care to learn the facts. It is far easier to write what they are told when they are told. While in Victoria I found it a fascinating occupation to seek out some of the truth by asking around. It would appear that the mastermind in this whole drama is a former publisher, with Mr. Pavelic the mouthpiece. Now there is an interesting situation! The antics of these people have been absolutely incredible the past seven months. We are constantly being forecefed into believing that the board of the symphony is so bad that only the director can be the Joan of Arc rushing into the breach to save us all. Come now, Pavelic! The very fact that the director and the orchestra have been able to attain acclaimed heights should make everyone realize that the board has supported Laszlo Gati in some degree by providing him with most of his demands — otherwise we would have had a far less satisfactory season. Despite the organized harassment the board has had to endure publicly and the sabotaging of campaigns for funds, business has carried on as usual. It makes one wonder whether the dissident group could have conducted themselves in such a restrained and responsible manner had the situation been reversed. One very important fact emerges. A board has to be dedicated and believe in a cause to continue under such intolerable circumstances.

It has been inferred many times over that the board has not courted Canada Council sufficiently. Really? It was very easy to establish from various sources that in the past 18 months the president has phoned the Canada Council at least once a month at 6 a.m. Victoria time, that the president was one of several symphony presidents more than a year ago who sought and received a hearing with the head of Canada Council, that two members of the Canada Council were invited here by the board in February to hear the orchestra and hold discussions. Confirmation was given that there were reasons (other than those alleged by the dissidents) for larger grants not being given.

Mr. Pavelic has alleged that it is the sole function of the board to raise money. I would suggest that he look again at the society's bylaws. The pertinent clause could be summed up in the term "stewardship" which is very important in the running of such an important organization.

The president and the board have been accused of being "insensitive" concerning the musicians. Where were the dissidents when a principal player in the orchestra badly needed a decent instrument which he couldn't afford? They were too busy plotting and scheming like naughty children behind the barn. By enquiring around I learned quite by accident just how generous the president has been towards those orchestra members who sought her help, including advancing a large sum of money for the purchase of the instrument just mentioned.

Mr. Pavelic has more than once mentioned the manager's salary. I enquired about that, too. No wonder the board increased it. Even a junior teller at the bank receives almost as much And with more than 20 masters to please and the constant pressures created over the last few months, twice the amount isn't worth it.

The dissidents have a few things to answer for. For instance, their various epistles were sent out to the full symphony membership. But no prior authorization was requested or received from the management or the board to use the official membership list which is held in the symphony office. Pavelic glibly quotes items which are in board minutes, and quite often access has been mysteriously obtained to documents which had not yet come up for discussion at board meetings.

One more question. What about the secret membership meetings being held by the dissidents? Basically the wealthy and elite have been invited, but not, I notice all levels of members. The dissident "shadow cabinet" has been meeting regularly to groom them for election to the board on June 26. This is hardly what one would call democracy in action. It would seem that the dissidents, after all, were only interested in wresting power from the rightfully-elected board. Wake up symphony members! You're being led down the garden path!

There is much more I have learned about the controversy, but is it really worth boring everyone about something which really only represents less than two per cent of the population?

And Mr. Pavelic, please don't bother replying to me. Your arguments have become very stale, repetitive and tiresome. I return to England where civilized concert-goers trust their boards to do what is right, because they recognize that the directors have all the facts; where no professional music director and conductor would think of detracting from the music by speech-making during concert-time. It just isn't done, Mr. Gati! — E. Lord, 14 Bryanston Square, London.

Nominate the Gull

Professor Tatum, by a curious process of elimination, has made out a case for his protege, the varied thrush, a most undistinguished (if amiable) bird, entirely lacking in any outstanding qualities which would qualify for provincial status.

Most important, it is doubtful if one British Columbian in a hundred (outside, of course, the large body of dedicated ornithologists) would recognize a varied thrush but would simply dismiss it as a sort of Robin, possibly immature, and a provincial emblem is something that everyone must easily recognize.

It would be rash to name any one of our better-known and outstanding birds for the position, as Professor Tatum could shoot down any candidate as cavalierly as he does Steller's jay. Surely the fact that Steller was not a Canadian is irrelevant, as in his day Canada did not exist as a country. Would he banish the Dogwood (cornus nuttallii) as our provincial flower on the ground that Nuttall was not a Canadian?

Surely the obvious choice, possibly too obvious to mention, is the bird which has for generations been associated with, at least, coastal British Columbia, but familiar to every resident of the province, the poetry of motion when in flight, revolting when at rest. I refer of course to our own glaucous-winged gull, whose arrogant and omnivorous characteristics should ensure it a speedy endorsement by our provincial legislature. — N. T. Porter, 245 Linden Avenue.

Sincere Thanks

The contributions to the annual Mothers' Day Tea drive, carried out by members of the Victoria chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, are nearly all in.

Members of the Victoria Chapter wish to express their sincere thanks to the generous donors whose donations made this year's drive the most successful to date.

The funds raised are used to help to keep research projects on-going, so that hopefully, a cure or control for cystic fibrosis will be found.

Thank you for helping to "give a child the breath of life." — Dave Allen, CFF.

Young Denied

I could not help smiling when I read Pip Holmes extolling the great service which the real estate business has provided for B.C.

I realize that we are in the throes of inflation but real estate values are just out of reach of the average person. This situation has been created by greed and the high mortgage rates charged by our financial institutions. This means that the average young couple starting out in married life just cannot contemplate the purchase of a house which, in my view in a rich country like Canada, should be a right. Of course this also refers to the acquisition of a condominium.

The average young couple looking for an apartment is frowned on if they happen to be in their early 20s. Of course because of rent controls, apartment construction has just dried up in B.C. However, this lack of apartments is not peculiar to B.C. but is general in all provinces. In spite of the condemnation of rent controls I shudder to think of what would have happened to the many elderly people, pioneers of our country, who lived in fear and trepidation of a rent increase which they just could not afford. I have seen such distress in rich Victoria.

Of course we must preserve "free enterprise" but in Victoria all real estate firms, except one, charge exactly the same commission 6 per cent. Incidently the rate was increased from five to six per cent without any negotiations with the public.

I do not believe that land is a commodity like a car or a refrigerator and consequently should not be traded as a commodity for profit. Land of course is a non-renewable natural resource.

When our young people see a house advertised for $335,000 they must wonder if the system is right which will allow a fellow citizen to pay such a price for a dwelling when they are excluded from owning even a modest shelter. However Pip Holmes seems to be quite happy with the situation.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of June 23, 1915.

In various city council business, a special committee of aldermen on drinking reported that the best course to be adopted would be removal of the causeway fountain to Wharf and Government streets, and the erection of a new fountain at Yates and Douglas, at a cost of $125. A recommendation by the city electrician that Victoria purchase 3,000 new nitrogen-filled incandescent lamps of 40 candlepower for use in the cluster street lights was referred to committee. The Victoria Medical Society also said it will send a delegation to the next council committee meeting with regard to the dangers of the increasing use of the drugs morphine and cocaine in the city.

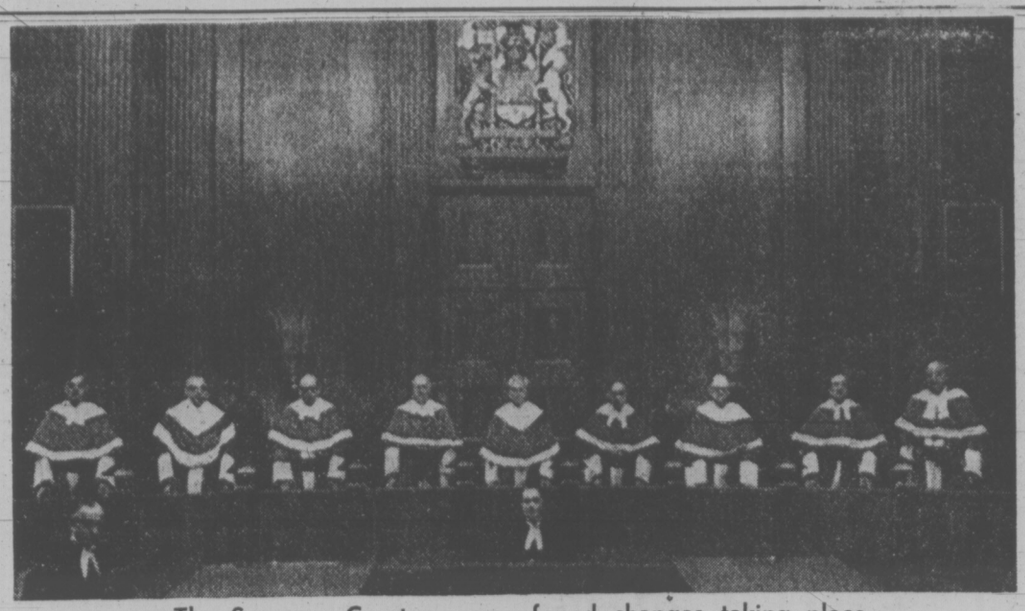
Deep Split In Canada's Top Court

By RAE CORELLI
Toronto Star



The Supreme Court . . . profound changes taking place

Seventeen months after Bora Laskin became its 14th chief justice amid buoyant expectation, the Supreme Court of Canada is more sharply divided than ever before in its 100-year history.

The split is mirrored in the repeated inability of the nine judges of the nation's highest court to reach unanimity in disposing of the important cases that come before them. But it goes far beyong mere disagreement on how to interpret and apply the law, which is common among judges in courts everywhere.

What's happening, say legal scholars, is that the opinions of the Supreme Court have begun to bear the imprint of deeply conflicting philosophies —about the relationship of the citizen to the state, the corporation to the community, even about the nature and destiny of the court itself.

Voting Blocs

Personal ideology is vying more frequently with traditional rule-book law in the judging process and there have begun to emerge what look suspiciously like voting blocs.

A similar thing overtook the United States Supreme Court in the late 1930s when the appointment of Justices William O. Douglas and Hugo Black introduced what Yale Law School's Prof. Robert H. Bork once described as "the mood of attack, reform, impatience with considerations other than social results."

That mood has possessed a segment of the U.S. court ever since. The appearance of something resembling it in our senior court is regarded by one observer as "a very significant development."

It is necessarily a bad thing? Not at all, say the best-informed court watchers. However, they add, it's important that both lawyers and laymen understand the profound and probably irreversible changes taking place and adjust their expectations accordingly.

Those changes, says one prominent legal authority, flow from the heightened national interest in social and political issues—women's rights, Indian rights, abortion, censorship.

"Cases are perceived by the news media and the lawyers as involving much more in the way of general policy than ever before," he says. "The kinds of cases going to the Supreme Court reflect this perception. Lawyers' arguments before the court become much more sophisticated, more 'policy-oriented', and the national disability of the court increases because what is going on there is in line with national interests, popular interests."

The judges, in turn, become aware they have "acquired" new audiences and this escalates their latent division of opinion. These issues first polarize the public, then they polarize the lawyers and, finally, they polarize the judges."

An example is the breathalyzer and due-process safeguards set out in the Canadian Bill of Rights. These have collided regularly on the floor of the court ever since the breathalyzer was introduced more than five years ago. Sorting out on of these wrangles after another has driven the judges apart—not, ironically, on breath tests but as to when the Bill of Rights ought to be invoked to strike down unjust or discriminatory laws or procedures.

In one of the most recent cases, a Nova Scotia motorist called Hogan appealed his conviction for having a blood-alcohol level greater than .08 per cent on the grounds that police refused to let him talk to his lawyer before he took the test. This, Hogan argued, contravened the Bill's guarantee of a right to counsel.

The majority of the judges held that while being denied access to counsel would have justified a refusal to provide the breath sample, the fact that Hogan did provide it created evidence both relevant and admissible.

LASKIN

The minority held that evidence obtained in those circumstances should always be inadmissible in order to make certain that police respected the rights of an accused as defined by the Bill of Rights.

But perhaps the most vivid illustration of how the court has become polarized is contained in the record of its performance since Jan. 7, 1974, when Bora Laskin was sworn in as chief justice.

From then until mid-May this year, the Supreme Court disposed of 217 cases. Sixty-four were dealt with summarily in oral judgments off the bench. Judgments were written in the remaining 153 cases and in 43 of those, or 28 per cent, there were dissents by one or more judges.

Most of those 153 cases yielded no great principles of law; the results were of interest chiefly to the parties and no one else.

But there were 16 cases — the widely publicized abortion appeal of Montreal's Dr. Henry Morgentaler is an example — that legal authorities agree ended in landmark decisions. And the voting patterns of the judges is striking evidence of the gulf that divides the court

In only one of the 16 cases was the judgment unanimous. That represents a phenomenal dissent rate of nearly 98 per cent.

Laskin and Mr. Justice Ronald Martland were on opposite sides in 14 dispositions. The 68-year-old, British-born Martland, a prosperous Edmonton lawyer when he was named to the bench 17 years ago, had been generally regarded two years ago as Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux's heir-apparent. But Prime Minister Trudeau disregarded the tradition of elevating the senior judge and picked Laskin instead.

The Spectrum

Almost as remarkable as Martland's opposition to Laskin — or vice-versa — was the support the latter got from Mr. Justice Wishart F. Spence.

The hard-working, sometimes crusty Spence, 70, was on the disenting side with Laskin on 11 occasions. They were both with the majority twice and on opposing sides only once.

Keeping Martland company at the far end of the spectrum from Laskin and Spence are the Quebec members of the court — Justices Louis Philippe de Grandpre, Louis-Philippe Pigeon and Jean Beetz. The three were together on the majority side seven times in the 10 cases on which they all sat.

Pigeon and Beetz were allied on 10 occasions. Beetz, in fact, never dissented.

The positions of De Grandpre, Pigeon and Beetz are explained partly by the fact that French-Canadian jurists tend to be more conservative than their English-speaking counterparts and partly by their backgrounds.

De Grandpre, 58, was a wealthy Montreal insurance lawyer, the club-going holder of several corporate directorships and a past president of the Canadian Bar Association. He once said the rules of evidence protected criminals "from redemption."

Pigeon, 70, held considerable power in Quebec politics as a legal adviser to former Liberal premier Jean Lesage.

At 48, Jean Beetz is the youngest member of the court, a former constitutional adviser to Prime Minister Trudeau and a former dean of the University of Montreal faculty of law. Those who predicted he would be a modestly innovative liberal have been rewarded with precious little evidence.

Sandwiched between the extremes in the line-up are Justices Roland Ritchie, Wilfred Judson and Brian Dickson.

Ritchie, 65, dissented three times and went with the majority in 12 of the 15 cases he appeared on. The Maritimer on the Supreme Court, he was badly wounded during World War II service with the artillery. He has a reputation for methodical thought but is no innovator.

Judson, 73, was on the minority side three times and with the majority 13 times. Years ago, he taught Latin at Parkdale Collegiate and, with Laskin and Spence, completes Ontario's membership on the bench.

The eighth judge is Manitoba's Brian Dickson, 59, who, with Ronald Martland, represents the West.

Keenly perceptive and more liberal than he was thought to have been, Dickson is the least predictable jurist on the court and its widely respected swing man. Out of 12 cases, he voted with the majority in eight and dissented in four. He has sided with Laskin and Spence often enough that their minority judgments are referred to by court insiders as "LSDs."

Finally, there is Laskin, the 62-year-old son of an immigrant Latvian Jew who set up a furniture business in Thunder Bay. Laskin was, in 1965, the first Jew ever named to the Ontario Court of Appeal and became, in 1970, the first on the Supreme Court of Canada

He never practised law but during a 28-year career as law teacher, author and arbitrator, his intellect and his grasp of both constitutional and labor law earned him a national reputation for legal scholarship.

Now, as chief justice, he is the No. 1 apostle of change, flexibility and a broader role for the nation's court of last resort. His judgments reveal his impatience with those who argue that judges should strive solely to apply the letter of the law as enacted by Parliament and avoid interpreting it to achieve socially desirable objectives.

In an interview shortly before he took over the top job, Laskin commented: "It is too easy for judges to say that if the law needs to be changed, that is the responsibility of Parliament."

Traditionalists

That conviction has probably alienated him totally and forever from the diehard traditionalists — De Grandpre, Pigeon and Beetz — and to a somewhat lesser extent from Ritchie, Judson and Martland. He stands alone with Wishart Spence, joined now and then by Dickson.

Five years ago, Bora Laskin said in another interview that "no responsible judge can make a fetish of dissent."

But in the 16 major cases of the past 16 months, he has sided with the majority only four times, less often than any other judge. His influence on his colleagues is reflected by the fact that although he is by far the best labor lawyer on the Supreme Court, he consistently fails to win majority support in labor cases. That is polarization.

Attrition coud easily swing the balance, of course. Although he doesn't reach the mandatory retirement age of 75 until 1977, Wilfred Judson has for some time been rumored to be considering an earlier departure. Roland Ritchie has had bouts of ill-health and may elect to go as well.

Interestingly, many lawyers and lower-court judges don't evaluate the Supreme Court as an evolving institution but on the basis of its week-to-week performance.

One complaint is that too many judges are writing individual reasons concurring in the majority position. Parts of each of these have the force of law but in other areas they conflict and the result, says one lower-court judge, "is that you have one hell of a time trying to figure out just what the law is going to be from then on."

Says a prominent Toronto lawyer: "Why don't they just apply the bloody law and not worry about changing it?" Another says the nine judges "are living in little worlds of their own and what worries me is that they don't seem to have much fun."

But it is the division in the court that bothers most. "They just can't seem to bring themselves together," comments a provincial appellate court jurist.

It may be a long time before they do.

The Wrong Time For Tough Talk

THE NATION

The Administration's burst of tough talk, tough action in the wake of the collapse of Vietnam is hard to understand, since the policy of detente has fared better than might have been anticipated.

The tough action of the Mayaguez incident becomes more bizarre in retrospect as new facts are disclosed. But both before and since that action, the President, Kissinger and Schlesinger have been warning all and sundry not to test our resolve, despite the fact that no one seems inclined to do so.

Schlesinger has said that we would not show the same "restraint" in South Korea, should trouble erupt there, that we showed in Vietnam; "more vigorous" action would be taken.

What this implies is made clear in a dispatch from Seoul by Sam Jameson of the Los Angeles Times, in which he quotes an unnamed U.S. officer as saying that we would doubtless use tactical nuclear weapons rather than deploy "a lot of U.S. divisions."

The President keeps warning the universe that we are tough and ready. On the eve of his visit to Madrid, he tried to get Spain into NATO, while suggesting that Portugal might be ousted if has "a significant Communist element" in the government. At the same time, Kissinger keeps warning his amiable Russian opposite numbers not to test his reflexes, although he does not cite any specific provocations.

All three — Schlesinger, Ford and Kissinger — want to strengthen our "flanks" in the Mediterranean, meaning Turkey and Spain, at almost any price, and they oppose troop reductions in Europe and elsewhere even as our European allies cut their defense spending.

Yet the record on detente, if one may judge by surface events, does not justify this apprehension and the truculent talk it generates. The Russians and the Chinese have not tried to goad us about Vietnam; quite the contrary. The Soviets have, in fact, lost ideological prestige because of their obvious eagerness not to offend us.

There are signs, too, that the Soviets, far from gloating over the distressed state of the American economy, are worried about the possible effect of American inflation on future Soviet-U.S. trade. They seem anxious to avoid trouble in the Middle East. No doubt there are a number of reasons why Syria unexpectedly agreed to a six-months' extension of the peacekeeping force on the Golan Heights — Syrian-Iraqi tensions, Lebanese-Palestinian disputes, etc. — but it is a fair inference that the Russians did not oppose and may have encouraged the extension.

Against this background, we warn and scowl and threaten, even as news is leaked that for many years we have violated Russian territorial waters by the use of specially equipped electronic submarines for espionage purposes. The sources of these leaks — as reported by Seymour M. Hersh. in The New York Times — feel that the information sought could be acquired by less dangerous and provocative means and, besides, has no place in the current atmosphere of detente.

So why is the threesome of Ford, Kissinger and Schlesinger bent on being so frightful? Is it a reaction of frustration to the war in Vietnam or, as they insist, merely a desire to place everyone on notice that our spirits are high, our resolve strong and our willingness to intervene in troubled areas overseas still unimpaired? Perhaps their tough talk is based on some combination of these and other considerations.

But it is also a calculated attempt to appeal to the always latent martial ardor of the American people and to appease domestic conservative opinion — specifically, the right wing of the Republican Party — all by way of setting the stage for the 1976 election. The Russians have not been provocative nor have the Chinese, who would have reason to resent the slow progress toward full recognition.

So most of the talk about our not being a "paper tiger" and the like is addressed, if not exclusively, to Goldwater, Reagan, other right-wing Republicans — and hawks in general. These elements may not frighten our enemies but, to paraphrase what the Duke of Wellington said about some raw recruits, they seem to frighten the hell out of Ford.

Hudson High Carries On

russell baker

Remember Hudson High? Jack Armstrong's old school. It turned out go-getters in Jack's day, and it's still turning them out today.

Not for the graduates of Hudson High the sniveling, effete surrender to idleness and do-nothing resignation to unemployment which we see in the graduates of so many other schools this summer.

Hudson High men don't quit, and that goes for Hudson High women, too, like Lila Hermanax, who pooh-poohs the prophets of doom and gloom trying to tell her women can't make it in America any more.

"Pooh Pooh," Lila said to this interviewer, when asked if the depressed job market had made her give up her ambition to become a professional wrestler.

Then, laughing gaily, she lifted the school principal and pinned him with a body slam.

"There's still plenty of opportunity for people with imagination, thighs like boulders and arms that can crush a python," Lila said.

Is the market glutted with lady wrestlers? "Of course," said Lila. "That's why I'm going to be a gentleman wrestler. Let me show you."

And with a happy, "Pooh Pooh," she lifted a gentleman into a full nelson, shook him until his wallet fell out and dashed of with $7 in cash and a fistfull of credit cards.

Biff Armstrong, Jack's youngest son, is graduating this year, too. Will Jack waste time looking futilely for employment in his dad's old line of work — helping old women cross the street?

"Not on your life, pops," Biff told me. "That's the road to unemploymentsville. My old man said, 'Biff, there's still plenty of jobs for the boy who doesn't want to have everything handed to him on a silver platter. Look for something different.' "

Did Biff Anderson look? You bet your sweet patootie he did. He is a chip off the old block when it comes to initiative.

Did Biff find something? He sure did. Next week Biff starts on the night shift as a hit man for the Mafia.

Percy Pifflefinger, the class sissy, on account of being so smart, didn't waste any time either in getting on with his career.

Old Sissypants, as the fellows call him, is determined to become a crooked politician so that if he someday wants to kill somebody who called him a sissy he can do it without going to jail.

To achieve his goal, of course, he's got to get into college, so he kept his eyes open until he found a college president who was paying midnight calls to a woman not his wife, showed his snapshots to the prexy himself and could have his college diploma tomorrow if he weren't so intent on getting a good education in how to juggle books.

Theda's poor grades resulted from the fact that she spent most of the school year ignoring her home economics and concentrating on building an ingenious device for picking welfare cheques out of locked mailboxes.

Theda's device is so effective that her shop teacher wanted to graduate her summa cum laude in burglary-tool construction, but Theda forestalled this by having Lila Hermanax threaten, to break his back if he did anything that called her to the attention of the cops.

The Hudson High class of '75 swarms with young people like these who have refused to say "No" to America and believe that there is still plenty of opportunity for the person who seeks it. Take "Frenchie" Pomander, whose nickname comes from his easy mastery of foreign languages.

Will "Frenchie" waste valuable years of his youth collecting unemployment compensation while waiting for some threadbare translator to die at the United Nations? Not on your life.

"Frenchie" is going into a job-training program next week which will prepare him for a career bribing French government officials for a large American corporation.

Then Miss O'Hara read about the Central Intelligence Agency and discovered that it doesn't have enough female operatives on the payroll of its "dirty-tricks" division to satisfy government regulations against sexual discrimination. It looks like many a fat federal pay day ahead for Alma.

Is there a message here for kids in other graduating classes? You bet your bubble gum there is.

Hudson High is showing that if you've got enough imagination, initiative and good old American determination to make a buck without depending on Uncle Sam to hand it to you, America can still be the land of opportunity, depression or no depression.

Region Hires Planner

Don Holden, 33, has been appointed to the newly-created post of economist-planner with the Capital Regional Districts planning staff. He starts work July 2.

Holden has had six years of experience at the municipal and regional level in the metro Toronto area, where he has laregely specialized in assessing the impact of development on the urban tax base.

Capital Region planning director Peter Hammer said today Holden's duties will include conducting cost-benefit studies on major regional planning programs, and tax impact assessments.

One of his first tasks will be to tackle a comprehensive housing study for the region.

Hammer said no candidate has yet been selected for another new position — a transportation planner. The job has been advertised "throughout North America," he said, and has produced a good response from applicants.

Alta. Floodwaters Recede

By The Canadian Press

This year's flooding in southern Alberta claimed at least one life but property damage was not expected to be as high as during previous years as floodwaters started receeding early today.

RCMP at Fort Macleod said Sunday that Peter David Gambler, 20, of Standoff, Alta., died about Saturday night in the swollen waters of the Oldman River within the town limits.

While details were not released, officers said the death was directly related to the flooding.

Most of the danger in southwestern Alberta, attributed to heavy rains last week, had passed early today and the previously-anticipated high levels at Medicine Hat were not expected to be a problem.

Several southwestern towns reported washed-out roads and bridges but many persons returned to their homes during the weekend after being evacuated toward the end of the week.

The Medicine Hat Disaster Service Committee of Mayor Ted Grimm and Aldermen Pete Simpson and Tom Sissons said late Sunday the flood level would probably not reach the level indicated by earlier estimates. The city's last major flood was in 1953.

The only damage was to the city's largest park where one baseball diamond was washed out and several picnic sites were water-covered. There were no evacuations.

At one point Sunday, British and Canadian soldiers at the nearby Suffield base were placed on alert for possible sandbagging duty.

At Lethbridge, the Oldman River peaked at 24 feet Saturday night and dropped to 21 feet Sunday with damage minor confined to low-lying areas.

First reports in Lethbridge indicated the most serious damage was to the Valley Feeders Feedlot. Manager Dick Gray said about half the 8,000 head of cattle were moved to higher ground before a three-foot crest of water hit the lot.

CWO Charles Longson, 49, of maritime forces Pacific headquarters in CFB Esquimalt, receives the Order of Military Merit from Governor-General Jules Leger Longson received the award for 29 years of superior service.

45 Merit Awards Go to Milifary

Four women and 41 men of the armed forces received awards of Canada's Order of Military Merit in recent ceremonies at Government House in Ottawa.

Of these, eight went to British Columbians.

Victorians receiving the Order of Military Merit in the grade of member were Capt. Thomas Gardner, Capt. Robert Nicholson and CWO Longson.

Lt.-Col. Russell Choat of Maple Bay received the grade of officer and Commodore Douglas Learoyd of Anyox, the grade of commander. Lt.-Col. Charles Lilley of Vernon also received the grade of officer.

Other B.C. Servicemen receiving the award in the grade of member were Capt. Lillian Barraud of Salmon Arm and WO Norman Nash of Braylorn Mines.

Recipients ranged in rank from corporal to brigadier-general. It was the sixth such lists of appointments since the inception of the Order in July, 1972.

Former Tory Turns Down SC Offers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Darrel Warren, the former leader of the Progressive Conservative Party in B.C., said Saturday he has turned down offers from Social Credit Party members to run as a Social Credit candidate in either of two ridings in the next provincial election.

Warren said he has been asked to move either to the Boundary - Similkameen riding, currently represented by Frank Richter of the Social Credit Party, or to Okanagan North, held by Social Credit's Pat Jordan.

Warren said the offers came from the Social Credit Party members but he said he did not know if they had the sanction of the party leadership.

He said he turned down the offers because he is not sure what Social Credit stands for today.

Warren said he wants to remain in the conservative party and if he does decide to run again it will be as a conservative, opposing social credit leader Bill Bennett in Okanagan South.

HOW FAIR IS FAIR? TENANTS TO DECIDE

How fair should rents be?

That's the question that will be answered — according to the tenants themselves — when they meet Wednesday from 2 to 5 at the Senior Citizen Centre, Centennial Square.

Called by the B.C. Tenants Association, the hearing wants to get first-hand knowledge from renters on just how fair rents should be.

The comments from the meeting will be recorded and a brief presented the provincial government.

The association claims that landlords and others such as Rentalsman Barrie Clarke are trying to use the work of the commission as a way to abolish rent controls as they exist now.

The tenant organization wants the province to set up a province-wide rental housing authority; public hearings every September to recommend to the cabinet maximum allowable rents for different classes of premises; municipal rental groups to be able to vary these rate up or down subject to veto power by the province; and municipal bodies made up of representatives of landlords and tenants with an impartial chairman.

They claim rents are eating up as much as 60 per cent of some tenants' income and that rents are going up faster than operating costs.

They are also urging that rents be based on the ability to pay and in no case should exceed 15 per cent of income.

BRITISH ARE COMING ... DESPITE HISTORY

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The fact that British troops never entered Baltimore during the war of 1812 didn't seem to faze city officials who participated in a "re-enactment" of the mythical incident.

City council president Walter Orlinsky, chairman of the Baltimore Bicentennial Commission, replied "so what" when told the celebration — which depicted British soldiers arresting city officials — didn't match history.

"We're trying to heighten people's awareness of the approach of the Bicentennial, particularly the July 4 celebration," he said.

"Just because it never happened doesn't detract from it," said Mayor William Schaefer.

The "re-enactment" of the British invasion was staged Saturday at Flag House, the home of a young woman who made the Fort McHenry flag that inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star Spangled Banner."

It pays to be Civic-minded.

Some people talk about economy in terms of price. Others talk gas mileage. But we think a true economy car should have both. The Honda Civic is a result of that thinking.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Honda Civic got 49.2 miles per gallon in the highway test cycle.

As for price, we think it's the best value on four wheels. But don't take our word for it. The experts have already expressed it better than we ever could.

"...the Civic is the perfect antidote to the gasoline shortage and runaway prices, the two most pressing problems with which we have to deal..." (Road Test).

"The amazing Honda Civic combines driver comfort, quality, sporty appeal, and pure economy in the best match ever seen..." (Motor Trend).

The Honda Civic is a lot of car at any price. It has as much room inside as some mid-size cars. The Civic has front-wheel drive for better road hugging stability. It has a McPherson strut independent suspension on all four wheels, something that's quite rare on a small, economy car.

The Civic has an aluminum block, overhead cam engine. Power-assisted front disc brakes. Reclining bucket seats. Door-to-door carpeting, front and back. A rear window defroster. Flow-through ventilation with individual outlets. And much, much more. All, incredibly, as standard equipment. In a car that comes to you for under $3,000 and gives you such amazing gas mileage.

It's no wonder the Civic is the only car ever to be awarded the "Car of the Year" in Japan, three years in a row.

A Turning Point For White Rule?

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — The stage is set for a week which might mark a major turning point in the history of white rule in southern Africa. (See also Page 18).

The centrepiece of the week is Mozambique's achievement on Wednesday of independence from Portugal.

The repercussions of this event will inevitably be felt in South Africa and Rhodesia.

Both white-governed states border Mozambique, which begins its independence under a black socialist government.

As the Johannesburg Sunday Times put it: "From next Wedsesday, black Africa will be four hours drive from Pretoria."

The newspaper saw this as "the first major break in the 'cordon sanitaire' that isolated South Africa from the realities of this continent."

For the white-minority government of Rhodesia, which seized independence from Britain almost 10 years ago, Mozambique's independence might prove an even-more menacing occasion.

It is widely expected that independent Mozambique's leader, Samora Machel, will sever the trade links now extending between Rhodesia and the outside world through the Mozambique ports of Beira and Lourenco Marques.

But progress towards a settlement in Rhoesia might avert this. Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith is racing against time to demonstrate his willingness to reach accord with the Africans. He is reported about to convene a consititutional conference and an announcement of this might come on Tuesday at the opening of the Rhodesian Parliament in Salisbury.

But Smith has said a constitutional conference must be held in Rhodesia.

The African National Council, the main black 'African grouping, is insisting it should take place outside the country.

Meanwhile, Britain has begun to take a more-active role again in the unfolding events.

David Ennels, No. 2 at the British foreign office, is due here today on his way to the Mozambique celebrations and will have talks with all concerned—in Pretoria, Lourenco Marques and Salisbury.

Britain has indicated that, if Smith does not hold constitutional talks, the British government may call such a conference—with or without his attendance.

SOME LETTERS DEFY ANY REPLY

Oh, the Questions People Ask About Us!

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Jerry was in the sixth grade and in deep trouble. So he decided to sit down and write a most important letter, one which would determine his scholastic destiny for at least another year.

Getting straight to the point, he wrote: "I need your help. I'll fail my grade for sure unless I can do a pretty good project on your town so please send me lots of information that I can write about. This is real urgent."

It was a cri de coeur guaranteed to strike an answering chord of sympathy in even the most hard-nosed recipient. But, alas, there was no reply, no information for the anxiously waiting Jerry.

He forgot to write his address, you see. And as he simply signed his scruffy little note "Jerry," there was no possible clue as to his identity.

Jerry's was one of the more than 3,000 letters that poured into the Government Street offices of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce last year.

Roughly the same number will come this year, and hopefully — unless they repeat his unfortunate mistake — every one will be answered by Mrs. Judi Green, whose full-time job it is to cope with this formidable torrent of correspondence.

Long-winded letters full of splendid irrelevancies and tortuous syntax, short ones, pathetic ones, hilarious ones, seeking every type of information, advice and help imaginable, they come from all parts of Canada, the United States and — in lesser numbers — from just about every country in the world.

It's a service which, the chamber estimates, costs about $7,500 a year. For some years it has received a municipal contribution of $2,500 in recognition of the work load which the service takes off civic shoulders.

At first this cash came from the city of Victoria, but more recently it has been approved by the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee under a cost-sharing formula.

This year, however, the committee turned down the request. The rebuff obviously angered chamber officials, for when they appeared before the city's finance committee last Thursday they made it plain they were not seeking a "grant" but merely a fee for a useful service provided.

And, in a crafty move, they added that unless the municipal contribution was forthcoming they were quite prepared to hand over the letter-answering chore to become yet another function of the bureaucratic machine.

Minds boggling with visions of a costly correspondence bureau staffed by secretaries on new CUPE rates, the aldermen hastily compromised with the recommended offer of $1,500 from the city — irrespective of any financial assistance from other municipalities.

If the aldermen concerned spent an hour or so skimming through the voluminous files in Mrs. Green's office, they'd probably consider the service cheap at the price.

The inquiries on real estate matters alone, from would-be residents, "homesteaders" blissfully unaware that the land-grants legislation was repealed years ago, and senior citizens hoping to warm their bones in balmy (or is that barmy?) Victoria, provide a daunting task.

MRS. GREEN
. . . full-time job

Some of these are so all-encompassing they simply defy any reply. There was, for example, the American gentleman who sought listings of "all waterfront property available in British Columbia."

In this case, the reply gently pointed out that there are some 16,900 miles of coastline in this province — or "providence" as some of the letters quaintly put it. Sorry and all that, but . . .

Some inquiries are even more vague, geographically speaking. A classic in this category was the New York resident who began, helpfully: "Please send all information about an island off of Vancouver which I believe is called Victoria. If it is not called that name it at least has a city called that on it."

Then, of course, there are the rosy visions of Victoria real estate prices. A Hamilton, Ont., correspondent asked: "Would $25,000 purchase a three or four-bedroom house with garden near the ocean?"

Afraid not, he was told, but you might start talking at around double that figure.

Mrs. Green has to be painfully frank, and warn such people that the labor market is difficult here, property prices about the third highest of all Canadian cities, and the apartment vacancy rate hovering just above zero.

She receives many letters from little old ladies who want to get in touch with the store where they bought a certain piece of material, souvenir milk jug or whatever.

They're full of incredibly confusing instructions — not far from the Post Office, down a narrow street, up some steps . . . you know! — and the little sketch plans enclosed usually add to the confusion.

But, by some determined detective work and a dash of luck, Mrs. Green often succeeds in making the contact.

And then the appreciation from the other end occasionally takes tangible form, with pressing invitations to stay if she ever visits those parts, little gifts and so on.

Among the missing persons and long-lost-buddies requests, there was the one from an elderly gent in Columbia, South Carolina, who was seeking the whereabouts of one Vera so-and-so.

This was not without some valuable clues: "Her address would have to be obtained from her sister or brother-in-law who lived in Victoria about 1918. I misplaced the name of the Victoria couple but you could phone the various grain, feed and seed places and ask if any of the male employees knew Vera . . ."

Male employees? Conjures up visions of flirtatious hanky panky down among the sacks of wild oats.

Inevitably, a high proportion of the U.S. letters are of the I-want-out-of-here ilk, reflecting disillusionment and disgust with Watergate, crime, busing violence and all the rest.

Some denote mild paronoia, like the one from a woman doctor in Beaumont, Texas, who asked: "Do you think your country will fall if America falls to the Communists?"

She continued, darkly: "The Communists are sure working on America. We have about 50 in our Democratic party that are working against American interests. If they are not left liberals they are sure stupid to be so disloyal to so great a Country as America.

"The Communists are the only country in the world that I know that wants to take over every country and kill the Christians."

Would she be able to practice here, she concluded.

Some letters ask such devastatingly simple questions they must be a little disconcerting to answer.

"What entertainment do you offer?" asked one. Well, er, let's see — there's darts and bingo at the Legion, and the penny farthing race and . . .

"How is Victoria today?" kindly inquired another. What does one say? Not bad, all things considered, or coming along nicely, thank you?

One of the shortest replies from the chamber read: "Dear Mrs. Such-and-such, the San Juan Islands are yours, not ours."

With admirable restraint, it didn't add "unfortunately."

When the Mind Is Blank Which Way Do You Go?

Max Low, whose desk adjoins mine, has been writing some pretty good stuff lately for a boy of 38, but when the chips are down he turns, like everybody, to the old master. And watch how you spell that, Ed.

"What do you do when you simply have no ideas?" Max asked me not more than eight minute ago. He had been sitting, there twisting and turning for goodness knows how long. Indeed, I had thought it might be an underwear problem. But it turned out he was simply bereft of ideas.

Ordinarily I'd have gone on to write my usual essay on tariff barriers restricting to the importation of soybeans or an analysis of socio-political tensions in the Middle East, but as it happened I had been doing quite a bit of twisting and turning myself and welcomed Max's question.

"What you do when you have no idea," I replied, every other inch the old wizard, "is that you write a piece about having no idea."

I'd have gone on, probably at great length, but at this juncture Max received a phone call offering him a workable idea — absolutely free! — and before you could say Jack Robinson he was attacking his typewriter, leaving me to my own private agony.

It doesn't happen very often, you understand. Maybe once or twice a year, at the most. But there's no panic quite like it. To be a sort of writer and to have nothing to write about is — well, it's kind of like opening a store with all your merchandise ready and then nobody comes in.

This happened to me once when I was about 16. A man named Phil opened a Carmelcrisp shop and hired me, at $8 a week, to make and sell the stuff. Carmelcrisp was a kind of popcorn with carmel goo all over it. It was very big in those days. I had made about 18 tons of Carmelcrisp before the shop opened and then I stood there behind the counter, invitingly, and nobody came in all day. I eventually locked up, went home to my mother, cried and went into the newspaper business.

Some columnists, of course, are more sensitive than others and will do quite drastic things on these idea-less days. They tell a story about Jim Coleman, who was and is the best sports columnist this country ever produced, who chanced upon such a day and stared for a very long time at the blank sheet of copy paper rolled in his machine. Finally, rising, he walked down to the classified advertising department and put in an ad, offering himself for odd jobs, window cleaning, lawn cutting and such (naturally, being a columnist, there was nothing else he could do) and was not seen again for several weeks. Nobody answered the ad so eventually he went back to writing.

I received my own training largely by absorbing the techniques of three grand old men in the columnist business, Jimmy Butterfield, Bob Bouchette and George Wright, all long since gone to the great barroom in the sky.

So far as I know none of these gents ever had more than the faintest idea of what they'd write about when they sat down to their machines. To be perfectly honest there were many days when their colleagues marvelled that they could find the machine in the first place. Yet, drunk or sober, I never knew one of them to write a dull or incomprehensible piece. It was as if they had some magic compartment of the mind that instantly produced an opening sentence and what came after.

I mention these hereos of mine mainly to illustrate the fact that, very often, a worked-out, schematic, powerful idea in the mind will just curl up and die when it comes to the unavoidable task of exposing it to paper. Bouchette told me once that he could not bear to think of anything before he went to the typewriter because ideas bruise so easily if they're worked out ahead of time.

This is true. I have, myself, had ideas that were lighter than balls of fluff, so fragile and inconclusive that you weren't so worried about developing them so much as wondering if they'd blow away. Yet very often these are the tenuous ideas that fall obediently into place as neatly as alphabet blocks.

One of the great troubles, of course, is to get an idea that doesn't quite make sense and to be left with only the hope that it will work out when you start the writing.

When my father was writing he used to keep a large slate by his bed because, so he believed, the best ideas come at night. Often he would awaken from a dream in which he'd had some earth-shaking notion and scribble it, half awake, on his slate. More often than not, in the cold morning light, he would find that he had scrawled some gibberish and try frantically to recapture the dream and the idea it had contained. I often think it was this that turned him to editing.

There is, too, the problem that's created by the simple fact that getting fresh ideas is an example of diminishing returns. The longer you write, it seems, the harder it is to dredge up an outlook or an attitude that is entirely new. You are forever haunted with the suspicion that you might just have said all this before and maybe even better, that you are, in fact, re-writing yourself.

Oh, I tell you, Max, it's awful on these days. And, by the way, whatever happened to Carmelcrisp?

Move Now On Hotels Says Bawlf

Victoria's worst old hotels and rooming houses will have to be urgently upgraded for fire safety, even if that means displacing their occupants before government action produces alternative accommodation, Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf said today.

"This probably means that certain social service agencies are going to have to work night and day to find somewhere for these people to live," Bawlf said.

The alderman stressed he is "not trying to panic anyone" in the aftermath of the tragic weekend fire at the Royal Olympic Hotel, but said if lives can be lost in a relatively safe, well-managed building the consequences could prove far more serious from fires in other downtown buildings.

"It's obvious that we have hotels substantially less safe than the Royal Olympic," he added, and in some cases such major improvements are needed to conform with fire safety regulations that the establishments would have to be closed down while the work was carried out.

"Notwithstanding that we have to confront this problem head-on. We just can't turn a blind eye."

To underline the importance of early action, Bawlf would like fellow council members to tour some of the worst examples of the 26 buildings which a fire department report has blacklisted.

He said the department had surveyed some 2,000 rooms in older apartments and hotels in the downtown area, and had concluded that about half of them were unsafe.

Attempts by the city to persuade the provincial government that some of its housing efforts should be concentrated in the city centre, as alternative accommodation for elderly and low-income roomers, have met with no response, Bawlf added.

Ald. Malcolm Anderson, chairman of the city's fire prevention committee, said he has visited some of the buildings with known fire risks and he doesn't believe a council tour would serve any real purpose.

"I don't think it would necessarily change our schedule for dealing with the urgent ones," he said.

Anderson was referring to Fire Chief Eric Simmons' intention to start implementing his powers under the Fire Marshal's Act, by ordering building owners to install proper fire escape access, fire alarms and other safety measures.

That program was due to start today, the alderman said, but one major problem will remain no matter how many improvements are carried out:

Eight-Year-Term In Knifing Death

Nineteen-year-old Curtis William Christie was sentenced today to eight years in the penitentiary by Mr. Justice Harry McKay of the B.C. Supreme Court.

Christie was found guilty by a jury June 4 of manslaughter in the death Oct. 15, 1974, of Stanford Clarence Wray, 53. Christie was originally charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment.

Wray was found dead on Grant Street near Fernwood Road with a single four-inch stab wound to the heart.

Conflicting testimony was heard during the eight-day trial which ended June 4.

In his account of the circumstances surrounding the death, Christie said he struck up a casual acquaintance with Wray while both were drinking at the Century Inn beer parlor.

They left together in Wray's car for a party on Grant Street, where Wray hoped to meet a woman and he (Christie) intended to collect a $250 debt owed to him by somebody else from a drug sale in 1973.

Christie said the car stopped near the house where the party was held and he was starting to get out when Wray began punching him and pulling his hair. Unable to free himself, he pulled a borrowed knife and tried to cut Wray's wrist or shoulder.

The key prosecution witness, Donald Charles McCrae, said when he loaned the knife to Christie in a pub, and asked him why he wanted it, Christie replied that he needed it to "roll a wino or a drunk" and indicated an older man in the pub.

Sooke Arena Dead Issue For a While

A referendum in the Sooke area for a new arena is a dead issue, at least for the present.

Capital Regional Board representative Ron Dumont, who also chairs the Sooke Recreation Committee, said today it will now be impossible to hold a referendum because the low bidder (H. E. Fowler and Sons at $1,224,856) will not hold to that price without stringent conditions.

Originally it was proposed to build an $850,000 arena on a site donated by the Sooke Community Association. Residents had approved an assessment of 1.5 mills for recreational purposes. When the bids were opened and all were over the $1 million mark the committee hoped to conduct a referendum in the fall.

POLLEN TO RUN FOR SOCREDS?

Mayor Peter Pollen of Victoria may run in the next provincial election as a Socred, Saanich and the Islands Social Credit Association president Bud Mesher said today.

Pollen will address the association's monthly meeting tonight at 8 at Royal Oak secondary school, 4564 West Saanich Rd.

In a telephone interview Pollen said he has considered joining the provincial Socreds but is not considering it now.

"I'm just an honored guest. I'm not a member of any political group."

"We're hoping he'll join (the party) or show outright support," said Mesher. "He made the overture to do so a year ago."

Mesher said Pollen pulled out last year after advance publicity on his intention to support Socreds provincially.

"I think he'll get into provincial politics. I can't see him getting out of politics altogether," said Mesher.

Asked whether he could run under the Socred banner the mayor did not deny it, but said "I honestly haven't given it any thought."

Ask the Times

Q. I read the British are worried because dandelions are disappearing in their country. I find this hard to believe. Isn't it the most common plant around? J.G.

A. No. The most widely distributed flowering plant is a toothed grass called Cynodon Dactylon. It's found as far apart as Canada, Argentina, New Zealand, Japan and South Africa.

Two Deaths Ruled Accidental

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre has ruled death was accidental after conducting separate inquiries into two local fatalities last month.

William Samuel Moore, 81, of 2840 Gosworth, died from burns and asphyxiation May 12 in a fire at his home, the coroner said.

And a 16-year-old youth, Franklin Earl Medland of 3313 Aldridge, died of head and internal injuries received when the car he was driving overturned on Munns Road May 16.

SNIP OPENING FOR FIREHALL

The new three-bay building (right) cost $261,000 and replaced cramped quarters on Goldstream. About 150 local residents showed up to watch the ribbon-cutting and tour the new facilities.

Canada Loses $33M in Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada lost $33 million on merchandise trade with foreign countries in May as exports dropped 2.5 per cent from April and imports remained virtually unchanged, Statistics Canada reported.

The May deficit was in contrast to a $41 million surplus on merchandise trade in April, but the agency said it still compared favorably with the first three months of the year, when the monthly deficit averaged $180 million. The figures are adjusted to account for seasonal variations.

Canada recorded a $17-million merchandise trade deficit in the final three months of 1974 but had substantial surpluses in the previous three quarters of 1974 and the final quarter of 1973.

The merchandise trade figures measure only exports and imports of goods. The latest figures for the total balance of payments — which includes trade in services and the flow of investment capital — showed a cumulative deficit of $1.529 billion as of March 31.

The merchandise trade deficit figures are based on the value of goods Statistics Canada believes to have crossed the border during the month.

The only detailed statistics available are on the goods actually documented crossing the border.

On this basis, the agency said exports to the U.S., Canada's largest trading partner, continued to decline marginally. A nine-per-cent drop in May exports to the European Economic Community was more than compensated by an 18-per-cent increase in exports to Japan.

The agency said total exports were apparently affected by the Montreal dock strike as May shipments of wheat dropped 35 per cent to $158 million compared with April.

The decline in exports to the U.S. included drops in the key items of passenger vehicles, down 14 per cent to $230 million, and crude oil, down four per cent to $200 million. There were also drops in exports of trucks and other vehicles, agriculture machinery and iron ore.

However, there were also increases in exports to the U.S. of: wood pulp, 10 per cent to $179 million; newsprint, 10 per cent to $170 million; lumber, six per cent to $94 million; and natural gas, 13 per cent to $83 million.

On imports, there were increases in what Canada bought from the United Kingdom up 25.2 per cent, other EEC countries up 10.8 per cent and from developing nations. This was offset by a 10.2-per-cent reduction in imports from the U.S. and a nine-per-cent drop in goods purchased from Japan.

Imports of textiles and clothing increased in May by more than a third, and there were similar increases for raw sugar and cocoa. Crude petroleum imports rose 11 per cent.

Imports of the following items showed decreases: Passenger automobiles, down 10 per cent; vehicle parts and engines, 14 per cent; petroleum and coal products, 40 per cent; rolling mill products, 25 per cent; chemical products and office machinery, 10 per cent; coal 18 per cent.

1,653 Donate Blood

A total of 1,653 donors turned out for Red Cross blood clinics in Greater Victoria last week, the highest number for any month this year.

Final clinic at the Hillside mall Friday attracted 235 donors.

The Red Cross blood bank which supplies all hospitals in the province was down to one day's supply at the start of the week.

Red Cross spokesman Gerry Savage said today the local turnout had gone a long way to bringing supplies closer to a safe level.

"It reinforces my hope that this year Greater Victoria is going to collect as much blood as our local hospitals use. We've had over 6,800 volunteers so far this year and I estimate we need about 11,600 for the year."

For many years local hospitals have used more blood than local donors have supplied.

INVESTORS CAUTIONED

TOKYO (Reuter) — Canada intends to influence inflows of foreign direct investment to ensure that they bring significant benefits to Canada while not disrupting the national economy, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said today.

In an address to the seventh Japan-Canada ministerial committee meeting, MacEachen said that, like Japan, Canada "must be sure that new investment will not unduly disrupt the balance of payments, the availability of labor and equipment or the achievement of our regional development priorities."

MacEachen also said Canada was looking forward to exporting "a wide range of commodities of interest to Japan and other consumers."

Informed Canadian sources said Canada hoped to expand the range of its exports to Japan

In an apparent reference to this desire, Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Miyazawa said in his address to the meeting earlier today that Japan's imports of finished products from developed countries had greatly increased in the last two years.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT IN RAINY DISARRAY

That's the way it was Sunday at the Racquet Club of Victoria as the people arranging matches in the Pacific Regional junior tennis tournament watched afternoon rain wash their complicated schedule into disarray.

With 96 boys and 56 girls competing in four age classes, a total of 251 matches will be required in the tourney and officials were facing problems as they planned to resume play at 8:30 this morning.

First on their worry list was an attempt to catch up on their schedule after Sunday's weather forced postponement of 32 matches and left another 12 suspended while play was in progress.

Given dry skies today, says Mark Soper, one of those working on the problems, a busy day of play on the Racquet Club and other area courts could erase the backlog and clear the decks for Tuesday's finals.

Finals are all slated for the Racquet Club, tentatively set to start at 9 a.m. and continue until about 3 p.m.

One final was completed Sunday. That one was the title match in the boys' under-12 singles between a pair of West Vancouver rivals. John Bowering came out on top with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Ricky Bengtson.

Among the suspended matches was the girls under-12 final, which was halted with Victoria's Valerie Brice holding a 2-1 lead over Susie Hunter of West Vancouver in the deciding set after each had won one set.

Favorites in singles events of the other age divisions escaped upsets in the first two days of play.

Still in the running for titles in the girls' section were three top-seeded Victorians — Brenda Cameron (under 18), Wendy Barlow (under 16) and Andria Levy (under 14).

Boys remaining in title hunts included Glen Bradshaw of Victoria, top-ranked in the under-18 section, and West Vancouver's William Geddes, seeded second in the under-18 class and rated first in the under-16 division.

Albion Batsmen Blast Castaways

Batsmen took command at Beacon Hill Sunday as Albion surprised Castaways and pulled into a second-place tie in the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Castways, who had been shunted out of the top berth Saturday when Alcos defeated Oak Bay by 71 runs at Windsor Park, had their fun at the wicket when they batted first in Sunday's clash with Albion.

With David Shaw scoring 100 not out and David Auld contributing 37 runs, Castaways ran up 207 for five wickets and appeared destined to finish with nothing worse than a draw.

Albions had other ideas when they came to bat, turning in a free-hitting display unexpected by their rivals.

Frank Jarman blasted Castaway bowlers for 111 not out, Tony Courlas added 58 and Albions lost only one wicket as they tallied 210 runs to chalk up, a nine-wicket triumph and climb into a second-place deadlock with Castaways.

Nanaimo batsmen were also in form on the way to an eight-wicket victory over Incogs Sunday at St. Michael's University School.

After dismissing Incogs for 83, which included 32 by Mike Walsh as Ian Smith toppled five wickets at a cost of 22 runs, Nanaimo surrendered only two wickets in surpassing the Inoog total. Ray Telford was the Hub City batting leader with 41, not out.

On Saturday, Peter Nation scored 79 not out and combined with Bob McKay in a 96-run stand as Alcos were all out for 138.

That was all they needed as their bowlers, with John Moss setting the pace by taking three wickets while yielding a mere two runs, dismissed Oak Bay for 67.

EXPO CROWDS HIT NEW LOW

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos, more than a third of the way through their seventh National League baseball season, are drawing fans to Jarry Park at a record pace, but it is not one that the club wants.

After 29 games and 27 playing dates at home, attendance is 68,332 behind last year, when the club drew 1,019,134 for the season, the lowest home attendance figure in the team's history.

So far this year there have been 304,057 paid admissions at 28,000-capacity Jarry Park, an average of 11,261 per date. If that average is maintained through the season, and if the weather permits the 46 dates now scheduled to be met, total attendance would be 822,053.

Easter Search On Way Back

VANCOUVER (CP) — Easter Search, a seven-year-old grey gelding who failed to win a stakes last season, came back with a bang Saturday at Exhibition Park to win the $12,500-added Sun Handicap.

Easter Search, a stakes winner at both Exhibition Park and on the prairies in previous years, was turned out with an injury after three races last season.

Trainer Harold Barroby brought him back May 6 in a $10,000 claiming event. He won and followed that up with an allowance victory May 24.

Easter Search moved back into stakes company this month but finished sixth, 10 lengths back, in the Lieutenant-Governor's Handicap.

The crowd of 9,001 sent Easter Search to the post at 10 to 1. Keep Your Promise, the Lieutenant-Governor's winner, was favored.

Jockey Ken Skinner held Easter Search just off the pace until entering the backstretch. He ran head to head with Detrimental until entering the stretch when he pulled away to two and one-quarter lengths at the wire.

Hornets Bantam Champs

Sparked by five touchdowns from halfback Bobby Haire, Saanich Hornets hammered Oak Bay Crusaders 62-21 Sunday at Royal Athlete Park to claim their fifth Junior Bantam Spring Football League playoff title in the last six years.

Haire also collected the league's outstanding player after the game.

Saanich quarterback Mark Townsend scored two TDs and kicked both converts while Perry Peterson added a pair of majors and Tom Graham rambled over for a single touchdown.

Bernie Kidd scored two TDs for Crusaders, who trailed 41-6 at half time, and Paul Docherty scored one touchdown and kicked three converts.

Defensively, Hornets were led by linemen Darren English, Mike Rowe, Ivan Matkovic, Rob Jay and Dave Purves.

Undefeated in six league contests, Hornets managed to maintain an average of more than 60 points per game and breezed into the final with 109-7 romp over Juan de Fuca Tigers the previous Sunday.

Crusaders, who won the playoff title in 1973 and broke a chain of Hornet wins, gained the final this season with a 20-14 win over Saanich Vampires.

In the consolation final, Vampires topped the Tigers, 29-16.

Jimmy Still Favored

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors, twice beaten on grass in two weeks, remains the early favorite to win the Wimbledon tennis title for the second consecutive year.

But on the eve of the two-week run of the all-England championships, the odds were lengthened, making him a 3-2 shot, instead of 5-4.

Chris Evert is a 6-4 choice to defend her crown when women's singles open Tuesday even though she has had no competition on grass. She pulled out of a pre-Wimbledon tournament with a stomach ailment after winning the Italian and French tournaments on clay.

Pre-Wimbledon warmups traditionally produce upsets as the stars tune up on English grass. Connors' image was tarnished after two defeats, but not his confidence.

"Don't worry about a thing," said the 22-year-old left-hander from Belleville, Ill. "Everything will be all right. At Wimbledon, I'll be back on the line."

The men who beat Connors were Bernie Mitton of South Africa at Chichester two weeks ago and Roscoe Tanner of the United States at Nottingham.

Virginia Wade boosted British hopes for the Wimbledon women's crown by defeating Billie Jean King 7-5, 4-6, 6-4 in the final of a tournament at Eastbourne designed as a Wimbledon warmup for the women.

Connors Sues

LONDON (AP) — Defending Wimbledon champion Jimmy Connors has sued Arthur Ashe for $5 million, Connors' manager said Saturday.

The squabble between the two American tennis stars was disclosed by Bill Riordan, Connors' manager, as Connors started his final practice session before the big tournament that opens today.

"We filed two suits in Indianapolis last week."

The first suit, Riordan added, concerned a letter written by Ashe as president of the Association of Tennis Professionals to 16 players about the captaincy of the U.S. Davis Cup team. Connors alleges that Ashe libeled him in the letter.

The second suit has been filed against Ashe; Donald Dell, the ATP's legal adviser; Bob Briner, the association's secretary, and Jack Kramer, the executive director. It alleges libel in an article written by Briner, Riordan explained.

Connors has another legal suit pending against Kramer, Dell and the Commercial Union Assurance Co., which sponsors the Grand Prix.

Richmond Combines Quantity, Quality

sports
DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Quantity also meant quality for Richmond Track and Field Club Saturday and Sunday at the Y-Times meet at Centennial Stadium.

With 118 athletes entered in the two-day event which attracted a record 1,036 open and age-class competitors from Alberta, B.C., Oregon and Washington, Richmond had easily the largest club delegation at the meet, sponsored jointly by the Times and the Victoria YM-YWCA.

It also had the best.

The mainland team completely overwhelmed the field, scoring 1,261 points in girls' and boys' competition for the Y-Times team title.

That points total was nearly 400 better than runner-up Coquitlam Cheetahs and almost 550 better than that of third-place Norwesters of West Vancouver.

Fourth spot in the 188-event meet went to Northwest Washington Striders of Bellingham with Victoria Track Club a close fourth and Victoria Flying "Y" fifth.

Despite some solid individual efforts by their opposition, Richmond athletes rarely lost the spotlight in the competition, hampered Sunday by a cold, driving rain and gusting winds.

Richmond members won 17 events, were second in another 14 and finished third in 22.

Top performer on the Richmond club was Roy Rasmussen, who set two peewee provincial records and was named the outstanding male athlete in track events.

Rasmussen set a record in the 400 metres Saturday with a time of 60.8 seconds and established another mark Sunday for the 800 metres with a 2:17.5 time.

The outstanding male athlete in throwing events was Lance Neubauer of the Striders, who was the individual star of Saturday's proceedings.

Competing in the midget class, Neubauer set a Canadian mark in the shotput with a toss of 18.19 metres (59'8") to break the 11-year-old record of 18.15 metres set by Stuart Hunnings of Vancouver Olympic Striders.

Neubauer also finished second in the discus Sunday behind Chris Friday of Woodland Track Club, who won with 39.26 metres. Graham Coveney of Vancouver Olympic Club was third.

Coveney, though, was selected the outstanding male athlete in the jump events with his new provincial mark of 4.00 metres in the pole vault.

None of the three, however, claimed the top prize as the meet's outstanding male athlete.

That honor went to Frank Myer of the Port Coquitlam Pacers, who won four events and finished runner-up in another two in the bantam boys' competition.

Saturday, he won the discus with a toss of 38.33 metres, the shotput with an effort of 14.52 metres, the triple jump with a performance of 11.22 metres and the 100 metres with a time of 12.2 seconds. He was second in the high jump.

Sunday, he finished runner-up in the javelin to Burnaby's Mark Steen, who won with a throw of 48.84 metres.

The meet's outstanding female athlete was another versatile performer. Theresa Lenardon of Trail Track Club was the only dual record-setter Saturday. She set a B.C. bantam girls' mark in the 80-metre hurdles with a time of 12.0 seconds and established an open and Canadian record with a leap of 1.63 metres in the high jump.

She was also selected the outstanding female athlete in the jumps for her high-jump record and her first-place finish Saturday in the long jump with an effort of 5.48 metres.

The award as the top female athlete in the throwing events went to Connie Polman-Tuin of Powell River Track Club for her B.C. peewee marks of 16.69 metres in the shotput and 26.70 in the discus.

Kari Jonassen of the Eastside Track Club in Seattle was named the outstanding female athlete in track competition for her B.C. open record of 4:56.6 in the peewee 1,500 metres and her first-place finish in the 800 metres.

One superior effort which won't be fully recognized will be Lex Ludke's high jump Sunday in the peewee boys' age class.

A member of the Northwest Washington Striders, he leaped 1.58 metres to set a provincial open record.

That jump is also believed the best recorded by any peewee athlete but won't count as an official world or even national record as international officials don't recognize world records for athletes younger than midget-aged competitors.

A grade-five student, Ludtke also competed in the shotput and javelin and finished fourth in both events.

Sorry, Wrong Number As Stephanie Sidelined

Stories by D'Arcy Kavanagh, Photos by Irving Strickland

Stephanie Berto had plenty of time to think about her comeback Sunday at the Y-Times track and field meet at Centennial Stadium.

While most everyone near her prepared for their individual events, Stephanie huddled against the cold and waited until she could return home to Vancouver and rid herself of a day's frustration.

She didn't come to the two-day event as a spectator, but rather as a competitor in the women's open 100 metres, an event she once dominated in Canda.

A stroke of ill luck, however, changed her role Sunday from that of a participant to frustrated bystander.

Entered in a heat of the 100 metres, she raced to a first-place finish and a berth in the final against speedsters such as Richmond's Tinker Robinson, Victoria's Kathy Weich and West Vancouver's Margo Howe.

She did one thing against the rules, though. She wore the wrong number in her heat and that caused her to be disqualified in only her second competiton in nearly three years.

"It was partly my fault I wore the wrong number," she said," but it it was also partly the officials's. He is supposed to check everyone's number and didn't."

The disqualification bothered Berto. Seeking an avenue for working on her comeback, she admitted looking forward to going against Howe, Robinson and Weich.

"There isn't as much good competition around as there was four or five years ago," she said, "so you don't want to miss the chance to go against some good sprinters."

When the final took place, Berto was behind the grandstands.

Howe, the B.C. high school 100-and 200-metres champion, took the race in 12.2 with Robinson second and Weich third.

The decision to try a comeback after a series of leg injuries that kept her out of track since 1972 came in January and as a result of her affinity for the sport.

But she has discovered that the road back is far from smooth.

Away from rigorous training as a sprinter for nearly three years, Berto now finds the regimentation necessary to climb back on top not only a big change but a little unpleasant.

A fan of tennis, cycling and swimming, she has to curtail those activities to conserve her energy for track.

"It's tough to give up the different interests you have for track," she said, "and you sometimes wonder if it's all worth it."

Just finishing her first year as a teacher, she also finds it difficult to work full time and train, something she was never forced with before.

One reason for her return is to make it to the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, and not as a spectator.

She made her first appearance in the Olympics in 1968 in Mexico. Her chance for the 1972 Games in Munich was thwarted by her leg injuries, most of which she thinks were caused by stress although doctors failed to diaghose anything definite.

At age 22, she is still young as a female sprinter.

But she has doubts whether she can reclaim the speed that won a gold medal in the 200 metres and a silver in the 100 in the 1971 Pan American Games in Cali, Colombia.

The major obstacles in her comeback, she figures, are her lack of training the last three years, the poor competition to be found and the mental edge she lost through inactivity during her track layoff.

TRACK MYER'S FORTE BUT OTHER SPORTS OK

Frank Myer of Port Coquitlam Races had a busy weekend at the Y-Times track and field meet at Centennial Stadium.

Saturday, he won the bantam boys' discuss, shotput, triple jump and 100 metres, while finishing second in the high jump. Sunday, he was second in the javelin.

Those performances led to his selection as the meet's outstanding male athlete.

Myer's hectic schedule wasn't an accident by his coach, Ron Davis. It was planned carefully with an eye for the future.

Davis believes the husky 14-year-old has great potential for the pentathalon and has had him training hard the last few weeks to compete in the provincial junior development pentathalon championship August 10 in West Vancouver.

It will be a rush job getting the grade eight student ready for the meet, though.

Well schooled in the field events and particularly the shotput and discus, Myer's appearance in the 100 metres Saturday was his first as a runner.

He has yet to run an 800-metres race, one of the pentathalon events along with the javelin, shotput, discus and 100 metres.

But itdoesn't bother him.

"If the coach asks me to do something, I'll do it," he said Sunday after being presented with his outstanding male athlete award.

So far, that means working out four nights a week under Davis' direction. At that time, they practice techniques in the events.

Myer also lifts weights to give himself the necessary strength for the field events.

"I work pretty hard and I guess it's mostly because of my coach's influence," he said.

Track and field has not always been so popular with Myer. Before it appealed to him, he played strictly baseball, football and hockey.

That changed, however, when some of his friends with the Racers convinced him to come to some club practices. After the first few, Myer was hooked.

"I still enjoy playing hockey and those other games," he said, "but when it's time for track, I just drop them for track."

When he started track with the Racers, Myer didn't have Davis as his coach. Davis was living in Kamloops after leaving Port Coquitlam the year before.

Myer believes much of his improvement came when Davis returned to the Racers with his thoughts on technique, planning and hard work.

"I've improved quite a bit this year," said Myer, "and I think I'm still learning an awful lot. My coach is a real good teacher."

Devoted to track and field now, Myer looks to the time when he can concentrate on the decathalon.

"I like the idea of competing in the decathalon," he said. "I know I'm excited about the pentathalon."

If there's any area where he thinks he is weak, it is technique. But he expects to improve his form in the five events considerably before his first pentathalon competition.

And with his performances at the Y-Times meet, it's easy to see he has a skilful hand to guide his track and field course.

A's Death Threat

Apparently it takes more than a threat against their lives to stop Oakland A's Reggie Jackson and Vida Blue.

The two helped the A's to a 7-6 victory over Kansas City Royals in the first game of an American Letgue baseball doubleheader Sunday at Oakland after receiving the fourth death threat involving the A's in three years.

Blue, the starting pitcher, gave up only two runs until he weakened in the ninth when the Royals scored three runs to tie the game 5-5. Jackson, meanwhile, homered and drove in two runs.

The A's won it in the 12th when Sal Bando, who also homered earlier, drove in two runs with a double to wipe out a 6-5 Kansas City lead.

Oakland went on to take the nightcap 8-1.

The death threat was received Friday in the form of two letters, one addressed jointly to Jackson and Blue and one to Monte Moore, announcer for the American League baseball team.

Moore said the letters signed by "Xavier, World Liberation Movement," said: "Reggie Jackson and Vida Blue will be assassinated one of these days: June 20, 21, 22."

Both letters said the players would be "executed during a home game because you're a disgrace to your race for working for a man like Charles O. Finley."

In other American League games Sunday, California Angels edged Texas Rangers and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins 1-0, Baltimore Orioles beat Boston Red Sox 3-0 then dropped the nightcap 5-1, Chicago White Sox swept Minnesota Twins 6-5 and 9-2, New York Yankees tripped Detroit Tigers 5-3 and Cleveland Indians shaded Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

In the National League Sunday, Atlanta Braves downed San Francisco Giants 8-2 but lost the second games 5-2, Philadelphia Phillies bounced back for a 4-3 win over Montreal Expos after dropping the opener 4-0, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 7-2, Pittsburgh Pirates beat New York Mets 2-0, Los Angeles Dodgers shaded San Diego Padres 3-2 and Houston Astros dumped Cincinnati Reds 8-4.

It Was the 'Giveaway Open'

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — A pair of longshots, Lou Graham and John Mahaffey, met in an 18-hole playoff today for the $40,000 prize in the United States open golf championship.

Graham, a tour veteran of 35, was the only person among the 25,145 on the Medinah Club premises Sunday who didn't know he had a chance to win outright by parring the final hole.

He dumped his approach shot into a trap and took a bogey.

Mahaffey, 27, had finished 45 minutes earlier and had rushed to the club house to buy a candy bar and check on the airline reservations out of town.

He had to be searched out and informed that his 287 score, three over par, had tied the late-finishing Graham for first place and that he should be on the first tee today at 11:30 a.m. PDT.

It's the first Open playoff since Lee Trevino beat Jack Nicklaus at Merion in Ardmore, Pa., in 1971.

Mahaffey shot a final-round 71 that he thought might get him about 10th money and Graham had a 73.

Jack Nicklaus, bogeying the last three holes, tied with England's Peter Oosterhuis at 289. Arnold Palmer was at 290 with young Pat Fitzsimons and Tom Watson.

All of them were wondering how they managed to let this Open slip from their hands.

"There will be 20 guys leaving here who will say, 'If I had played halfway decently I would have won,'" Nicklaus said.

Irwin acknowledged that the tournament left him completely dumbfounded.

"This was the easiest open to win I've ever seen," the 1974 Open winner said. "Everybody was just throwing it away. It's unbelievable.

"We tend to choke in the Open, but it was a horrendous experience for most of us," said Irwin. "The greens were getting brown and dying from suffocation. Some fairways were mowed, others weren't. The noise was terrible and the gallery at times seemed completely disinterested.

"I thing everybody — because of the bad early weather and conditions — went into the tournament with a bad frame of mind."

Going to the final hole needing only a par to win, Graham dumped his approach shot into a bunker as he had done in every previous round.

Nanaimo Lends Hand As Seaboard Steps Up

Seaboard Construction, with a little up-Island help, took over first place in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League on Sunday by winning two out of three games against Port Angeles Telecable at Central Park.

Telecable won the opener of the tripleheader 6-2 in eight innings but Seaboard went on to take the next two games 5-3 and 1-0.

In the only other league game played, Nanaimo A and B Construction upset Royal Oak Sporting Goods, the former leader, 3-2 at Central.

A scheduled doubleheader at Sooke between Sooke Merchants and Mike's Sports Shop was postponed because of prior park commitments.

Two Seaboard errors combined with a single and a double to produce four runs and the opening Port Angeles victory.

In the second game, Brian Grexton and Scott Sinclair bashed out solo home runs in the second and fourth innings, respectively, to tie the count, 2-2. Vern Benn drove in Wayne King and Phil Berry, who had both singled, with a triple in the fifth inning and then scored the insurance tally on a sacrifice by Tom Baxter.

Sinclair scored the lone run in the final game on an error after being hit by losing-pitcher Sid Krumpe for a free trip to first, gaining second on another sacrifice by Baxter and reaching third on a fielder's choice.

Meanwhile, Tony's Holdings assumed first place in the Heywood Men's League with an 11-9 triumph over Eagles, the former leader, at Heywood Avenue Park.

Metro Toyota defeated London Boxing Club 13-9 in the other Heywood game.

MIDGLEY CAR SECOND

Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., led from start to finish to win $10,000 Export A 100 stock car race at the Westwood road racing circuit Sunday at Coquitlam.

Hershel McGriff of Bridle Veil, Ore., driving a 1974 Chevelle owned by Dick Midgley of Victoria, finished 13 seconds behind in second place.

Ross Surgenor of Victoria, in a 1968 Torino, ran a strong second for 12 of 42 laps until he was sidelined by a broken shift linkage.

Ron Eaton of Tacoma, dropped out on the ninth lap with a blown engine, allowing Roy Haslam of Victoria to inherit third spot.

Series leader Terry Forsyth of Victoria spun out twice and was slowed by a faulty water pump, allowing Reg Kennedy of Surrey, to take the series lead on the strength of a sixth-place finish Sunday.

Al Wade Survives Spectacular Crash

It will be some time before Al Wade gets back into competition at Western Speedway.

Wade is without a stock car and is laid up with a badly injured right shoulder, today the result of one of the most spectacular stock car crashes in years.

It occurred Saturday night in the late stages of the 30-lap local open feature in front of the Western Speedway grandstand before 2,240 shocked onlookers.

Running third with six laps to go, Wade steered his 1963 Plymouth out of turn four, vying for position with Bob Collins as the field headed into the grandstand straightway. Wade's car brushed with Collins and Wade lost control.

He his the corner of a concrete wall bordering the infield, demoslihing the front end of his car, then bounced and struck the same wall with the rear end, wiping it out.

Although there are no official speedtimes available, Wade careened down the straightaway in the neighborhood of 80 miles an hour. The impact rammed the engine into the car's interior and jarred the driver's seat loose from its moorings.

Safety equipment required by all Vancouver Island Track Racing Association drivers, including the customary seat belts and crash helmet, probably saved Wade's life.

What was left of the car came to rest in victory square and broke into flames. Wade was pulled out immediately, suffering no burns, and the fire was quickly doused.

He was taken to Royal Jubilee hospital by ambulance and spent the night there. Hospital officials Sunday described his condition as good and he was expected to be released the same day.

Taylor Boosts Tennis Rating

Sally Hemeon and Marty Taylor both cruised to impressive triumphs in singles finals of the Oak Bay Tennis Club tournament, but the similarity ended in other events.

Bolstering his position as Vancouver Island's top-ranked male player, Taylor stroked his way to a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Tony Simnett in the singles final and also collected two more crowns in Saturday's finals.

Mrs. Hemeon captured the women's singles crown by trimming Sandra Moss 6-1, 6-0, but failed in a bid to earn a share of the women's doubles title.

Wendy Cuppage and Mrs. Hemeon gave it a good try in the final before dropping a 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 decision to Nancy Hill and Brenda Cameron.

with Dave Tooby to defeat Bob Hutton and John Nical 6-3, 6-4 in the men's doubles final and partnering Mrs. Cuppage for a hard-fought 7-6, 6-4 win over Felicity Graham and Jim Hassard in the mixed doubles.

Winners in finals of consolation events were Helen Money (women's singles), Jim Hassard (men's singles), Sandra Moss and Derek Wild (mixed doubles), Cathy Metcalfe and Felicity Graham (women's doubles), Tony Simnett and Scott Braley (men's doubles).

Security Demanded for Pele

Times News Services

Pele will not appear in any North American Soccer League game that lacks proper security, Clive Toye, vice president and general manager of New York Cosmos, said Saturday.

"I issue a warning to all clubs the Cosmos will be playing on the road. If there isn't proper security, Pele will not appear. We are not asking for security, we demand it. If our demands are not met, Pele will not play."

The 34-year-old Brazilian soccer star suffered a pulled muscle and bruise behind his right knee and a twisted ankle Friday night in Boston during a game against Boston Minutemen. He was injured when he was mobbed by fans after scoring a disallowed goal in the first half of a game the Cosmos later lost 2-1 in overtime.

Pele was carried from the field by security guards hired by Warner Communications, owner of the Cosmos, but it was later reported that his injuries were minor.

Toye also said he is seeking a replay of the Boston game. He said he informed the referee the Cosmos played the remainder of the game under "extreme protest."

"I have protested the game at Boston on the grounds that the game was played in conditions unsafe for players, officials and spectators. I shall ask the commissioner to have the game replayed under secure conditions."

Pele is scheduled to play in Vancouver with the Cosmos July 7.

In the only NASL game Sunday, Chris Simpkin scored Baltimore's third penalty-kick tie-breaker goal after two overtime periods to give the Comets a 2-1 win over Rochester Lancers.

In the penalty-kick tie-breaker, each team gets five crances to score with the kicker facing the opposing goaltender. Lancers made good on two of their five shots but the Comets counted three of five for the victory.

The loss left Rochester tied with Toronto Metro-Croatia for first place in the Northern Division standings with 44 points each. Toronto pulled into the deadlock Saturday downing Los Angeles Aztecs 4-3.

At Seattle Saturday, 16,710 watched the Sounders tighten their grip on first place in the Western Division by scoring a 5-1 triumph over San Jose Earthquakes. The win left Seattle with 83 points, 14 more than idle Vancouver Whitecaps.

First-place Tampa Bay Rowdies had to go to penalty kicks to post a 2-1 overtime victory against St. Louis Stars. The win boosted Tampa five points ahead of second-place Miami in the Eastern Division while St. Louis remained firmly entrenched in top sopt in the Central Division with 79 points, 33 ahead of Denver and Dallas.

FIRST CUP TO INDIES

LONDON (Reuter) — West Indies won cricket's first World Cup Saturday, winning by 17 runs after Australia rallied in a bid to overhaul a total of 291 for eight.

Dennis Lillee and Jeff Thomson, Australia's last-wicket pair, began their partnership with the total 233 for nine and their team's cause apparently lost.

Although the match took place in central London, the West Indians must have felt they were playing a home game as their large following in the 25,000 capacity crowd cheered throughout.

Cubans and 'The Girls' Among the Big Winners

Canada's national basketball team, beaten 95-71 by Cuba on Sunday, had to settle for the third-place bronze medal but wound up with the leading scorer in the Cuba Cup international tournament.

The Cubans, bronze medal-winners in the 1972 Olympics, topped the tournament with a 6-0, won-lost record. Yugoslavia took the silver medal after defeating Canada 92-73 on Saturday night. Yugoslavia wound up with a 4-2 record while Canada finished 2-4.

Jamie Russell on Ontario scored 15 points Sunday to wind up with 92 points in six games and the tournament's scoring title. George Rautins also scored 15 as Canada jumped into a 39-34 lead at the half. Derek Sankey and Lars Hansen, B.C. contributions to the team, scored 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Among the other winners in the world of sports at the weekend was Bob Ridland, a member of the U.S. Olympic equestrian team. The California was the undisputed winner of the "foot-in-mouth" competition.

Terry Leibel of Oakville, Ont., did her part to help Ridland's "victory."

Ridland said Friday that women equestrians are not capable of competing with men. "They lack the fierce professional drive of men," he explained.

He wasn't around to offer any explanations on Saturday when the Canadian girl defeated Ridland for top honors in the $25,000 Motor City Jumper Classic.

SHE WINS $1.6M FOR HER SCARS

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— A seven-year-old girl whose face was marred when a commerical drain cleaner spilled on her when she was a year old has been awarded $1.6 million by a federal court judge here.

Terri Drayton, formerly of Cleveland, was disfigured in 1968 when a bottle of Liquid Plumr fell off a sink and the liquid poured on her face.

Chief Judge Frank Battisi of District Court Fridap found the manufacturer negligent for including high concentrations of acaustic chemical in the cleaner. The judge also awared Terri's mother, Mrs. Bernice Drayton, $112,466 for loss of her daughter's service.

The Jeffee Chemcial Crop., which manufactured Liquid Plumr, was acquired by the Clorox Co. in 1969. Spokesmen for Clorox said Friday that the cleaner's chemical content has been reduced to three per cent from 26 to 32 per cent.

Free Trip for Air 'Baby'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sherry Chinn, 22, left here Sunday on a CP Air flight to Hong Kong that didn't cost her a cent.

Almost 23 years ago, the airline promised her a free trip anywhere on its system when she reached adulthood because she was born on board a DC-4 which was part of a CP Air flight starting in Hong Kong and terminating here.

She was born Sept. 5, 1952, as Captain George Jarvos was making his approach to Shemya airfield in the Aleutian Islands. The infant was born to Lilly Chinn, who was on her way to join her husband in the United States.

This month, a ticket agent at the CP Air office in Seattle was surprised when Sherry Chinn, now a graduate of the University of Oregon presented him with a newspaper clipping about her birth and asked for free passage to Hong Kong.

And she got it with Captain Jarvos acting as her captain once again.

Whites Threaten Trek

LUANDA, Angola (WP) Portuguese whites agitating for help to return to Portugal are threatening to drive north across Africa from Angola in a caravan of 2,500 trucks and cars if the Lisbon government perists in its refusal to provide them with ship transportation.

"We have made all preparatins for the trip and are waiting for final authorization from the government to start," said spokesman for the caravan plan.

The spokesman, Guilherme dos Santos, owner of a trucking company, said his organization already had 3,500 persons signed up for the 8,000-mile drive through eight African countries. He said the Portuguese high commissioner here, Gen., Antonio de Silva Cardoso, had already been informed of the plan and was discussing it with authorities in Lisbon.

The adventurous scheme appears to be aimed primarily at pressuring the Portuguese government in Lisbon into providing ships for the more than 100,000 whites, many of them homeless refugees, now seeking to leave Angola because of the fighting among rival nationalist movements.

An overland trek across Africa by thousands of white refugees from Angola would serve to dramatize the plights of the Portuguese here and presumably also to embarass the Lisbon government into action.

It has been dragging its heels on the Portuguese refugee problem here apparently because the Communists in Lisbon do not want to see the ranks of the opposition swollen by hostile Angolan refugees.

The Portuguese are now leaving here at the rate of 500 a day on regular and specially chartered civilian aircraft.

Both the high commissioner here and the socialists in the Lisbon government are said here to be in favor of providing more aid and transportation for the refugees.

The spokesman for the so-called Organizing Committee for the Cross-country Luanda-to-Lisbon Caravan insisted the group was ready and capable of going through with the plan if no ships were forthcoming.

"We feel we have no future and no security here and we want to go," he said.

"We are not afraid of the difficulties ... but if they give us ships we will drop our plans to go by road."

He said the caravan would include gasoline trucks to provide fuel, refrigerated vehicles to carry food and would be largely self-sufficient.

Massive Wedding Delicacy

The 21-year-old woman celebrated her wedding to Joseph Romano with a seven-column cake that spreads over a nine-by-five-foot table.

Made from 22 separately baked parts, the massive delicacy sported the traditional bride and groom — plus 12 attendants, a flower girl, ring bearers, the priest and miniature horse drawn carriages.

The cake was created by John M. Bohl, 38, who bakes and assembles cakes as a hobby.

A CHILD LEARNS TO SWIM

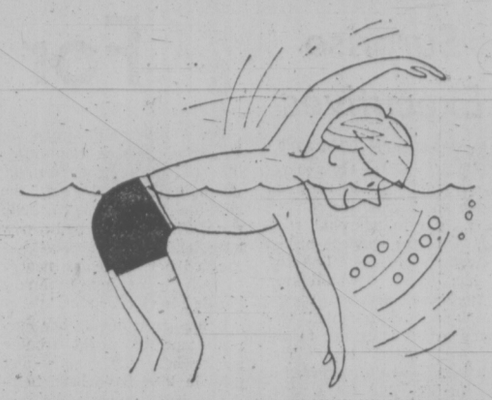
This is the eighth lesson of ten for a child learning to swim. You started by using a legend of Freddie Frog learning from his mother. During the lessons Freddie began to imagine himself a submarine cruising through the water searching for sunken treasure. In the last lesson your youngster was imitating a submarine with rear motors.

Now tell your child his arms are the forward motors of the submarine. Show him your technique of using your arms to help propel you through the water.

You and the youngster go to his waist depth of water and face the shallow end of the pool or the shore if you're at a beach. Lie on the water and demonstrate a windmill or paddlewheel motion with your arms. Bring each arm over your head, into the water and through it to your thighs.

Let your child practise these windmill or paddlewheel motions. Praise him on the amount of water he pushes back as he pulls his arms through it. He'll quickly find he can move ahead.

"Look, I'm swimming."



SOVIETS EYE COMPUTERS AS MATCH-MAKING AIDS

MOSCOW (AP) — An old Russian woman was on trial for accepting money as a matchmaker. One of the witnesses, a young woman, was asked by the judge why she had engaged the babushka's services.

"Where else should I look for a bridegroom?" the girl replied. "At work? One guy works at our factory for every four girls. In the park? Guys don't come there to look for brides."

Like their American counterparts, young people in Soviet urban centres often have a hard time meeting prospective mates.

What can be done to solve their predicament? A number of Soviet social scientists are growing intrigued by a Western invention — match-making by computer.

Although computer dating has never been tried in the Soviet Union, it has been established in several Eastern European countries, including East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary.

The idea was briefly brought up here in 1970, when several newspapers advocated the establishment of a computerized matchmaking bureau.

But the Communist Party newspaper Pravda ended the discussion in 1971 by saying the proposal was alien to Soviet society" and "did not include one word about love."

In reviving the idea, its advocates have been careful to explain that the computer would only be an aid and that love would still be all-important.

A Few Go a Long Way

By HILDA BEASTALL

New small potatoes and carrots are a problem to use economically unless the homemaker is dedicated to not wasting food.

A few new potatoes are just about ready for lifting from the home garden, or can be found in some produce markets.

New potatoes are those rather small, rough-skinned tubers whose skin can be rubbed off with hand or cloth. The local ones are usually white skinned, not pink.

A few go a long way for they are very high in carbohydrate rating. If freshly dug from the soil they have a flavor like no other potato at any season.

Mature potatoes are good food value for they contain many of the essential vitamins, and several minerals including calcium, potassium and iron. One serving daily fits into all normal diets. Only those on medically restricted diets need be concerned about avoiding the enjoyment of potatoes.

For best food value, the new potatoes are scrubbed with a soft brush, not peeled. If peel comes off with scrubbing, all is well, for the thin layer of flesh just under the skin is where much of the nutrition is concentrated. Only when peeled do we cut into this layer.

You may like new potatoes boiled in their skins and served just as they are, but do be sure to eat other foods of a nonstarchy nature with them, to maintain a balance.

Here is an easy variation of boiled potatoes. If you have tiny ones from the garden, prepare them like this and serve them sometimes cold as part of a salad, and sometimes hot, to avoid waste.

For 2 servings:

BOILED HERBED NEW POTATOES

About 12 one-inch new potatoes
1 Tbsp. chopped parsley, dill leaves and sweet basil
1 tsp. fresh lemon juice
½ cup homemade yogurt from skim powder
Salt to taste, if wanted

Scrub and cover potatoes with minimum of boiling water; boil until fork tender. Drain, keeping liquid for soup. Remove skins or not, as you prefer, but do it carefully to keep the potatoes whole as possible.

Sprinkle with mixed herbs and lemon juice. Shake in saucepan to coat well. Add yogurt, shake again over low heat but do not allow to boil. Serve hot.

When serving this recipe cold as part of a salad, omit the reheating. Set the potatoes in refrigerator to marinate, covered, in the herbs and yogurt for two hours at least.

The above recipe is varied by using cottage cheese in place of yogurt, and adding finely chopped sweet onion to the other herbs. Serve hot or cold as suggested.

New small carrots are usually available only from one's own garden, allotment plot, or balcony tub, but whenever you can get them they have a delicious flavor that pleases even professed carrot-dislikers.

Whatever you do with young vegetables, don't soak in water. If you do, you lose all the flavor, and with the flavor goes the food value.

Leaving two or three inches of leaf stem as a handhold, wash and scrub the little carrots with a soft brush. You cut off the stems when cleaning is completed. If by any mischance the carrots have become limp (immature vegetables lose moisture quickly) put them into a covered dish in the refrigerator for a couple of hours to crisp. The dampness on the surface of the washed vegetable helps; do not soak.

The best use for young carrots is for lunch snacks raw with salad, or as handouts to youngsters at any time during school holidays in place of candy, cookies, soft drinks.

Carrots are full of natural sugar which is easily digested, plus calcium and vitamin A, so essential for general wellbeing; several other known nutrients are listed in the chart from the B.C. Nutrition Service.

When cooked, carrots as well as other vegetables, lose some of these abundant nutrients into water or other liquid used in preparation. This column frequently reminds you to "save the liquid for soup or other use." It is referred to as vegetable broth, or vegetable stock. You can drink any of them as a pickup if you use a minimum of water for cooking as suggested. It tastes good; a vegetable cocktail.

Cooking the small new carrots takes only five to seven minutes. Put them whole into a shallow saucepan, barely cover with boiling water and replace lid. Cook gently for five to seven minutes. Need no salt.

Serve with other vegetables, such as green peas or green beans, or with omelettes, meat patties, or corn fritters.

As the home grown carrots become progressively larger you will slice them into quarter-inch circles by the time they are an inch in diameter. The less cutting the less loss of vitamins into water; but this is the reason for using the liquids remaining from cooked vegetables.

The blender is no doubt the means of making concentrated vegetable juices within minutes. These juices are one way of being sure the young, and the old who are without a full set of chewers, will get their needed nutrition. But still, the juice will only be as good as the produce you put into the blender and the care you give those vegetables (and fruits) while you handle them.

While the young vegetables are available in June, let us make full use of them, with no waste from the time they come from the garden to the meal table.

Twin Dilemma

DEAR ABBY: My brother and I are 17-year-old identical twins. Our parents have been separated since we were 10; and we haven't seen our father since then.

My twin brother and I are very close. (We have no other brothers or sisters.) Some people think that we feel "incomplete" when we're apart, but the truth is that we are always together because we really want to be. We have most of the same friends, doubledate a lot and stick together out of choice, not out of need.

Next year we will be going off to college. We want to go to the same college, but our mother says that we should go to different colleges so that we can learn to be independent. Our guidance counselor says it's time we made a break from each other.

A TWIN

DEAR TWIN: IF you and your brother are not using your twinhood to get attention, if you are equally endowed, if you really enjoy each other as friends, if you can each cultivate friends individually, I would advise you to go to the same college — if you want to. A twin is more than just a womb mate. A twin is a friend. And a closer friendship never was. I ought to know.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14-years-old, and I have a problem. My family moved into a new house, and my father made some rules.

One was "no eating" except in the kitchen. However, my father eats wherever he wants to. He dropped greasy foods on the floor in the living room, which left a grease spot on the new carpet. My mother doesn't eat much, but she smokes a lot, and she already dropped ashes on the carpet and burned a hole in it.

My little sister and I are watched like hawks, but we don't eat in the living room and we are neater than they are.

What do you think? Don't you think my parents should practice what they preach?

HUNGRY

DEAR HUNGRY: They should. But there is no way of forcing them to. They belong to that big club whose motto is: "Don't do as I do — do as I say." Unfortunately, rank has its privileges, and parents outrank their kids.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law died recently. She had one daughter and three sons — all of whom are married.

All of her good stuff she left to her daughter. Everything else (the junk) she left to her daughters-in-law.

I fell heir to a well-worn beaver coat. It's at least 20 years old and looks it. I know that I will never wear it, so I'd like to donate it to our church auxiliary resale shop.

My husband says he doesn't care what I do with it, but it has his mother's name embroidered on the lining, and he's afraid people will think I'm disrespectful if I donate it to the resale shop.

What would you do?

GOOD FOR NOTHING

DEAR GOOD: I'd remove the name and donate it.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell the young girl whose boyfriend was always late that I had the same trouble with my boyfriend but married him anyway and couldn't be happier.

We've been married for 18 years and have six wonderful children. (The last one was born in the parking lot of the hospital because my husband was late.)

I wouldn't trade my man for any other in the world. Being late is his only fault, but he's worth waiting for. — NADINE

DEAR NADINE: Congratulations — even though you weren't able to get the lead out of Ledbetter.

Helmeted Women Surprise Executives

By KATHRYN TOLBERT

TOKYO (AP) — Mythology says a female goddess formed Japan and started the country off with a matriarchal society, but the tables turned somewhere along the line and it has been downhill for women ever since.

Now a pink-helmeted women's group is trying to reverse that slide. The members recently surprised a few company executives when they marched into their offices with banners and posters and said an employee was unfair to his wife.

"You should take responsibility for hiring such an irresponsible man that he would divorce his wife and leave her with no money," they told a company official.

The embarrassed employee quickly arranged to give his ex-wife money and the pink-helmeted women's liberationists scored another victory.

The group is called Chupiren. With about 1,000 members it is the newest and most radical of women's liberation groups in Japan, where the movement is small and fragmented.

It was formed three years ago to fight for legislation of the birth control pill and oppose abortion restrictions but has expanded its objectives to deal with divorce cases.

To be successful in Japan, said the group's leader and founder, 29-year-old Misako Enoki, women's liberation must understand the close ties between a wife and, not her husband, but her husband's place of employment.

Company executives often act as go-betweens to arrange marriages and the logical place to take a complaint about a husband, Miss Enoki said, is to his company.

Graduate Goes To Grade School

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Rosemarie Amaral has graduated from her adult continuing education class and now she's looking forward to starting primary grade in public school next fall.

The five-year-old daughter of Portuguese parents and her mother, Irene Amaral, are among the latest group of new Canadians who have studied English two nights a week for the last eight months.

All of them now have certificates indicating they have completed their second-language courses.

The Amaral family has been in Canada for 12 years but it was last fall before Mrs. Amaral could get time to learn English although her husband and two sons are proficient in English.

Little Rosemarie went along for the chance to become the latest member of the family to attain English-Portuguese bilingualism status.

Education Main Problem For 'Poorest Country'

elizabeth forbes

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, Unitarian Service Committee of Canada's indefatigable champion of the hungry, the sick and the homeless around the world, recently had a new experience that she says has allowed her "to come nearer to the most extraordinary people I have ever met."

It happened during her current tour of world trouble spots where USC money and gifts in kind have been helping to battle hunger, disease, illiteracy and unemployment.

During the tour she spent "eleven unforgetable days discovering Indonesia," with the intention of providing assistance where needed for "this poorest and least developed country in the world."

She came away with first-hand knowledge of the manifold needs and problems of this country of many islands and a population of 130 million that averages a density of 1,660 to one square mile.

Strange as it may seem, she soon discovered hunger is not a major problem. "I was amazed to find well fed children in both city slums and villages," she writes.

However, she was told that the diet these children get is not well balanced and that they do not get sufficient proteins during their growing years.

Right now main needs centre around education. Indonesia has almost 60,000 villages and one of the government's pressing assignments is erection of 10,000 new three-classroom schools and the renovation of another 10,000 old schools to accommodate 1.2 million children "eager to learn and to study."

Another "staggering challenge" as Dr. Lotta puts it, is the government's wish to print over 44 million school books this year.

Much of the needed paper to make this project a reality is being contributed by the Canadian government "under an imaginative CIDA program," she writes. "But, in the meantime, a growing percentage of children are dropping out of primary school and the government has begun to include vocational training in the curriculum, to offer some basic skills to the young, before they abandon school."

There is also determined emphasis on public health. This is reflected in the decision that 15,000 large and small water installations must be built during the current 12 months to minimize the outbreak of communicable diseases such as cholera and dysentry; also a total of 300,000 public toilets will be erected.

This is a country, Dr. Lotta says that she will be "delighted to serve in our own USC way."

Then she enumerates some of the "unforgettable things she saw in this first survey of Indonesia."

The immense over-crowding of Jakarta, a bustling metropolis of five million people, where western cars compete with rickshaw pullers; where traffic moves extremely fast, leading to the outskirts of the city "where stagnant canals are used for human defecation, for washing clothes and people and for the raising of fish."

That while tuberculosis, typhoid, cholera and malaria are epidemic, there were smiles everywhere . . . the children had clear skins, beautiful teeth and were relatively so much better clothed than in other parts of Asia. "The obvious reason being the presence of basic food for all."

The fact that women play a decisive role in the present shaping of the country's destiny. "There are remarkable women in key positions in and outside the government, taking their women's rights absolutely for granted, and working hand-in-hand with men as equals for the progress of their land."

Also the fact that "there is none of the hurry and the nervousness which so spoil our own way of life and now so easily detected in almost every corner of the world.

"To discover one corner of this globe where serenity is still prevalent, is an immense gift to humanity and merits every effort to be preserved," Dr. Lotta says.

Then she concludes with "to offer help to make our partners (in developing countries) independent of our own Canadian assistance as quickly as possible has always been a basic USC principle — and it will certainly apply in Indonesia as soon as our programs get under way."

Average annual income in the country today is only 330 a person per year. "But it has many latent resources — both material and human — and from the bottom of my heart I hope that our USC contribution — gently and humbly offered — will prove very useful and welcome."

If you would like to know more about this latest USC project, or to help in any way — write Dr. Hitschmanova, c-o 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa, Canada, K1P 5B1.

TONIGHT — Hitschmanova will be heard tonight in a panel discussion on "Food, Famine and Development" with Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, former Canadian ambassador and director-general at the United Nations, over TV Station Cable 10 at 9:30 p.m. This is one in a series of panel discussions with some well known Canadians and specialists in areas of particular world problems titled World Community 75, and to be shown each Monday evening at the same time and from the same station up to and including July 22.

Tonight's discussion was taped in Cable 10 studios last December when Dr. Hitschmanova was in Victoria during the annual USC campaign for funds and gifts in kind.

The series is being presented as a public service by the Victoria Branch of World Federalists of Canada in conjunction with Cable 10.

Disabled Resist Promoters

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Sports activities for the physically disabled are proliferating, judging by the increasing number of competitions, but promoters are meeting resistance in some cases from the disabled themselves.

"Many handicapped people just don't feel comfortable with other disabled people," says Kathryn Weatherall, 21, a paraplegic whose specialty is the 60-metre wheelchair race.

"It's a very hard thing to understand but I would rather approach a 'normal' person than someone handicapped and I can't really explain why.

"Some people will also shy away because they don't want to feel as if they're being put on display."

Despite this reluctance, athletes who are disabled will definitely be visible in various parts of Canada this year and next.

Kathy recently won a 60-metre race sponsored by the Ontario Wheelchair Sports Association and her victory earned her an invitation to the national games for the disabled in Montreal in late June. She will also participate in the Ontario Games in Cambridge June 19-21.

And, as with all disabled athletes; she is looking forward to the International Olympic Games for the disabled to be held in Toronto in 1976.

She is a student at University of Waterloo, majoring in mathematics and has just started work on a $7,000 Opportunity for Youth grant provided for study of access to public buildings in Kitchener-Waterloo.

Since early April, Kathy and Dean Mellway, a student completing his master's degree in social work at Sir Wilfrid Laurier University, have been training almost every morning between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. at Centennial Stadium.

Dean, a polio victim, wears leg braces. Although they won't compete against each other, both are getting ready for the Ontario Games.

"The games are designed to educate the public more than anything else," says Joan Lobban of Kitchener, chairman of the games publicity committee. To date the games have 130 participants registered.

Dear Mike: Does overfilling an engine with oil hurt anything? After an oil change, my dipstick reads about half a quart over the full mark.

WONDERING

Dear Wondering: You're probably checking the oil before you start the engine but right after you pour in the recommended number of quarts. Starting the engine will move oil out of the crankcase (where the dipstick measures it) and into the lubrication passages, so always check oil after an engine has run awhile. Sometimes, too, in imported cars, an even number of quarts brings the reading over the full mark, simply because quarts and litres aren't quite the same. But generally speaking, overfilling the crankcase by half a quart or so doesn't hurt anything. Some engines burn off that extra amount, thus wasting it, but this doesn't harm the engine per se.

Dear Mike: I own a 1969 Datsun pickup with the 4-speed floor shift. In low gear and low gear only, there's a loud clacking noise from the transmission. Is this a broken tooth? Is it hard to fix? Can I keep driving with this malady?

CLACKY

Dear Clacky: Yes, it's a broken tooth, and yes, you can keep driving your pickup this way as long as you ease out gently in low. I'd recommend, though, that you get low gear replaced. It's a medium-tough job.

Dear Mike: Four times out of five, the starter doesn't catch in my 1960 Rambler American. It simply whirs. Do I need a new starter?

SPINNING

Dear Spinning: Probably not. I'd say you need a new solenoid, and that costs a lot less than a whole new or rebuilt starter.

Dear Mike: Something I hate about the new cars is those obnoxious buzzers that tell you to buckle up, take out the key, etc. Why hasn't anyone come up with a ding-dong bell to replace those awful buzzers? I should think someone would make a fortune selling these to car owners.

BUZZGUSTED

Dear Buzz: The new 1975 Cadillac Seville uses just such an "Avon calling" alarm — no buzzers. And I'm sure someone will start offering ding-dongs as aftermarket accessories soon. Why no one's thought of it before I don't know, but I agree, it's a good idea.

Dear Mike:

My 1965 Buick V-8 shows 82,000 miles, and I would like to flush the engine. I have a quart of commercial engine flush cleaner compound. The instructions say to top up the oil, add this cleaner, run engine at idle for 15-30 minutes, then drain oil, remove filter, and replace both. I know that flushing an engine was safe in the old days, but are today's motors and bearings the same? Would you recommend this sort of flushing procedure?

FLUSHED

Dear Flushed:

I think you'll be safe so long as you simply idle the engine and don't rev it or drive with the cleaner in the crankcase. You probably ought to change oil and filter every 1,000 miles a couple of times after flushing.

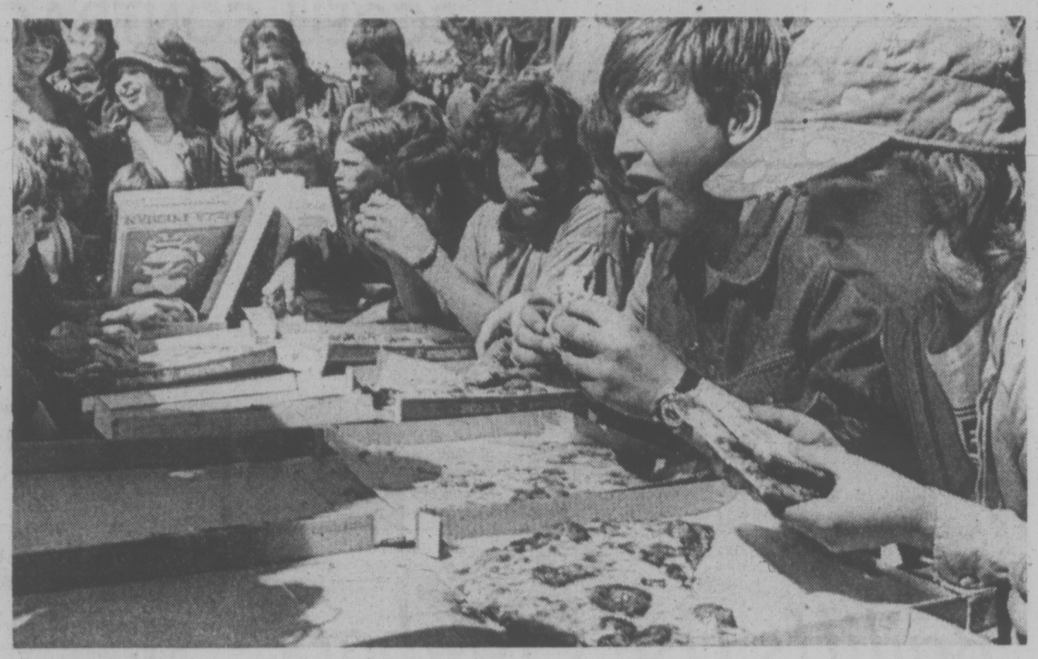
From Pies To Ties ...Fun For All



Esquimalt's Buccaneer Days on the weekend offered fun for everyone from the tots to the tottery. Things got under way Saturday with a pancake breakfast but many youngsters like those in the top picture ate lightly in order to be in good shape for the pizza pie-eating contest that afternoon.

Muscles flexed and each crew had an enthusiastic cheering section for the tug-o-war contest, at left, which took place in a crowded Bullen Park. Below, proving that sometimes three legs can be better than two, contestants, most of them that is, are up and away in the three-legged races.

After being crowned by Mayor Art Young on Friday evening, buccaneer queen Denise Lockett reigned over the festivities that ran the gamut from an egg-throwing contest, women's nail-driving events, softball games and a flower show through to baton twirling, a sunset ceremony by the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps and the Buccaneer Costume Ball in the auditorium of the Royal Canadian Legion's hall. Sterilization Gaining Dramatically in U.S.

WASHINGTON (WP) — Among couples in the U.S. who say they have had all the children they want, nearly one in three has chosen sterilization compared with one in eight 10 years ago.

And, in the larger category of all U.S. couples with the wife under 45 years of age, either the woman or husband has been sterilizaed in one case in four, twice as many as in 1970.

These figures show that the "dramatic rise in contraceptive sterilazations," first noticed in 1970, has continued and "is likely to be even greater in years ahead," according to an International Planned Parenthood publication.

The figures were reported to the U.S. government's National Centre for Health Statistics in a survey by the National Opinion Research Centre of Chicago.

The figures probably understate the number of sterilizations involved, since they are taken from a dated sampling of women if 9,800 households between July, 1973, and July, 1974.

The samplers also believe that more men have been sterilized than they could determine, since they had no current facts on former husbands of divorced women.

The sterilzation statistic on all couples with the wife under 45 included those now divorce.

As it was, the survey found that an increase in men undergoing vasectomy — surgically closing the tubes that carry sperm—accounted for 60 per cent of the increase in contraceptive sterilizations among married couples since 1970.

Just under half of all sterilizations for contraceptive purposes are being done on men — mainly on white men — the survey found.

In all, the survey calculated:

—As of 1973, some 6.6 million married or previously married women either had had a sterilization or their husbands had had vasectomies.

—At least 3.3 million sterilizations among married couples occurred during the four years between 1970 and 1973.

—Sixteen per cent of currently married couples had undergone a contraceptive sterilization, up from 11 per cent in 1970 and 8 per cent in 1965.

—Thirty-six per cent of currently married women — which would mean more than 9 million on a national basis — said they or their husbands either had had contraceptive sterilizations or intended to have them.

RETURN DEMAND UP

GENEVA (WP) — A special representative of the United Nations High Commission for Refugees will go to Saigon this week with a list of some 700 people from camps in the United States and the Far East who wish to be repatriated to Vietnam.

The lists are the first response to questionnaires taken around the camps by UNHCR officials, and represent a fraction of the potential number of repatriates. Three thousand have so far expressed a wish to go back and the total number could eventually be in the region of 20,000.

While repatriation represents the major plank of the UNHCR's program for South Vietnam, the organization also intends to re-orientate its relief program along lines laid down by the new authorities in Saigon.

Other Geneva organizations, too, are finding their concepts of humanitarian aid being turned around by the new authorities, according to aid officials who have returned from South Vietnam in the last couple of weeks.

Says one official: "They don't want experts: their first priority is to get the economy restarted and to cut down the high unemployment by making the people self-sufficient."

Hotel Union Staff Replaced

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some members of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders Union, on strike against the Bayshore Inn, will be replaced by non-union labor, hotel general manager Arthur Oades said Sunday.

Oades said in an interview 22 women crossed picket lines established Sunday morning to work as maids and he said he has 84 applications from people in Vancouver to work at the hotel, one of seven owned by Western International Hotels Ltd.

The president of the Vancouver and District Labor Council said Sunday member union would take a dim view of management's plan to hire non-union labor during the strike.

Syd Thompson said in an interview the policy would not be acceptable in B.C., Canada's most unionized province.

Oades said Sunday he expects the strike to be a long one because if the hotel were to offer more than the 29.6-per-cent increase in one year it has already proposed, its competitive position would be hurt.

He said the proposed increase works out to 88 cents an hour in wages for all workers and 17 cents in fringe benefits.

The bargaining unit includes maids at $3.64 an hour, waitresses at $3.14, room clerks at $4.08, housemen at $3.17 and maintenance men at $4.32.

The negotiating committee for the 350 hotel workers has asked for a $1.30 an hour plus fringe benefits.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tammy Shephard, 6, died in hospital Saturday of injuries suffered when she was hit by a falling tree.

She was struck by a tree her father was cutting down at their home near Sechelt, about 20 miles north of here, and was flown here by search and rescue.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Federation of Peace Officers called Saturday for an expansion of the use of capital punishment against murderers.

Present legislation calls for the death sentence only when a prison guard or policeman is killed while on duty.

Federation President Phil Jamieson of Victoria said the BCFPO met in Burnaby Saturday and "firmly, unanimously endorsed" the position of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

Jamieson said the federation wants capital punishment reinstated for violent murder, cold-blooded murder" and in cases where people are found guilty of capital murder after all levels of appeal have been exhausted through the legal system."

NANAIMO (CP) — Members of four Vancouver Island labor councils meeting here have approved a resolution supporting a petition to protesting construction of the Trident missile base at Bangor, Wash.

They also endorsed the provincial government's housing program and approved a resolution calling on municipalities to acquire and develop land for the construction of low-cost housing with lower interest rates.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A "doggie park" located on a three-acre wooded area now is open for people who want to walk their dogs, park board commissioner George Wainborn said Friday.

Wainborn, who pioneered the idea, said the park cost $100 to set up and contains pathways for running, pools for drinking, fire hydrants and benches.

"We've been trying to get the dogs off the beaches," Wainborn said in an interview.

"We thought this would be a good way for people to exercise their dogs and themselves and if they like it, maybe we'll open another one."

All dogs in the park must be on leashes.

BCGEU CONTRACT BRINGS ADVANCES FOR WOMEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local 62 of the British Columbia Government Employees Union has voted 96 per cent in favor of a first contract calling for major advances in the area of women's rights, a local spokesman said Friday.

Mary Easmuth, secretary-treasurer of the local, said the contract is a major advance in the fight by women for equality in the workplace and in their union.

The contract, covering about 100 non-teaching employees at the New Westminster, Richmond and Surrey campuses of Douglas College, includes provision for:

— Time off with pay to care for sick children and spouses;

— Two hours off every three months to give members time to attend union meetings;

— In the case of a grievance procedure, half of the arbitrators must be women;.

The 17-month contract also provides for a three-stage pay hike and wage reclassifications for low-paid jobs, many of them held by women, Easmuth said in a prepared statement.

"For example, a clerk typist's pay rises from $494 a month to $764 by April 1, 1976."

The contract has further provisions which provide across-the-board hikes of $125 a month retroactive to Jan. 1, $50 a month in October, and 11 per cent next April.

Bailiffs Use Crowbars To Evict Man from Car

VANCOUVER (CP) — Baliffs armed with tire irons and crowbars smashed through a window Saturday to evict Larry Hnyda, 21, from his car after a four-hour seize.

Diane Stein, Hnyda's sister, and her 15-month-old son spent most of the morning sitting in the car with her brother, trying to prevent the bailiffs from towing it away for unmade payments.

"It's the only thing he owns," she said. "He sleeps in it sometimes; he's even got his clothes in the trunk."

When bailiffs first tried to seize car, police at the scene said ti would be illegal to tow away the car with Hnyda, his sister and her baby inside.

They smashed through the window and asked Hnyda to leave. He did.

Vantax Credit Union said Hnyda has defaulted on his payments and owes $2,000 on the 1970 car. Hnyda said the eviction was a mistake.

Bailiff Ray Madden said he had been looking for the car since Dec. 6.

Coal Exploration Delay Sought

FERNIE (CP) — Wildlife and environmental groups meeting here have asked the provincial government to declare a moratorium on the issue of permits for coal exploration or coal mine development.

In a telegram Sunday to Resources Minister Robert Williams, the groups urge that the moratorium be continued until the provincial environment and land use secretariat completes a study of the impact of coal development in the East Kootenay region.

Bill Otway, executive director for the B.C. Wildlife Federation, said in a news release that the telegram also asks that the terms of reference for the study be expanded to include the development of an over-all policy for future coal mining development in the province. Otway said public hearings should be an integral part of the study.

The telegram also asks that the study consider the cost and longterm effects of job security of local residents if new mine proposals are carried out.

Wife Beheaded

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — A man holding his wife's head in one hand and a sickle in the other walked into a police station in a tiny southern Indian town, the Press Trust of India (PTI) news agency reports. The man told police he beheaded his wife after a quarrel the previous night. He was charged with murder.

Teen Girl Held Over Kidnapping

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 16-year-old girl has been arrested in connection with the bungled kidnapping and extortion attempt of a bank president's wife, police said.

A bulletin was issued for another teen-ager, and a young man was being returned to St. Louis from Kentucky to face charges.

Alfred Wayne King, 27, was earlier charged in the kidnapping of Mrs. George J. Helein, 68, abducted at gunpoint from her home last Thursday by two men posing as delivery men.

Police said she was freed the same day before any ransom was paid.

1 OF 20 DRIVERS DRUNK

OTTAWA (CP) — Almost one-quarter of night drivers have been drinking and one out of 20 is legally impaired, says a national survey released by the transport department.

The figures were gathered during a 12-week period last year. The chances of meeting a driver, who has been drinking, are twice as great between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. as between 10 p.m. and midnight.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand said in a statement the figures are of grave concern because an impaired driver has a 22-times greater chance of being involved in a fatal accident than a sober driver

The survey showed the percentage of drinking drivers and impaired motorists appeared to be equally serious in all regions of the country.

There was little difference in drinking habits between urban and rural drivers. Drinking drivers were more likely to be found on medium- and high-speed roads.

Male drivers were twice as likely to have been drinking as women. Separated or divorced motorists were more likely to have been drinking than single or married motorists.

One of the attributes of the better player is his ability to interpret the bids, or lack of bids, made by the opponents. An example of this can be observed in today's deal, in which the failure of one of the defenders to have made a bid pinpointed the way to winning declarer's play. The hand came up in a duplicate game.

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

After West's opening spade lead was taken by East's ace — felling south's king — East continued with a spade, which South ruffed. The jack of trumps was then laid down and won by East's ace. East exited with a trump to South's ten, after which the trump king was cashed, picking up east's remaining trump. On the last two trump leads West discarded two spades.

Declarer next cashed the queen, king, ace, and jack of clubs. He then led a diamond, inserting dummy's ten-spot when West played low. It was declarer's hope, of course, that West possessed the diamond jack. In this case East would win the trick with his (presumed) king, and South's queen would be promoted into a winner.

As is evident, however, East won the trick with the diamond jack. East couldn't return a spade, for if the did South would discard the eight of diamonds as he ruffed the trick with dummy's last trump. So West returned the seven of diamonds.

Declarer now had a crucial decision to make, the outcome of which would determine whether he would fulfill his contract or go down one. If East possessed the diamond king, the winning play would be to put up the queen. But if West had the diamond king, and East the nine-spot, then the winning play would be to play the eight, which would force West's king, and promote South's queen into a winner.
South's queen into a winner.

Declarer found the correct answer by reverting to the bidding. East had thus far shown up with the two major suit aces and the diamond jack. Surely, reasoned South, if east had also possessed the diamond king, he would have made a third position opening bid.

And so, on East's lead of the diamond seven, South played the eight — and fulfilled his contract.

"We had to answer all the questions," just 'yes' or 'no'," explained Joe. "The first paper I only got five wrong."

Ted smiled. "That sounds good. What about the other paper?"

"Tough, but the same number of questions," replied the boy. "I got just a third of them wrong, so that gave me 75 per cent marking for the two together."

How many questions in each paper?

(Answer tomorrow)

Figs Ultimate in Sweet Fruit

Each year while a few figs are swelling on our small trees I get enthusiastic about moving them to a "better 'ole" where they will have the chance they need to produce a really good crop.

Figs are so delicious when ripened on the tree and eaten at once that they should be grown by all gardeners who value the nutrition of fresh garden produce.

Once we had a fig tree confined in a 14 inch square tub, standing in the corner of a greenhouse with glass down to just above soil level. With the restricted root growth, the tree bore fruit while still young.

Came a bad winter with near zero F. temperatures outside, and being near the glass the fig succumbed. I believe now that new growth would have come from the roots, but at the time the space was needed for a more urgent crop.

Today figs can be grown in tubs on apartment balconies, or in tubs on tiny patio gardens. Or they may be set down into a concrete lined hole in the patio with a sunny wall or fence behind to help ripen the fruit in September.

This root restriction for early fig production is a necessity. Locally we see them thriving in rocky pockets of soil against house walls, or in a narrow border near a gravel and blacktop driveway against a garage.

Two varieties are suitable here, neither requiring pollination, or caprification, as it is known when talking of figs. Brunswick and Brown Turkey are varieties which are parthenocarpic, that bear fruit without being pollinated. One of the two is usually available here from nurseries specializing in fruit tree growng.

Summer care consists of shortening new branches and watering well about every 10 days. The fruits that can be seen now need moisture at the roots to enable them to swell.

Ripening depends on exposure to warmth and may take place any time from late August into September on a succession basis. Brunswick is lighter in color even at maturity and is said to develop a better flavor if allowed to ripen two or three days at room temperature after picking.

Brown Turkey is the one to pick fully ripe and eat as you go — the ultimate in the sweet fruits.

For balcony culture it may be possible in some cases to take the tubbed fig into the apartment by the end of February so that growth is a little advanced before putting it out again in May.

This would have to be done gradually to avoid harm to the new leaves, but the results might be worth the effort.

Similarly, at ground level, advancing growth by taking a tubbed plant indoors, into a sunny porch perhaps, might be the answer to ensuring the early ripening of this most prestigious fruit.

It is essential the plants be left outside until the end of February, then brought in to terminate the period of dormancy and make an early start on leaves and fruit formation.

If you have inherited an established outdoor fig and are not aware of its culture, watering is the most important thing at this stage.

Lay an open-end hose on the soil over the roots and allow it to trickle very gently for several hours. Move it to different spots until the entire root area has been covered.

An ancient treatise on growing figs in tubs within a glass orangery says that "Great and Frequent Waterings even unto Once a Day" are necessary. Locally, these waterings should be continued through July, August, and until the fruit is picked, though not necessarily once a day.

Orbiting Laboratories Probing Mystery of the Holes in Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The last in a series of eight orbiting solar observatories which scientists hope will solve some of the mystery of the "black holes" in space is transmitting information back to earth.

The OSO 8 was blasted into a circular orbit Saturday 343 miles above the earth. It began beaming data back to earth winin an hour after launch.

Three of the eight separate data gathering systems were turned on Saturday. The remaining five were to go to work by Tuesday, according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"All experiments are in good working order and we are looking forward to a very exciting mission," said R. Adrienne Timothy, OSO program scientist.

The OSO 8 will attempt to locate "black holes" in space, which may give clues to the age of matter and perhaps help to shed light on theories of creation.

"Black holes" are thought to be stars once many times the size of the sun which imploded into masses a few miles in diameter, their gravity so strong that even light cannot escape.

The drum-shaped $58 million OSO 8, with an eight-foot sail to gather solar power for its three years in operation, also will conduct experiments designed to broaden man's knowledge of the sun.

The first craft of the OSO series was launched in 1962 and was five times smaller than the newest OSO. The entire solar research project cost $169 million.

The craft was scheduled for launch Friday, but was postposed in the final minutes of countdown when a problem developed in the electrical relay system which switches the delta rocket launching vehicle from ground power to self-contained batteries for the flight.

Parallels Across a Hostile Parallel

SEOUL (WP) — In response to anxieties about North Korea, President Park Chung Hee this week accelerated preparations to turn South Korea into a mobilized society that will have many parallels with the nation he vows to oppose.

A series of national mobilization measures for civilians and tightened control systems affecting everyone has been announced by the government. Some of the measures and restrictions bear a striking similarity to those reported to be in effect in North Korea.

A month ago the government announced mobilization of all male high school and college students into a "student defence corps." Universities are in the process of forming divisions, colleges are forming regiments and high school students regiments or battalions according to the size of the school.

Last week the cabinet approved a separate "Civil Defence Cors" to conscript all civilian men between 17 and 50 as well as female volunteers.

Ministry of Home Affairs officials estimated that 3.5 million men will be involved in education and training of up to 20 days per year.

Sout Korea already had a standing army of 600,000 men, a homeland reserve force of 2.7 million men and about 40,000 police. Virtually all military aged males except for the disabled are to be organized in one unit or another under the new systems.

An augmented system of community organization and control at the ward, precinct and block level recently has been implemented in Seoul.

Citizens have been told the reorganization and tightening of an existing structure is for administrative efficiency and surveillance of people coming and going in the community.

Though there is yet no public announcement, some Seoul residents have been notified that a new sub-block "CHO" level of adminstration is being formed, with one supervisor responsible for every five families. Such an organization is similar to the cell system reported in effect in North Korea.

Residence card regulations in South Korea are also in the process of being tightened, and penalties for violation stiffened.

The government is expected to wield much greater population control in view of a requirement — previously unenforced — that permission from ward and precinct chiefs be obtained as part of change-of-residence formalities.

A newly-announced measure to be proposed to the government-controlled national assembly this week will permit revocation of commercial broadcasting licenses for failure to meet official standards.

Since a presidential decree last month, the government has exercised tight control over newspapers, magazines and broadcast stations through secret police agents stationed fulltime at each press company.

★ SPORTS ★

In terms of numbers, it's the biggest bash of the year in track and field and the weekend Y-Times meet proved no exception. More than 1,000 young athletes from B.C., Alberta and the Pacific Northwest flooded Centennial Stadium. As is usually the case in meets of this size, there was elation and frustration. The elation belonged to Richmond, which had the biggest contingnet and the best athletes and won the championship. The frustration belonged to Pan-American Games sprint champion Stephanie Berto. Trying for a comeback, she was disqualified because she wore the wrong number. Times sports write D'Arcy Kavanagh and photograpehr Irving, Strickland were there and their stories and pictures, along with complete results, apear on pages 14 and 15.

Elsewhere on today's sports pages:

Lou Graham hit a bunker on the 18th hole at Medinah, Ill., Sunday and wound up tied for first place with John Mahaffey after the regulation 72 holes of the U.S. Open golf championship. The two were scheduled to play off over 18 holes today. Page 16.

A death threat was delivered on the weekend to Vida Blue and Reggie Jackson of baseball's Oakland Athletics. It had little effect on their play as the A's swept an American League doubleheader Sunday from Kansas City Royals. Page 15.

World soccer star Pele was mobbed by well-wishers in Boston last week and his club, New York Cosmos of the North American League, laid down the law on the weekend — no security, no Pele. Page 16.

Alarm Delay Cited in Fire

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

A delay in sounding the fire alarm contributed to Saturday's fatal fire at the Royal Olympic Hotel, Victoria deputy fire chief R. J. Coates said today. (See story Page 9.)

Coates said Les Wright, a guest in Room 209 next to where the fire started, phoned the desk clerk to say he smelled smoke but seven or eight minutes passed before any action was taken.

Three people died in the blaze which gutted the interior hallways of the seven-story, 63-year-old building.

An inquest into the death of the three — Elizabeth Mae Towers, 20, of Trail, Lorna Anne Minnis, 57, of Vancouver, and Charles James McDonald, 90, a resident of the hotel — will begin 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Thomson and Irving funeral parlor, 1625 Quadra.

Coates said Wright was awakened at about 1:30 a.m., thought he smelled smoke, and went out into the hallway to a bathroom to get a drink of water. When he returned he couldn't smell the smoke any longer.

However, Coates said, a few minutes later Wright though he could see smoke coming through the wall and phoned the desk clerk. The clerk said he would investigate.

Wright, a Vancouver social worker on a weekend holiday in Victoria, waited and got dressed. Coates said Wright heard a commotion next door and after seven or eight minutes grew worried and looked out into the hallway.

As he was standing there, a man in Room 210, later identified as Walter Stanley, 45, of Resolute Bay, N.W.T., staggered out of his room dressed only in his shorts. he told Wright he had attempted to put out a fire in his bed with tumblers of water but the fire had got the best of him."

Coates said Wright sounded house alarm and stretched out a standpipe hose but by that time the fire had reached a "flashover stage."

Martell, 58, of 2140 Cadboro Bay, phoned the fire department and then finding the switchboard jammed and the elevator stuck rushed upstairs by way of a back staircase and started to bang on doors to awaken guests.

However, he was overcome by smoke and was one of eleven people taken to hospital for treatment. He is listed in poor condition in Victoria General Hospital today.

Of the 10 others, four have since been discharged. Three are listed in fair condition — George Chen, 48, of Vancouver in Royal Jubilee and James Minnis, 62, of Vancouver and Randall Smith, 26, of Langford, in Victoria General. Douglas Mooney, 29, of Duncan William Kinsey, 51, of the Royal Olympic Hotel, and Helen Petterson, 41, of 1803 Fernwood are reported in good condition.

Coates said careless smoking was the cause of the fire, but Victoria police Inspector Richard Ward said Stanley, in an interview, couldn't recall if he had been smoking or not.

Stanley told police he woke up to find a pillow on his bed in flames. He said he tried to pick it up and carry it to a sink but it fell apart.

Coates said if there had not been the delay in reporting the fire and if the door to the room had been more solidly built, firemen would likely have been able to contain the fire in the room.

BATS OUT

OMAHA, Neb. (Reuter) — The U.S. Army is preparing to spend $38.5 million to build the country's first synthetic bat-manure factory.

The substance, called nitroguanidine, is used as a coolant, lubricant and anti-corrosive in artillery.

EMPLOYING best balance tricks to stay as dry as possible, clubmates Lauren Marchak (left) and Jim Boothroyd of West Vancouver Norwesters negotiate water jump in mid-get boys' 1,500-metre steeplechase Sunday at Y-Times track and field meet at Centennial Stadium. Stories, pictures and complete results on pages 14 and 15.

LONDON (Reuter) — The Soviet Union announced today it will eliminate one of its three Antarctic whaling fleets as a gesture to conservationist pressure.

The statement came at the start of the 27th annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC) where yet another struggle was shaping up over the survival of the world's largest creature.

Soviet delegate I. V. Nikonorov gave cautious approval to an Australian plan for reducing catch levels and safeguarding endangered species.

After announcing the reduction of the Soviet whaling effort, Nikonorov said he believes the Australian plan would work provided the IWC showed "wisdom and understanding" about catch levels.

Japan, which together with the Soviet Union accounts for about 80 per cent of the world's whale hunting, said that acceptance of the new plan is no easy task for the Japanese whaling industry.

But Japanese delegate I. Fujita said he believes some agreement can be reached, provided the new rules take account of Japan's needs and that limits are not set in excess of conservation needs.

The Australian proposal calls for three categories of protection. In the first group are totally protected species, like the giant blue whale which once was hunted almost to extinction.

The second category calls for an automatic cutoff in hunting species which fall below danger level. The third is for carefully regulated hunting of stocks deemed to be in no danger of over-depletion.

Under that plan, it seems likely that the fin whale—the largest species now hunted—would fall within the protected category. Most experts are agreed that fin whale stocks are dangerously low.

This would leave only three species on the permitted list: the sperm whale, the sei whale and the smaller minke whales, which until a few years ago was considered too small and too fast to catch.

Protest Makes Contact

VANCOUVER (CP) — After a two-month, 1,100-mile patrol of North America's west coast, the Greenpeace anti-whaling expedition has finally encountered a fleet of whaling ships.

An expedition spokesman said Friday that the Greenpeace V, one of two vessels on the expedition, made contact with Soviet whaling ships off the U.S. coast. The exact location was not disclosed.

It was the first time contact had been made since the expedition left Vancouver April 27.

The spokesman, Vancouver Sun reporter Bob Hunter, said the Greenpeace was guided to the fleet by information from sources at the International Whaling Commission which opens its annual meeting in London on Monday.

Organizers of the expedition have said that if a whaling fleet were encountered, the Greenpeace would try to hinder its operations by getting between the fleet's harpoons and the whales.

FROSTY START

According to the calendar, summer was due in Newfoundland at 9:57 p.m. NDT Saturday but the weather office issued a frost warning for most of the province.

A spokesman at the weather office here said, "not too many Newfoundlanders will be all that surprised."

Price Hike Approved For Liquor

An average 3 per cent increase in the price of liquor and wine products and a 45-cent hike in the price of a case of beer has been approved by the provincial cabinet.

The price hike brings the cost of a case of beer to $4, which includes sales tax and a 60-cent deposit on the bottles.

Liquor Administration Branch general manager Vic Woodland said today the new price hikes will go into effect as soon as current liquor store stock is depleted — estimated at about a week for liquor products and as early as Tuesday for beer.

Woodland said the increase is designed to bring liquor and beer prices in line with lsit prices in other provinces.

He said former prices were "a shade below" similar products sold in other provincial liquor outlets.

Low-alcohol beer will cost $3.80 a case under the new price structure.

Last across-the-board increases in prices took effect in 1971, he said.

The announcement, made public in orders-in-council, precedes what may be in store in terms of liquor taxes when the federal government's budget is announced later today.

Roberts Bank Rushed Dike 'Bloody Disaster'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal and provincial agencies are rushing the building of a sea dike at Roberts Bank in nearby Delta that conservationists and biologists charge will ruin more than 200 acres of the Fraser River estuary's dwindling feeding areas for fish and waterfowl.

"It's a bloody disaster . . . incredible stupidity," claims Bill Otway, executive director of British Columbia Wildlife Federation.

Federal and provincial bilogists are just as incensed and in confidential communications, written and verbal, accuse top federal and provincial government officials of ignoring their warnings about the dike's effect on the Roberts Bank tidal marshes.

"It's a terrible mistake . . . its a very sore point with us," one of the government biologists said in an interview.

The federation and other conservation groups have protested the dike project to Ottawa and Victoria, without any success, so far.

Only one of the top government officials involved has responded to the strong protests in a direct way.

AMIN DELAYS HILLS' DEATH

LONDON (Reuter) — British lecturer Denis Hills will be executed in 11 days unless British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan goes to Uganda, Radio Uganda quoted President Idi Amin as saying today.

Hills, under sentence of death for treason, was to have faced a firing squad today. But the execution was postponed by Amin after he met emissaries from Queen Elizabeth bearing her appeal for clemency for Hills.

NEWS BRIEFS

Phone Rate Hike?

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed increases that would add 15.5 per cent to the cost of a long-distance telephone call during peak hours were announced today by the Trans-Canada telephone system TCTS. The increases would become effective Aug. 1 if approved by the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission.

11½-Year Pact Set

WINNIPEG (CP) — An agreement covering 11½ years and prohibiting strikes and lockouts has been signed between Manitoba Hydro and its workers at two large construction sites in northern Manitoba. The agreement provides a system of settling disputes on the spot and assures wage parity with settlements in the construction trades in Winnipeg.

Ghandi Awaits Word

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A Supreme Court justice said today he will announce Tuesday whether he will allow Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to remain in office during her appeal of a lower court's conviction of corrupt election practices.

Forest Shutdown Warned

VANCOUVER (CP) — A second union has started taking a strike vote and a third is poised to follow the same course in the deadlocked British Columbia forest industry negotiations.

And, for the first time in its history, union spokesmen indicate the industry faces the prospect of a total shutdown of the wood and pulp and paper sections at the same time — as early as 10 days from now, after pulp and paper contracts expire at midnight, June 30.

About 40 delegates of the Canadian Paper Workers' Union from 17 B.C. locals on Saturday authorized the taking of strike votes among 7,200 members.

Voting is to be completed by the July 1 holiday and shutdowns could begin right after the count, a union spokesman said.

The decision to take the vote was the CPU's response to the forest companies' proposal Friday to grant over 40,000 workers in three unions — CPU, International Woodworkers of America, and Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada — only cost-of-living increases this year.

"The offer was a joke and it was treated as such," said Art Gruntman, CPU's western vice-president after meeting company negotiators.

Reg Ginn, national—PPWC president, said that union's wage caucus would meet today to decide when strike votes will be held among the PPWC's 5,500 members.

"The offer is nothing but a charade," Ginn added. "It's impossible to accomplish anything in negotiations when the situation is so ridiculous."

The International Woodworkers of America is already conducting a strike vote, with ballots due Friday, seeking a strong mandate among about 30,000 coast members to reject the COLA-only offer.

Jack Munro, IWA western regional president and chief spokesman in negotiations, said the IWA was waiting today to hear if Fred Geddes, the provincial mediator, has been able to arrange a resumption of talks with the companies.

Munro warned a strike could occur because of "the completely unrealistic position" of the industry.

Corridor to Oil Field Now Offered to Egypt

Times News Services

Israel has offered Egypt a land corridor to the Abu Rudeis oil field in the Sinai desert in an attempt to eliminate a key obstacle to a interim Middle East peace agreement.

A government official in Jerusalem said Israel hoped the land corridor would meet Egypt's demands for both sea and land access to the oil field along the Gulf of Suez.

"It has to be wrapped in a lot of cotton but I would tend to confirm that a certain territorial continuity has been offered to Egypt between a main point of withdrawal and the oil field," the official said Sunday.

A small explosive charge meanwhile blew up under a car near the centre of Tel Aviv today and police said Arab terrorists may be expanding their bombing campaign to Israel's largest city.

The charge, a small pipe stuffed with explosives and attached to a small clock, caused slight damage to the car but no injuries, a police spokesman said.

In a related development, Newsweek magazine says Libyan leader Moamer Kadhafi recently concluded a deal with Palestine Liberation Organization leader George Hapash to assassinate Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for $16 million.

Newsweek gives no date for the deal, but indicates it took place after the collapse of U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's last Middle East peace mission in March and was an effort to prevent further progress toward a settlement of the Israeli-Arab conflict.

Judge Frees Laberge

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec Court of Appeal judge today ordered imprisoned labor leader Louis Laberge freed unconditionally pending appeal of his conviction and three-year prison sentence for criminal mischief.

Laberge, president of the 300,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor, was sentenced Friday in connection with $20,000 damage at a L'Assomption, Que., factory.

A jury found him guilty May 30 of inciting workers to damage products on the Hupp, Canada Ltd. assembly lines during a rally at the factory May 29, 1974.

Turner Ready

Finance Minister John Turner brings down his budget tonight, and it is expected to be his toughest in 3½ years as finance minister.

He will start reading the budget speech at 5 p.m., Victoria time, and coverage of the budget will be carried on Channel 8 starting at 5:30 and Channels 2 and 6 starting at 7 p.m.

U.K. WAGE BRAKES?

LONDON (Reuter) — Leaders of Britain's powerful trade unions and the governing Labor party united today in a call to workers to put the brakes on wage demands.

The call came in a statement by the liaison committee of the Trades Union Congress and the Labor party after a meeting attended, among others, by Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Jack Jones, leader of the country's biggest union, the Transport and General Workers.

Jones has said that the country must have a price freeze to ensure co-operation from workers in cutting wage demands. In return, he has suggested a flat-rate wage increase instead of separate bargaining by unions.

The committee statement said: "A price target would need to be backed up by subsidies where necessary with an equally sharp deceleration in the level of wage increases."

It added: "An agreed counter-inflation program will maintain employment and living standards taking the next 12 months as a whole and provide the foundation for renewed economic growth and a move forward for living standards in the future."

In terms of numbers, it's the biggest bash of the year in track and field and the weekend Y-Times meet proved no exception. More than 1,000 young athletes from B.C., Alberta and the Pacific Northwest flooded Centennial Stadium. As is usually the case in meets of this size, there was elation and frustration. The elation belonged to Richmond, which had the biggest contingent and the best athletes and won the championship. The frustration belonged to Pan-American Games sprint champion Stephanie Berto. Trying for a comeback, she was disqualified because she wore the wrong number. Times sports write D'Arcy Kavanagh and photographer Irving Strickland were there and their stories and pictures, along with complete results, apear on pages 14 and 15.

Alarm Delay Cited in Fire

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

A delay in sounding the fire alarm contributed to Saturday's fatal fire at the Royal Olympic Hotel, Victoria deputy fire chief R. J. Coates said today. (See story Page 9.)

Coates said Les Wright, a guest in Room 209 next to where the fire started, phoned the desk clerk to say he smelled smoke but seven or eight minutes passed before any action was taken.

An inquest into the death of the three — Elizabeth Mae Towers, 20, of Trail, Lorna Anne Minnis, 57, of Vancouver, and Charles James McDonald, 90, a resident of the hotel — will begin 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Thomson and Irving funeral parlor, 1625 Quadra.

Coates said Wright was awakened at about 1:30 a.m., thought he smelled smoke, and went out into the hallway to a bathroom to get a drink of water. When he returned he couldn't smell the smoke any longer.

However, Coates said, a few minutes later Wright thought he could see smoke coming through the wall and phoned the desk clerk. The clerk said he would investigate.

Wright, a Vancouver social worker on a weekend holiday in Victoria, waited and got dressed. Coates said Wright heard a commotion next door and after seven or eight minutes grew worried and looked out into the hallway.

As he was standing there, a man in Room 210, later identified as Walter Stanley, 45, of Resolute Bay, N.W.T., staggered out of his room dressed only in his shorts. He told Wright he had attempted to put out a fire in his bed with tumblers of water but the fire had got the best of him.

Coates said Wright sounded house alarm and stretched out a standpipe hose but by that time the fire had reached a "flashover stage."

Martell, 58, of 2140 Cadboro Bay, phoned the fire department and then finding the switchboard jammed and the elevator stuck rushed upstairs by way of a back staircase and started to bang on doors to awaken guests.

However, he was overcome by smoke and was one of eleven people taken to hospital for treatment. He is listed in poor condition in Victoria General Hospital today.

Of the 10 others, four have since been discharged. Three are listed in fair condition — George Chen, 48, of Vancouver, in Royal Jubilee and James Minnis, 62, of Vancouver and Randall Smith, 26, of Langford, in Victoria General. Douglas Mooney, 29, of Duncan, William Kinsey, 51, of the Royal Olympic Hotel, and Helen Petterson, 41, of 1803 Fernwood are reported in good condition.

Coates said careless smoking was the cause of the fire, but Victoria police Inspector Richard Ward said Stanley, in an interview, couldn't recall if he had been smoking or not.

Stanley told police he woke up to find a pillow on his bed in flames. He said he tried to pick it up and carry it to a sink but it fell apart.

Coates said if there had not been the delay in reporting the fire and if the door to the room had been more solidly built, firemen would likely have been able to contain the fire in the room.

BATS OUT

OMAHA, Neb. (Reuter) — The U.S. Army is preparing to spend $38.5 million to build the country's first synthetic bat-manure factory.

The substance, called nitroguanidine, is used as a coolant, lubricant and anti-corrosive in artillery.

Soviets to Cut Whaling Fleet

LONDON (Reuter) — The Soviet Union announced today it will eliminate one of its three Antarctic whaling fleets as a gesture to conservationist pressure.

The statement came at the start of the 27th annual meeting of the International Whaling Commission (IWC) where yet another struggle was shaping up over the survival of the world's largest creature.

Soviet delegate I. V. Nikonorov gave cautious approval to an Australian plan for reducing catch levels and safeguarding endangered species.

After announcing the reduction of the Soviet whaling effort, Nikonorov said he believes the Australian plan would work provided the IWC showed "wisdom and understanding" about catch levels.

Japan, which together with the Soviet Union accounts for about 80 per cent of the world's whale hunting, said that acceptance of the new plan is no easy task for the Japanese whaling industry.

But Japanese delegate I. Fujita said he believes some agreement can be reached, provided the new rules take account of Japan's needs and that limits are not set in excess of conservation needs.

The Australian proposal calls for three categories of protection. In the first group are totally protected species, like the giant blue whale which once was hunted almost to extinction.

The second category calls for an automatic cutoff in hunting species which fall below danger level. The third is for carefully regulated hunting of stocks deemed to be in no danger of over-depletion.

Under that plan, it seems likely that the fin whale—the largest species now hunted—would fall within the protected category. Most experts are agreed that fin whale stocks are dangerously low.

This would leave only three species on the permitted list: the sperm whale, the sei whale and the smaller minke whales, which until a few years ago was considered too small and too fast to catch.

★ Protest Makes Contact

VANCOUVER (CP) — After a two-month, 1,100-mile patrol of North America's west coast, the Greenpeace anti-whaling expedition has finally encountered a fleet of whaling ships.

An expedition spokesman said Friday that the Greenpeace V, one of two vessels on the expedition, made contact with Soviet whaling ships off the U.S. coast. The exact location was not disclosed.

It was the first time contact had been made since the expedition left Vancouver April 27.

FROSTY START

According to the calendar, summer was due in Newfoundland at 9:57 p.m. NDT Saturday but the weather office issued a frost warning for most of the province.

A spokesman at the weather office here said, "not too many Newfoundlanders will be all that surprised."

The average latest date for frost in the central parts of the island portion of the province is about June 10. But frost has been recorded at Gander International Airport in every month of the year.

The Victoria area has had a mixture of above and below normal temperatures throughout June, with temperatures Sunday and today being on the cool side.

Price Hike Approved For Liquor

An average 3 per cent increase in the price of liquor and wine products and a 15-cent hike in the price of a case of beer has been approved by the provincial cabinet.

The price hike brings the cost of a case of beer to $4, which includes sales tax and a 60-cent deposit on the bottles.

Liquor Administration Branch general manager Vic Woodland said today the new price hikes will go into effect as soon as current liquor store stock is depleted — estimated at about a week for liquor products and as early as Tuesday for beer.

Woodland said the increase is designed to bring liquor and beer prices in line with list prices in other provinces.

He said former prices were "a shade below" similar products sold in other provincial liquor outlets.

Low-alcohol beer will cost $3.80 a case under the new price structure.

Last across-the-board increases in prices took effect in 1971, he said.

The announcement, made public in orders-in-council, precedes what may be in store in terms of liquor taxes when the federal government's budget is announced later today.

Roberts Bank Rushed Dike 'Bloody Disaster'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal and provincial agencies are rushing the building of a sea dike at Roberts Bank in nearby Delta that conservationists and biologists charge will ruin more than 200 acres of the Fraser River estuary's dwindling feeding areas for fish and waterfowl.

"It's a bloody disaster . . . incredible stupidity," claims Bill Otway, executive director of British Columbia Wildlife Federation.

Federal and provincial biologists are just as incensed and in confidential communications, written and verbal, accuse top federal and provincial government officials of ignoring their warnings about the dike's effect on the Roberts Bank tidal marshes.

"It's a terrible mistake . . . its a very sore point with us," one of the government biologists said in an interview.

The federation and other conservation groups have protested the dike project to Ottawa and Victoria without any success so far.

Only one of the top government officials involved has responded to the strong protests in a direct way.

Forest Shutdown Warned

VANCOUVER (CP) — A second union has started taking a strike vote and a third is poised to follow the same course in the deadlocked British Columbia forest industry negotiations.

And, for the first time in its history, union spokesmen indicate the industry faces the prospect of a total shutdown of the wood and pulp and paper sections at the same time — as early as 10 days from now, after pulp and paper contracts expire at midnight, June 30.

About 40 delegates of the Canadian Paper Workers' Union from 17 B.C. locals on Saturday authorized the taking of strike votes among 7,200 members.

Voting is to be completed by the July 1 holiday and shutdowns could begin right after the count, a union spokesman said.

The decision to take the vote was the CPU's response to the forest companies' proposal Friday to grant over 40,000 workers in three unions — CPU, International Woodworkers of America, and Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada — only cost-of-living increases this year.

"The offer was a joke and it was treated as such," said Art Gruntman, CPU's western vice-president after meeting company negotiators.

Reg Ginn, national PPWC president, said that union's wage caucus would meet today to decide when strike votes will be held among the PPWC's 5,500 members.

"The offer is nothing but a charade," Ginn added. "It's impossible to accomplish anything in negotiations when the situation is so ridiculous."

The International Woodworkers of America is already conducting a strike vote, with ballots due Friday, seeking a strong mandate among about 30,000 coast members to reject the COLA-only offer.

The IWA contract expired at midnight June 14.

Jack Munro, IWA western regional president and chief spokesman in negotiations, said the IWA was waiting today to hear if Fred Geddes, the provincial mediator, has been able to arrange a resumption of talks with the companies.

Munro warned a strike could occur because of "the completely unrealistic position" of the industry.

U.K. WAGE BRAKES?

LONDON (Reuter) — Leaders of Britain's powerful trade unions and the governing Labor party united today in a call to workers to put the brakes on wage demands.

The call came in a statement by the liaison committee of the Trades Union Congress and the Labor party after a meeting attended, among others, by Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Jack Jones, leader of the country's biggest union, the Transport and General Workers.

Jones has said that the country must have a price freeze to ensure co-operation from workers in cutting wage demands. In return, he has suggested a flat-rate wage increase instead of separate bargaining by unions.

The committee statement said: "A price target would need to be backed up by subsidies where necessary with an equally sharp deceleration in the level of wage increases."

It added: "An agreed counter-inflation program will maintain employment and living standards taking the next 12 months as a whole and provide the foundation for renewed economic growth and a move forward for living standards in the future."

Corridor to Oil Field Now Offered to Egypt

Times News Services

Israel has offered Egypt a land corridor to the Abu Rudeis oil field in the Sinai desert in an attempt to eliminate a key obstacle to an interim Middle East peace agreement.

A government official in Jerusalem said Israel hoped the land corridor would meet Egypt's demands for both sea and land access to the oil field along the Gulf of Suez.

"It has to be wrapped in a lot of cotton but I would tend to confirm that a certain territorial continuity has been offered to Egypt between a main point of withdrawal and the oil field," the official said Sunday.

A small explosive charge meanwhile blew up under a car near the centre of Tel Aviv today and police said Arab terrorists may be expanding their bombing campaign to Israel's largest city.

The charge, a small pipe stuffed with explosives and attached to a small clock, caused slight damage to the car but no injuries, a police spokesman said.

In a related development, Newsweek magazine says Libyan leader Moamer Kadhafi recently concluded a deal with Palestine Liberation Organization leader George Hapash to assassinate Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for $16 million.

Newsweek gives no date for the deal, but indicates it took place after the collapse of U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's last Middle East peace mission in March and was an effort to prevent further progress toward a settlement of the Israeli-Arab conflict.

Judge Frees Laberge

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec Court of Appeal judge today ordered imprisoned labor leader Louis Laberge freed unconditionally pending appeal of his conviction and three-year prison sentence for criminal mischief.

Laberge, president of the 300,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor, was sentenced Friday in connection with $20,000 damage at a L'Assumption, Que., factory.

A jury found him guilty May 30 of inciting workers to damage products on the Hupp, Canada Ltd. assembly lines during a rally at the factory May 29, 1974.

Featherbedding Article Stops the Presses

LONDON (Reuter) — Printers halted the presses of the mass-circulation News of the World Saturday night in a protest against an article by Lord George-Brown suggesting the paper is overstaffed.

The article made the point in a lengthy argument that Britain is appproaching economic disaster because of excessive wage demands and lack of productivity.

Lord George-Brown, former foreign secretary and controlersial figure in a previous Labor government, said Britain is only weeks away from disaster and only the most drastic action can stave it off.

"What do I mean by disaster?" he wrote. "It is when our money is no longer accepted."

Lord George-Brown said one of the problems is overmanning in industry. He cited as an example The News of the World itself, whose 5.7 million circulation is the largest in Britain.

The article said: "There is, I judge, no reader of this paper nor any of those setting the type for others to read who doesn't know how many underemployed or non-employed are being carried on the payroll."

Officials of the printers' union, the National Graphical Association, demanded space to print a reply.

When space was declined they stopped the presses. The management refused to give way and production resumed after seven hours in which about two million copies of the paper were lost.

Mother Cecilia Loses

B.C. Court of Appeal today dismissed an appeal by Mother Cecilia and four other plantiffs aganst a B.C. Supreme Court judgement, given by Mr. Justice Harry McKay last January.

Today's decision brings the case, which has been in litigation by one or more plaintiffs since 1972, to a close, Cecil Branson, representing the Society of the Love of Jesus, said after the court's decision.

At stake was control of the society, located at St. Mary's Priory, 567 Goldstream. The society operates a hospital for the chronically ill and a senior citizens' home and has assets estimated at more than $2 million.

The supreme court action, heard last fall, had plaintiffs Mother Cecilia and Sisters Mary Agnes Eaton, Mary Josephine Donovan, Mary Lucy Forde and Mary Julia Kelly arguing they were the only legitimate members of the society and so entitled to exclsive use of the property.

The society disputed that position and argued the plaintiffs were no longer society members.

Branson told the appeal court today that the appelants of Mr. Justice McKay's decision failed to file transcripts of evidence from the five-week trial within 60 days of filing appeal as required by court rules.

This delay, he said, caused prejudice to the society in the administration of its affairs.

Hugh McMillan, representing Mother Cecilia and the other appelants, said his clients haven't got the money to file all the transcripts and suggested this be limited to certain areas of the trial. He asked for an extension time.

The appeal court noted that Branson took the position in writing to McMillan that compliance with court rules would be insisted on and that McMillan only ordered "something" after he became aware of a motion being made to quash the appeal.

McMillan had not taken proper steps to reduce the transcripts and that the 11 gounds of appeal appeared to raise all of the issues which were before the trial judge.

This is, the appeal court ruled, a proper case to apply court rules and there were not sufficient grounds for an extension of time.

Branson's motion, therefore, was allowed and the appeal dismissed.

Lisbon March Slated

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Communist party told its militants to stay away from a big Socialist party rally tonight in an apparent bid to put the blame on the Socialists if any trouble develops.

The Communist party's information and propaganda section said members should not participate in the Socialist march to the presidential palace "in any form."

At the same time, the Portuguese Council of Bishops condemned anti-church violence and the "hate, intolerance and violence" to which it said Roman Catholics are subject in Portugal.

The statement commented on the incident a week ago in which leftists stoned nearly 1,000 Catholics who were demonstrating in support of efforts by the patriarchate to recover the church radio station seized by Communist-led employees.

The council restated its support for Antonio Cardinal Ribeira, patriarch of Lisbon, and said the attack represented "a threat to the fundamental liberties of the people and the Catholic church."

JOB VACANCIES SHOW INCREASE

OTTAWA (CP) — The average number of job vacancies rose by 4,300 or 7.1 per cent in the three months ending May 31 over the previous three-month period, Statistics Canada reported today.

Vacancy rates remained unchanged in Ontario and British Columbia while Quebec's rate was down.

The agency said the number of vacancies for full-time, part-time and casual jobs increased to 64,800 from 60,500.

In the latest three month period, vacancies for full-time jobs increased four per cent to 57,000 while the number of longer-term vacancies—jobs unfilled for more then four weeks—decreased seven per cent.

The comparative vacancy rates by region and province showed increases from the three months ending Feb. 28, in the Atlantic and Prairie provinces.

Another N-Test Slated Saturday

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — Another megaton-range nuclear device — the second in less than a week — will be detonated Tuesday at the Nevada test site by scientists facing a possible treaty with Russia banning such tests in the future.

Scientists said the weapon, code-named "Camembert," has a yield of 200 kilotons to 1 megaton (one megaton is equivalent to a million tons of dynamite). Although it will be buried more than 4,000 feet beneath the surface of a desert plateau, persons as far away as Las Vegas, Nev., 120 miles distant, will probably feel a small tremor.

The energy research and development administration said persons in the upper levels of high-rise buildings in Las Vegas would be most likely to be shaken by the blast, set to go off at 6 a.m.

Residents of the 70-year-old Adobe Exchange Club in Beatty, Nev., located about 35 miles from ground zero, will be evacuated, as they were during the last test, officials said.

The last test, which occurred last Thursday, registered 5.6 on the Richter scale at the Cal Tech seismology laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., but there was no damage.

'Berries Sold at Loss'

Saanich Peninsula strawberry growers have been forced to sell at a loss because of foreign berry imports.

"If there's to be any change, it'll be a further drop in our prices," Stan Klubi, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, said today.

Klubi said imports are being sold at a wholesale price of about 35 cents a pound whereas local prices are sold at about 40 to 45 cents a pound.

"We're already selling at a loss and there is little we can do other than to continue cutting prices to stay in the market," said Klubi.

Pint-sized containers sold for 50 cents at the roadside last year and 45 cents if people picked their own. Klubi said he hopes these prices will remain the same this year.

He said another problem plaguing growers has been the scarcity of rain. Growers are worried about the quality of the crop.

The size of the strawberries depends on the rain, he said. The more rain, the larger the berry.

"The real test comes in the next week and a half . . . if the rain doesn't continue, then we'll be in real trouble."

Besides the rain factor, if the weather suddenly becomes hot, the berries will ripen too quickly and be small.

"We estimate the strawberry yield will be about 150 tons this year, which is about average . . . but anything could happen between now and the beginning of the harvest season next week," Klubi said.

the weather

A weather system over the southern coastal regions of B.C. is expected to continue drifting southeastward reaching Washington state tonight. Periods of rain associated with this disturbance are occurring at many localities on the south coast while a few showers are reported north of this system. This weather will gradually decrease today with conditions continuing to improve on Tuesday. Over the interior regions unsettled conditions will prevail today and Tuesday with a few showers isolated thundershowers expected late in the day on both days.

SOME LETTERS DEFY ANY REPLY

Oh, the Questions People Ask About Us!

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Jerry was in the sixth grade and in deep trouble. So he decided to sit down and write a most important letter, one which would determine his scholastic destiny for at least another year.

Getting straight to the point, he wrote: "I need your help. I'll fail my grade for sure unless I can do a pretty good project on your town so please send me lots of information that I can write about. This is real urgent."

It was a cri de coeur guaranteed to strike an answering chord of sympathy in even the most hard-nosed recipient. But, alas, there was no reply, no information for the anxiously waiting Jerry.

He forgot to write his address, you see. And as he simply signed his scruffy little note "Jerry," there was no possible clue as to his identity.

Jerry's was one of the more than 3,000 letters that poured into the Government Street offices of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce last year.

Roughly the same number will come this year, and hopefully — unless they repeat his unfortunate mistake — every one will be answered by Mrs. Judi Green, whose full-time job it is to cope with this formidable torrent of correspondence.

Long-winded letters full of splendid irrelevancies and tortuous syntax, short ones, pathetic ones, hilarious ones, seeking every type of information, advice and help imaginable, they come from all parts of Canada, the United States and — in lesser numbers — from just about every country in the world.

It's a service which, the chamber estimates, costs about $7,500 a year. For some years it has received a municipal contribution of $2,500 in recognition of the work load which the service takes off civic shoulders.

At first this cash came from the city of Victoria, but more recently it has been approved by the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee under a cost-sharing formula.

This year, however, the committee turned down the request. The rebuff obviously angered chamber officials, for when they appeared before the city's finance committee last Thursday they made it plain they were not seeking a "grant" but merely a fee for a useful service provided.

And, in a crafty move, they added that unless the municipal contribution was forthcoming they were quite prepared to hand over the letter-answering chore to become yet another function of the bureaucratic machine.

Minds boggling with visions of a costly correspondence bureau staffed by secretaries on new CUPE rates, the aldermen hastily compromised with the recommended offer of $1,500 from the city — irrespective of any financial assistance from other municipalities.

If the aldermen concerned spent an hour or so skimming through the voluminous files in Mrs. Green's office, they'd probably consider the service cheap at the price.

The inquiries on real estate matters alone, from would-be residents, "homesteaders" blissfully unaware that the land grants legislation was repealed years ago, and senior citizens hoping to warm their bones in balmy (or is that barmy?) Victoria, provide a daunting task.

MRS. GREEN
. . . full-time job

Some of these are so all-encompassing they simply defy any reply. There was, for example, the American gentleman who sought listings of "all waterfront property available in British Columbia."

In this case, the reply gently pointed out that there are some 16,900 miles of coastline in this province — or "providence" as some of the letters quaintly put it. Sorry and all that, but . . .

Some inquiries are even more vague, geographically speaking. A classic in this category was the New York resident who began, helpfully: "Please send all information about an island off of Vancouver which I believe is called Victoria. If it is not called that name it at least has a city called that on it."

Then, of course, there are the rosy visions of Victoria real estate prices. A Hamilton, Ont., correspondent asked: "Would $25,000 purchase a three or four-bedroom house with garden near the ocean?"

Afraid not, he was told, but you night start talking at around double that figure.

Mrs. Green has to be painfully frank, and warn such people that the labor market is difficult here, property prices about the third highest of all Canadian cities, and the apartment vacancy rate hovering just above zero.

She receives many letters from little old ladies who want to get in touch with the store where they bought a certain piece of material, souvenir milk jug or whatever.

They're full of incredibly confusing instructions — not far from the Post Office, down a narrow street, up some steps . . . you know! — and the little sketch plans enclosed usually add to the confusion.

But, by some determined detective work and a dash of luck, Mrs. Green often succeeds in making the contact.

And then the appreciation from the other end occasionally takes tangible form, with pressing invitations to stay if she ever visits those parts, little gifts and so on.

Among the missing persons and long-lost-buddies requests, there was the one from an elderly gent in Columbia, South Carolina, who was seeking the whereabouts of one Vera so-and-so.

This was not without some valuable clues: "Her address would have to be obtained from her sister or brother-in-law who lived in Victoria about 1918. I misplaced the name of the Victoria couple but you could phone the various grain, feed and seed places and ask if any of the male employees knew Vera . . ."

Male employees? Conjures up visions of flirtatious hanky panky down among the sacks of wild oats.

Inevitably, a high proportion of the U.S. letters are of the I-want-out-of-here ilk, reflecting disillusionment and disgust with Watergate, crime, busing violence and all the rest.

Some denote mild paronoia, like the one from a woman doctor in Beaumont, Texas, who asked: "Do you think your country will fall if America falls to the Communists?"

She continued, darkly: "The Communists are sure working on America. We have about 50 in our Democratic party that are working against American interests. If they are not left liberals they are sure stupid to be so disloyal to so great a Country as America.

"The Communists are the only country in the world that I know that wants to take over every country and kill the Christians."

Would she be able to practice here, she concluded.

Some letters ask such devastatingly simple questions they must be a little disconcerting to answer.

"What entertainment do you offer?" asked one. Well, er, let's see — there's darts and bingo at the Legion, and the penny farthing race and . . .

"How is Victoria today?" kindly inquired another. What does one say? Not bad, all things considered, or coming along nicely, thank you?

One of the shortest replies from the chamber read: "Dear Mrs. Such-and-such, the San Juan Islands are yours, not ours."

When the Mind Is Blank Which Way Do You Go?

Max Low, whose desk adjoins mine, has been writing some pretty good stuff lately for a boy of 38, but when the chips are down he turns, like everybody, to the old master. And watch how you spell that, Ed.

"What do you do when you simply have no ideas?" Max asked me not more than eight minute ago. He had been sitting there twisting and turning for goodness knows how long. Indeed, I had thought it might be an underwear problem. But it turned out he was simply bereft of ideas.

Ordinarily I'd have gone on to write my usual essay on tariff barriers restricting to the importation of soybeans or an analysis of socio-political tensions in the Middle East, but as it happened I had been doing quite a bit of twisting and turning myself and welcomed Max's question.

"What you do when you have no idea," I replied, every other inch the old wizard, "is that you write a piece about having no idea."

I'd have gone on, probably at great length, but at this juncture Max received a phone call offering him a workable idea — absolutely free! — and before you could say Jack Robinson he was attacking his typewriter, leaving me to my own private agony.

It doesn't happen very often, you understand. Maybe once or twice a year, at the most. But there's no panic quite like it. To be a sort of writer and to have nothing to write about is — well, it's kind of like opening a store with all your merchandise ready and then nobody comes in.

This happened to me once when I was about 16. A man named Phil opened a Carmelcrisp shop and hired me, at $8 a week, to make and sell the stuff. Carmelcrisp was a kind of popcorn with carmel goo all over it. It was very big in those days. I had made about 18 tons of Carmelcrisp before the shop opened and then I stood there behind the counter, invitingly, and nobody came in all day. I eventually locked up, went home to my mother, cried and went into the newspaper business.

Some columnists, of course, are more sensitive than others and will do quite drastic things on these idea-less days. They tell a story about Jim Coleman, who was and is the best sports columnist this country ever produced, who chanced upon such a day and stared for a very long time at the blank sheet of copy paper rolled in his machine. Finally, rising, he walked down to the classified advertising department and put in an ad, offering himself for odd jobs, window cleaning, lawn cutting and such (naturally, being a columnist, there was nothing else he could do) and was not seen again for several weeks. Nobody answered the ad so eventually he went back to writing.

I received my own training largely by absorbing the techniques of three grand old men in the columnist business, Jimmy Butterfield, Bob Bouchette and George Wright, all long since gone to the great barroom in the sky.

So far as I know none of these gents ever had more than the faintest idea of what they'd write about when they sat down to their machines. To be perfectly honest there were many days when their colleagues marvelled that they could find the machine in the first place. Yet, drunk or sober, I never knew one of them to write a dull or incomprehensible piece. It was as if they had some magic compartment of the mind that instantly produced an opening sentence and what came after.

I mention these hereos of mine mainly to illustrate the fact that, very often, a worked-out, schematic, powerful idea in the mind will just curl up and die when it comes to the unavoidable task of exposing it to paper. Bouchette told me once that he could not bear to think of anything before he went to the typewriter because ideas bruise so easily if they're worked out ahead of time.

This is true. I have, myself, had ideas that were lighter than balls of fluff, so fragile and inconclusive that you weren't so worried about developing them so much as wondering if they'd blow away. Yet very often these are the tenuous ideas that fall obediently into place as neatly as alphabet blocks.

One of the great troubles, of course, is to get an idea that doesn't quite make sense and to be left with only the hope that it will work out when you start the writing.

When my father was writing he used to keep a large slate by his bed because, so he believed, the best ideas come at night. Often he would awaken from a dream in which he'd had some earth-shaking notion and scribble it, half awake, on his slate. More often than not, in the cold morning light, he would find that he had scrawled some gibberish and try frantically to recapture the dream and the idea it had contained. I often think it was this that turned him to editing.

There is, too, the problem that's created by the simple fact that getting fresh ideas is an example of diminishing returns. The longer you write, it seems, the harder it is to dredge up an outlook or an attitude that is entirely new. You are forever haunted with the suspicion that you might just have said all this before and maybe even better, that you are, in fact, re-writing yourself.

Oh, I tell you, Max, it's awful on these days. And, by the way, whatever happened to Carmelcrisp?

Move Now On Hotels Says Bawlf

Victoria's worst old hotels and rooming houses will have to be urgently upgraded for fire safety, even if that means displacing their occupants before government action produces alternative accommodation, Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf said today.

"This probably means that certain social service agencies are going to have to work night and day to find somewhere for these people to live," Bawlf said.

The alderman stressed he is "not trying to panic anyone" in the aftermath of the tragic weekend fire at the Royal Olympic Hotel, but said if lives can be lost in a relatively safe, well-managed building the consequences could prove far more serious from fires in other downtown buildings.

"It's obvious that we have hotels substantially less safe than the Royal Olympic," he added, and in some cases such major improvements are needed to conform with fire safety regulations that the establishments would have to be closed down while the work was carried out.

"Notwithstanding that we have to confront this problem head-on. We just can't turn a blind eye."

To underline the importance of early action, Bawlf would like fellow council members to tour some of the worst examples of the 26 buildings which a fire department report has blacklisted.

He said the department had surveyed some 2,000 rooms in older apartments and hotels in the downtown area, and had concluded that about half of them were unsafe.

Attempts by the city to persuade the provincial government that some of its housing efforts should be concentrated in the city centre, as alternative accommodation for elderly and low-income roomers, have met with no response, Bawlf added.

Ald. Malcolm Anderson, chairman of the city's fire prevention committee, said he has visited some of the buildings with known fire risks and he doesn't believe a council tour would serve any real purpose.

"I don't think it would necessarily change our schedule for dealing with the urgent ones," he said.

Anderson was referring to Fire Chief Eric Simmons' intention to start implementing his powers under the Fire Marshal's Act, by ordering building owners to install proper fire escape access, fire alarms and other safety measures.

That program was due to start today, the alderman said, but one major problem will remain no matter how many improvements are carried out:

Eight-Year-Term In Knifing Death

Nineteen-year-old Curtis William Christie was sentenced today to eight years in the penitentiary by Mr. Justice Harry McKay of the B.C. Supreme Court.

Christie was found guilty by a jury June 4 of manslaughter in the death Oct. 15, 1974, of Stanford Clarence Wray, 53. Christie was originally charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment.

Wray was found dead on Grant Street near Fernwood Road with a single four-inch stab wound to the heart.

Conflicting testimony was heard during the eight-day trial which ended June 4.

In his account of the circumstances surrounding the death, Christie said he struck up a casual acquaintance with Wray while both were drinking at the Century Inn beer parlor.

They left together in Wray's car for a party on Grant Street, where Wray hoped to meet a woman and he (Christie) intended to collect a $250 debt owed to him by somebody else from a drug sale in 1973.

Christie said the car stopped near the house where the party was held and he was starting to get out when Wray began punching him and pulling his hair. Unable to free himself, he pulled a borrowed knife and tried to cut Wray's wrist or shoulder.

The key prosecution witness, Donald Charles McCrae, said when he loaned the knife to Christie in a pub, and asked him why he wanted it, Christie replied that he needed it to "roll a wino or a drunk" and indicated an older man in the pub.

Sooke Arena Dead Issue For a While

Capital Regional Board representative Ron Dumont, who also chairs the Sooke Recreation Committee, said today it will now be impossible to hold a referendum because the low bidder (H. E. Fowler and Sons at $1,224,856) will not hold to that price without stringent conditions.

Originally it was proposed to build an $850,000 arena on a site donated by the Sooke Community Association. Residents had approved an assessment of 1.5 mills for recreational purposes. When the bids were opened and all were over the $1 million mark the committee hoped to conduct a referendum in the fall.

POLLEN TO RUN FOR SOCREDS?

Mayor Peter Pollen of Victoria may run in the next provincial election as a Socred, Saanich and the Islands Social Credit Association president Bud Mesher said today.

Pollen will address the association's monthly meeting tonight at 8 at Royal Oak secondary school, 4564 West Saanich Rd.

In a telephone interview Pollen said he has considered joining the provincial Socreds but is not considering it now.

"I'm just an honored guest. I'm not a member of any political group."

"We're hoping he'll join (the party) or show outright support," said Mesher. "He made the overture to do so a year ago."

Mesher said Pollen pulled out last year after advance publicity on his intention to support Socreds provincially.

"I think he'll get into provincial politics. I can't see him getting out of politics altogether," said Mesher.

Asked whether he could run under the Socred banner the mayor did not deny it, but said "I honestly haven't given it any thought."

Ask the Times

Q. I read the British are worried because dandelions are disappearing in their country. I find this hard to believe. Isn't it the most common plant around? J.G.

A. No. The most widely distributed flowering plant is a toothed grass called Cynodon Dactylon. It's found as far apart as Canada, Argentina, New Zealand, Japan and South Africa.

Two Deaths Ruled Accidental

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre has ruled death was accidental after conducting separate inquiries into two local fatalities last month.

William Samuel Moore, 81, of 2840 Gosworth, died from burns and asphyxiation May 12 in a fire at his home, the coroner said.

And a 16-year-old youth, Franklin Earl Medland of 3313 Aldridge, died of head and internal injuries received when the car he was driving overturned on Munns Road May 16.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT IN RAINY DISARRAY

That's the way it was Sunday at the Racquet Club of Victoria as the people arranging matches in the Pacific Regional junior tennis tournament watched afternoon rain wash their complicated schedule into disarray.

With 96 boys and 56 girls competing in four age classes, a total of 251 matches will be required in the tourney and officials were facing problems as they planned to resume play at 8:30 this morning.

First on their worry list was an attempt to catch up on their schedule after Sunday's weather forced postponement of 32 matches and left another 12 suspended while play was in progress.

Given dry skies today, says Mark Soper, one of those working on the problems, a busy day of play on the Racquet Club and other area courts could erase the backlog and clear the decks for Tuesday's finals.

Finals are all slated for the Racquet Club, tentatively set to start at 9 a.m. and continue until about 3 p.m.

One final was completed Sunday. That one was the title match in the boys' under-12 singles between a pair of West Vancouver rivals. John Bowering came out on top with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Ricky Bengtson.

Among the suspended matches was the girls under-12 final, which was halted with Victoria's Valerie Brice holding a 2-1 lead over Susie Hunter of West Vancouver in the deciding set after each had won one set.

Favorites in singles events of the other age divisions escaped upsets in the first two days of play.

Still in the running for titles in the girls' section were three top-seeded Victorians — Brenda Cameron (under 18), Wendy Barlow (under 16) and Andria Levy (under 14).

Boys remaining in title hunts included Glen Bradshaw of Victoria, top-ranked in the under-18 section, and West Vancouver's William Geddes, seeded second in the under-18 class and rated first in the under-16 division.

Albion Batsmen Blast Castaways

Batsmen took command at Beacon Hill Sunday as Albion surprised Castaways and pulled into a second-place tie in the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Castways, who had been shunted out of the top berth Saturday when Alcos defeated Oak Bay by 71 runs at Windsor Park, had their fun at the wicket when they batted first in Sunday's clash with Albion.

With David Shaw scoring 100 not out and David Auld contributing 37 runs, Castaways ran up 207 for five wickets and appeared destined to finish with nothing worse than a draw.

Albions had other ideas when they came to bat, turning in a free-hitting display unexpected by their rivals.

Frank Jarman blasted Castaway bowlers for 111 not out. Tony Courlas added 58 and Albions lost only one wicket as they tallied 210 runs to chalk up, a nine-wicket triumph and climb into a second-place deadlock with Castaways.

Nanaimo batsmen were also in form on the way to an eight-wicket victory over Incogs Sunday at St. Michael's University School.

After dismissing Incogs for 83, which included 32 by Mike Walsh as Ian Smith toppled five wickets at a cost of 22 runs, Nanaimo surrendered only two wickets in surpassing the Incog total. Ray Telford was the Hub City batting leader with 41, not out.

On Saturday, Peter Nation scored 79 not out and combined with Bob McKay in a 96-run stand as Alcos were all out for 138.

That was all they needed as their bowlers, with John Moss setting the pace by taking three wickets while yielding a mere two runs, dismissed Oak Bay for 67.

Richmond Combines Quantity, Quality

sports
DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Quantity also meant quality for Richmond Track and Field Club Saturday and Sunday at the Y-Times meet at Centennial Stadium.

With 118 athletes entered in the two-day event which attracted a record 1,036 open and age-class competitors from Alberta, B.C., Oregon and Washington, Richmond had easily the largest club delegation at the meet, sponsored jointly by the Times and the Victoria YM-YWCA.

It also had the best.

The mainland team completely overwhelmed the field, scoring 1,261 points in girls' and boys' competition for the Y-Times team title.

That points total was nearly 400 better than runner-up Coquitlam Cheetahs and almost 550 better than that of third-place Norwesters of West Vancouver.

Fourth spot in the 188-event meet went to Northwest Washington Striders of Bellingham with Victoria Track Club a close fourth and Victoria Flying "Y" fifth.

Despite some solid individual efforts by their opposition, Richmond athletes rarely lost the spotlight in the competition, hampered Sunday by a cold, driving rain and gusting winds.

Richmond members won 17 events, were second in another 14 and finished third in 22.

Top performer on the Richmond club was Roy Rasmussen, who set two peewee provincial records and was named the outstanding male athlete in track events.

Rasmussen set a record in the 400 metres Saturday with a time of 60.8 seconds and established another mark Sunday for the 800 metres with a 2:17.5 time.

The outstanding male athlete in throwing events was Lance Neubauer of the Striders, who was the individual star of Saturday's proceedings.

Competing in the midget class, Neubauer set a Canadian mark in the shotput with a toss of 18.19 metres (59'8") to break the 11-year-old record of 18.15 metres set by Stuart Hunnings of Vancouver Olympic Striders.

Neubauer also finished second in the discus Sunday behind Chris Friday of Woodland Track Club, who won with 39.26 metres. Graham Coveney of Vancouver Olympic Club was third.

Coveney, though, was selected the outstanding male athlete in the jump events with his new provincial mark of 4.00 metres in the pole vault.

None of the three, however, claimed the top prize as the meet's outstanding male athlete.

That honor went to Frank Myer of the Port Coquitlam Pacers, who won four events and finished runner-up in another two in the bantam boys' competition.

Saturday, he won the discus with a toss of 38.33 metres, the shotput with an effort of 14.52 metres, the triple jump with a performance of 11.22 metres and the 100 metres with a time of 12.2 seconds. He was second in the high jump.

Sunday, he finished runner-up in the javelin to Burnaby's Mark Steen, who won with a throw of 48.84 metres.

The meet's outstanding female athlete was another versatile performer. Theresa Lenardon of Trail Track Club was the only dual record-setter Saturday. She set a B.C. bantam girls' mark in the 80-metre hurdles with a time of 12.0 seconds and established an open and Canadian record with a leap of 1.63 metres in the high jump.

She was also selected the outstanding female athlete in the jumps for her high-jump record and her first-place finish Saturday in the long jump with an effort of 5.48 metres.

The award as the top female athlete in the throwing events went to Connie Polman-Tuin of Powell River Track Club for her B.C. peewee marks of 16.69 metres in the shotput and 26.70 in the discus.

Kari Jonassen of the Eastside Track Club in Seattle was named the outstanding female athlete in track competition for her B.C. open record of 4:56.6 in the peewee 1,500 metres and her first-place finish in the 800 metres.

One superior effort which won't be fully recognized will be Lex Ludke's high jump Sunday in the peewee boys' age class.

A member of the Northwest Washington Striders, he leaped 1.58 metres to set a provincial open record.

That jump is also believed the best recorded by any peewee athlete but won't count as an official world or even national record as international officials don't recognize world records for athletes younger than midget-aged competitors.

A grade-five student, Ludtke also competed in the shotput and javelin and finished fourth in both events.

Stories by D'Arcy Kavanagh, Photos by Irving Strickland

Stephanie Berto had plenty of time to think about her comeback Sunday at the Y-Times track and field meet at Centennial Stadium.

While most everyone near her prepared for their individual events, Stephanie huddled against the cold and waited until she could return home to Vancouver and rid herself of a day's frustration.

She didn't come to the two-day event as a spectator, but rather as a competitor in the women's open 100 metres, an event she once dominated in Canda.

A stroke of ill luck, however, changed her role Sunday from that of a participant to frustrated bystander.

Entered in a heat of the 100 metres, she raced to a first-place finish and a berth in the final against speedsters such as Richmond's Tinker Robinson, Victoria's Kathy Weich and West Vancouver's Margo Howe.

She did one thing against the rules, though. She wore the wrong number in her heat and that caused her to be disqualified in only her second competiton in nearly three years.

"It was partly my fault I wore the wrong number," she said," but it it was also partly the officials's. He is supposed to check everyone's number and didn't."

The disqualification bothered Berto. Seeking an avenue for working on her comeback, she admitted looking forward to going against Howe, Robinson and Weich.

"There isn't as much good competition around as there was four or five years ago," she said, "so you don't want to miss the chance to go against some good sprinters."

When the final took place, Berto was behind the grandstands.

Howe, the B.C. high school 100-and 200-metres champion, took the race in 12.2 with Robinson second and Weich third.

The decision to try a comeback after a series of leg injuries that kept her out of track since 1972 came in January and as a result of her affinity for the sport.

But she has discovered that the road back is far from smooth.

Away from rigorous training as a sprinter for nearly three years, Berto now finds the regimentation necessary to climb back on top not only a big change but a little unpleasant.

A fan of tennis, cycling and swimming, she has to curtail those activities to conserve her energy for track.

"It's tough to give up the different interests you have for track," she said, "and you sometimes wonder if it's all worth it."

Just finishing her first year as a teacher, she also finds it difficult to work full time and train, something she was never forced with before.

One reason for her return is to make it to the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, and not as a spectator.

She made her first appearance in the Olympics in 1968 in Mexico. Her chance for the 1972 Games in Munich was thwarted by her leg injuries, most of which she thinks were caused by stress although doctors failed to diagnose anything definite.

At age 22, she is still young as a female sprinter.

But she has doubts whether she can reclaim the speed that won a gold medal in the 200 metres and a silver in the 100 in the 1971 Pan American Games in Cali, Colombia.

The major obstacles in her comeback, she figures, are her lack of training the last three years, the poor competition to be found and the mental edge she lost through inactivity during her track layoff.

TRACK MYER'S FORTE BUT OTHER SPORTS OK

Frank Myer of Port Coquitlam Races had a busy weekend at the Y-Times track and field meet at Centennial Stadium.

Saturday, he won the bantam boys' discuss, shotput, triple jump and 100 metres, while finishing second in the high jump. Sunday, he was second in the javelin.

Those performances led to his selection as the meet's outstanding male athlete.

Davis believes the husky 14-year-old has great potential for the pentathalon and has had him training hard the last few weeks to compete in the provincial junior development pentathalon championship August 10 in West Vancouver.

It will be a rush job getting the grade eight student ready for the meet, though.

Well schooled in the field events and particularly the shotput and discus, Myer's appearance in the 100 metres Saturday was his first as a runner.

He has yet to run an 800-metres race, one of the pentathalon events along with the javelin, shotput, discus and 100 metres.

But it doesn't bother him.

"If the coach asks me to do something, I'll do it," he said Sunday after being presented with his outstanding male athlete award.

So far, that means working out four nights a week under Davis' direction. At that time, they practice techniques in the events.

Myer also lifts weights to give himself the necessary strength for the field events.

"I work pretty hard and I guess it's mostly because of my coach's influence," he said.

Track and field has not always been so popular with Myer. Before it appealed to him, he played strictly baseball, football and hockey.

That changed, however, when some of his friends with the Racers convinced him to come to some club practices. After the first few, Myer was hooked.

"I still enjoy playing hockey and those other games," he said, "but when it's time for track, I just drop them for track."

When he started track with the Racers, Myer didn't have Davis as his coach. Davis was living in Kamloops after leaving Port Coquitlam the year before.

"I've improved quite a bit this year," said Myer, "and I think I'm still learning an awful lot. My coach is a real good teacher."

Devoted to track and field now, Myer looks to the time when he can concentrate on the decathalon.

"I like the idea of competing in the decathalon," he said. "I know I'm excited about the pentathalon."

If there's any area where he thinks he is weak, it is technique. But he expects to improve his form in the five events considerably before his first pentathalon competition.

And with his performances at the Y-Times meet, it's easy to see he has a skilful hand to guide his track and field course.
